Public School Beauty Course Criticized by Private Operators

Sikeston public schools came under fire Thursday afternoon on charges of conducting a beauty culture course that interfers with private enterprise cosmotology schools operated by Lawrence Luber and Mrs. Avis Taylor.

Appearing before the school board on behalf of Luber and Mrs. Taylor was Robert Dempster, attorney, who said "we feel there has been a substantial encroachment on free enterprise."

There are now 20 school age girls participating in the school program, which comes under vocational training.

Dempster said since the program was initiated, last year both private schools have experienced a decline in students that has brought them to a point that merely two students could mean the difference between success and failure.

Supt. of Schools Lynn Twitty's rebuttal was the school is merely teaching high school students and not adults, who would come under the manpower development and training act. He said the students probably could or would not have undertaken such training if it had not been for the schools program.

Dempster pointed out that if Sikeston did not have two private cosmotology schools, there would be a need for training and added:

"I do not believe the school is meant to take business away from private enterprise."

In addition Dempster presented the board with a petition containing 38 names of private beauty operators in Sikeston in support of Luber and Mrs. Taylor.

Jean Casey, executive secretary of the state board of cosmotology, stated after Dempster and Luber left the room she does not feel the school is taking away from either Luber's or Mrs. Taylor's schools. She said she would prefer this would be left off the record. Mrs. Taylor was not at the meeting.

Before departing Dempster assured the board his clients do not feel the school is purposefully doing anything to "hurt the home folks," but requested the program be phased out.

A primary point in question was whether the school is actually teaching prospective students who would and could afford to enroll in the private schools. Luber stated he has never turned a student away because of finance. He said from 25 per cent to one-third of his students do not pay now.

"We make any type of financial arrangement that is satisfactory to the students," Luber said.

Twitty said the school is carefully not to enroll anyone who would or could otherwise take private training. It was pointed out that one student had been in contact with Mrs. Taylor for private schooling and later enrolled in the school program.

Twitty said the students enrolled in the course are not particularly academically inclined. High School Principal Roger Sherman cited examples of sub-stantial attendance improvement of students enrolled in the course.

Another point of interest is people allowed to receive beauty treatments at the public school. Dewavon Adams, who is in charge of teaching the program, said only low - income pupils and mothers of those students enrolled in the cosmotology school are permitted to receive hair dressings. Twitty also pointed out that students enrolled in the program are from low income families.

Another point brought out after Dempster and Luber departed, is that fees for services rendered to customers render more profit to the private schools than tuition fees.

Before leaving Dempster pointed out if the school's program was phased out it would save taxpayer's money and he emphasized it seems the state's financial situation does not appear so sound it could not afford to cut down on expenses, such as the cost of this school program.

Dempster referred to an election that could be held in April regarding a vote on state taxes. If the vote should be negative, school officials claim districts would suffer drastically money - wise. Dempster said this is a way to cut costs.

Luber pointed that before the school program was initiated there were night courses available, but this is now "completely out" for high school students. Harold Vogel, administrative assistant to Twitty, pointed out to Luber that legislation concerning minimum wages is the reason the night program was cut out.

Dempster then injected that if a grocery store was operated by the school, "you would have a complaint." He directed this statement to board member Phil Barkett, owner of Barkett's Super Market.

Charles Matthews, secretary to the board, said it should be stressed the public school's course does not provide services for the general public.

Following discussion, the board unanimously decided a committee should be formed to assist in ironing out the problems. There was no indication of further action.

$55,966 Apparently Stolen in Robbery

By DAN D. WHITTLE

BENTON — At the request of Scott county Sheriff John Dennis, examiners worked most of Thursday night to derive at a amount of money that could have been taken in the robbery of county collector Aubrey Michael's office Monday night.

Sheriff Dennis after conferring with members of the county court this morning estimated the amount missing to be $55,965.54. Whether this is the exact amount taken in the robbery has not been verified, but it is a close estimate.

Michael arrived in Benton before noon today and said Wednesday was the first he knew of the robbery. Michael had been in Florida. He was in Augusta, Ga., when he learned of the holdup from a daughter, the collector said.

Michael commented: "we are trying to do everything we can to determine the facts of the robbery and I have assured Sheriff Dennis he is at liberty to take anything he needs from my office in the investigation."

When asked if his absence from the state would have made any difference in the robbery, Michael commented: "I wouldn't see why it would."

J.W. "Dub" Shuffit, deputy collector, had charged earlier this week that Michael's presence could have made a difference in preventing the robbery.

Michael said he has sufficient bond to cover the loss, but he would have to make restitution to bonding companies for the sum. "I'm the one who will suffer financially," he said.

"I just hope we can find out who did it," Michael injected.

The Collector appeared to be distraught during the interview.

"The sheriff's office of Scott county assisted by the Missouri State Highway patrol, is continuing its investigation of the reported robbery of the collector's office on Dec. 8," Dennis said.

"Our investigation has revealed at this time an approximate shortage of $55,965.54 between the dates of Nov. 1 and the close of business on Dec. 8-- when comparing approximate receipt figures to approximate totals of funds on hand and disbursements.

"Our investigation is continuing as to how much of this shortage-- whether part or all relates to the reported robbery.

"At the present time, we have no suspects in custody."

Sheriff Dennis disclosed that Michael told him it was "perfectly all right" to take any form of record out of his office in order to derive at this morning's figure.

Sheriff John Dennis stated his office with assistance from highway patrol Sgt. F. A. Findley, are checking every aspect of the case. He praised Findley's work in the case.

The sheriff disclosed Michael was contacted Thursday afternoon in Augusta, Ga.

Scott county Prosecuting Attorney Tom Gilmore, who appeared before the county court this morning, said as far as he can determine by law the county does not stand to lose the amount taken in the robbery. He did not know, whether the collector's office has insurance to cover the loss.

Gilmore explained the county's position regarding the money:

"For instance, if you owed me $1,000 to be paid this afternoon, but was robbed this morning, you still would be required to pay me my money."

Sheriff Dennis verified this morning that Deputy Collector Shuffit deposited about $119,000 in collections Monday night prior to the robbery.

Shuffit reported he was the victim of a strong armed robbery Tuesday night. The robber stepped from behind a rest room door, he said, puiled a gun and forced him to go to the collector's office. Shuffit was reported to have been struck twice by the robber before he was tied up and the office robbed of currency and checks.

PICKETS WERE WALKING along the highway 60 right - of - way in front of National Lock factory construction site near the Farmers Market. The two men, who refused to give their names are members of Iron Workers Union Local 782, of Paducah. They said they were protesting low wages. Picketing the steel work construction project by the Brown Construction company, Dexter, has gone on for four weeks.

Domestic Priority to Defense Spending Urged After Viet War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Violence Commission, concluding an 18-month study of the menace of violence in America, said Friday U.S. spending for domestic problems should take precedence over defense spending as soon as the Vietnam war has ended.

"We solemnly declare our conviction," the commission said, "that this nation is entering a period in which our people need to be as concerned by the internal dangers to our free society as by any probable combination of external threats."

The commission chairman, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, presented the report to President Nixon Thursday—18 months after the panel had been formed by former President Lyndon B. Johnson following the assassinations of Robert F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King.

The commission's term expired Wednesday.

The bulk of the 338-page document was a recapitulation of the commission's nine previous reports on various aspects of violence along with a summary of the 81 recommendations it has made.

Its major new recommendation:

"That, when our participation in the Vietnam War is concluded, we recommend increasing annual general welfare expenditures by about 20 billion dollars (stated in 1968 dollars), partly by reducing military expenditures and partly by use of increased tax revenues resulting from the growth of the gross national product."

Then, the commission said, as the Gross National Product continues to rise, military spending should be kept level "while general welfare expenditures should continue to increase until essential social goals are achieved."

The reference to "general welfare expenditures" does not mean public welfare payments but is taken from the preamble to the Constitution, established "to promote the general welfare ..."

"We recognize," the commission said, "that substantial amounts of funds cannot be transferred from sterile war purposes to more productive ones until our participation in the Vietnam War is ended.

"We also recognize that to make our society essentially free of poverty and discrimination, and to make our sprawling urban areas fit to inhabit, will cost a great deal of money and will take a great length of time.

"We believe, however, that we can and should make a major decision now to reassess our national priorities by placing these objectives in the first rank of the nation's goals."

Conrad, Bean See No Moon Work Problem

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex (AP) — Man can do almost any work assigned him on the moon, the Apollo 12 lunar voyagers said today.

"We've proven that man can do just about any job you give him out there," said Apollo 12 commander Charles Conrad Jr.

Conrad and fellow moon walker Alan L. Bean said they worked hard hour after hour without getting tired and were doing jobs about twice as fast as they could do them on earth.

Conrad, Bean and the third Apollo 12 crewman, Richard F. Gordon Jr., discussed their 10day flight to the moon during a 90-minute news conference.

All said they were eager to go back into space and to revisit the moon.

Conrad said future moon crews may be able to work on the lunar surface for "a full work day," taking only occasional breaks to rest and eat. He visualized future moon crews staying on the lunar surface up to nine hours with only one break.

Bean and Conrad made two moonwalks of four hours each. The walks were separated, however, by a sleep period inside the lunar lander.

"You can work as hard as you can, but you just don't seem to get tired," said Bean. "We were able to move a lot farther than we imagined."

Conrad said the moon landing was hazardous but he said that with only slight changes in the automatic pilot the lunar module can make a pin-point landing completely on instruments with no help from the pilot.

"I do not feel that that's an amateur's game," he said, noting that "if I hadn't touched anything (flown in on automatic pilot), it would have landed me right on top of the Surveyor (an unmanned spacecraft which was already on the moon's surface)."

Conrad said he took over manually and flew to another landing site.

Conrad and Bean apologized for the loss of television of their moon walks.

Conrad showed a picture of what he called "that ding-a-ling TV camera" and Bean explained that it was apparently "sunburned."

Bean said he apparently pointed it at the sun or at a bright surface on the lunar lander as he was moving the camera.

Student Expulsion Approved, School Tax Increase Talked

The Sikeston R-6 school board Thursday approved permanent expulsion of an eighth grade student who attacked Junior High Principal Ernest Elledge.

Supt. of Schools Lynn Twitty explained the student is inconsistent in behavior and varies from passtive to violent actions.

"I don't know of any school person who works any harder than Ernest to try to get along with students," Twitty said.

He also disclosed to board members that attendance by pupils living in the Lincoln school area has not been good and is below the overall school attendance average, which he estimated at 95 per cent. He said it could come to the point where the school would need to employ an attendance worker and he mentioned possible parent prosecution when the parents continue to allow their children to miss school needlessly, which is against the law.

An election to vote on a 19-cent school tax increase was discussed for the second week in March. This would be added to the present the $4.19 level. Twitty said it should be pointed out this is lower than last year's $4.42 cent tax levy per $100 assessed valuation.

Two Railroads Pay Taxes Under Protest

Two railroads have paid portions of their county taxes under protest, ccording to Tom Gilmore, Scott County prosecuting attorney, and J. W. Shuffit, deputy tax collector.

The railroads are the Missouri Pacific and the Cotton Belt. Utilities might follow their leads.

The two railroads charge their taxes are too high because the Sikeston and Illmo- Scott City school districts failed to lower their tax levies sufficiently following this year's $7 million increase in county real estate valuation.

Missouri law says that all taxing units must lower their levies in propertions to the valuation increase. Scott City did not lower its levy, but Sikeston did. A legal point is involved on Sikeston. The Sikeston district lowered its levy from $4.42 to $4.19, and the lower rate brings in about the same amount of money as the higher levy did, but that is over the entire district, which includes part of New Madrid county.

The railroads maintain the levy and valuation increase applied to the Scott County district portion alone and is producing more money than is legal. The amount under protest is rather small, Shuffit said, and the amount under dispute will be placed into an escrow account.

It creates a new legal point prompting Gilmore to say "I think it is going to some hard thought on the part of a judge to solve it."

The railroads have given checks which stipulates a certain portion of this is paid under protest, which Shuffit estimates is around $3,500.

School and City May Swap Buildings

It appears likely the Sikeston R-6 school district and the city of Sikeston will in essence make a swap regarding two properties, the old post office building owned by the school and the old airport school buildings owned by the city.

Terms of the conditions have not been made public.

Tentative plans call for the city, to convert the old post office into a city administration building and possibly as police headquarters.

It has not been disclosed what the airport buildings would be used for. The old post office building has been used for storage.

Five Treated

Five were treated in Missouri Delta Community hospital Thursday:

Treated for injury in car accidents were Brenda K. Burch, Matthews, Mary Frost and Ray S. Frost, both of Sikeston; Johnny L. Williams, cut forehead in fall; and Roger D. Morrett, Oran, face cut.

Liquor Reported Passed to Two Juveniles in Jail

It has been reported whisky was slipped to two juvenile boys late last night in the Sikeston jail.

Fred Glover, Scott County juvenile officer, said he had a call but did not have all the information. He would not elaborate.

A source said the whisky is believed to have been sneaked to two step- brothers who were picked up Nov. 28 for investigation of an offense considered to be a felony if committed by an adult. This was the day following the shotgun slaying of Charles "Chuck" Lenderman at his home.

It was reported the liquor was supplied by a person whom the police released on bond yesterday.

Two Fined $130 On Driving Charge

DEXTER — Lloyd Jones and Harold W. Zimmerman, both of Dexter, were arrested last night on a charge of driving while intoxicated. Police said they were both fined $130 this morning.

Wayne Goode of Dexter was arrested on a charge of public intoxication last night, police reported.

News Briefs

Pravda Denies Anti-Semitism

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda claimed today that anti-Semitism is impossible in the Soviet Union and praised Soviet Jews for taking an "active role in the construction of communism."

Apparently replying to recent charges in the West that Soviet Jews are being persecuted, Pravda said anti-Semitism is "alien to the Soviet people."

"We have no social conditions for this," Pravda added. "Any manifestation of anti-Semitism is punishable under Soviet law."

The article, signed by Ukranian Jewish writer Grigory Plotkin, said the Israeli Zionists and Soviet Jews have nothing in common. There is as much difference between them as between the "Greek resistance heroes and the black colonels," Plotkin wrote.

Many Slaying Suspects Quizzed

ST. CHARLES, Mo. (AP) — Police investigating the Monday night slayings of two young St. Charles women said today they have questioned more than 20 persons in their quest for leads.

Of that number, they said, about 10 are considered "possible suspects' in the slayings of Mrs. Donna Green, 21, and Martha Wampler, 20, whose bodies were found Tuesday noon in their home.

Police Capt. Robert Lowery of Florissant said lie detector tests had been taken by four men who had dated Miss Wampler, he said three passed the tests and the results for the other man were inconclusive.

Considered a prime suspect in the slayings, said police, is the man whom a neighbor of the young women saw being admitted to their home about 6:30 p.m. Monday.

Still being studied in laboratory tests were fingerprints found in a car rented by Miss Wampler. The car, reported missing after the slayings, was found in an apartment complex parking lot early Wednesday.

Ham, Turkey Ride on Bowl Duel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., has responded to a challenge by Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., putting up a Missouri ham against a Pennsylvania turkey on the outcome of the Orange Bowl game New Year's Day.

Symington said he couldn't "imagine a Pennsylvania turkey being the equivalent of a Missouri country ham" but added, "with full confidence in the University of Missouri Tigers and recognizing that you have to support Penn State, I accept your challenge and we look forward to eating that Pennsylvania turkey with great pleasure."

Scott, Senate minority leader, said he is confident that Penn State will "officially become the nation's No. 1 team after it defeats Missouri and if Notre Dame beats Texas in the Cotton Bowl."

Texas Football Star Suffers Loss of Leg

HOUSTON (AP) — Fred Steinmark, the starting safety on No.1-ranked Texas' Cotton Bowl bound football team, had his left leg amputated today at the M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute.

A hospital spokesman said the decision was made to amputate the leg at the hip when an examination of the left thigh bone found a malignant tumor.

Steinmark, 20, was admitted to the hospital this week to undergo tests.

The Denver athlete played in the Arkansas-Texas football game last Saturday.

State Farm Position to Clarkton Man

JEFFERSON CITY — The appointment of James C. (Jim) Dunscombe of Clarkton, as director of the grain, feed and seed division of the state department of agriculture, was announced today by Commissioner Dexter D. Davis.

The department of agriculture, according to Commissioner Davis, has combined two divisions -- grain warehouse and feed and seed-into one division. Dunscombe succeeds Dale Stanton as director.

A Southeast Missouri farmer and businessman, Dunscombe served 13 years as a fieldman for the Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service working in 20 counties. He also spent two years in the operation of a grain elevator and six years as assistant production and sales manager of Gideon- Anderson Lumber Company box division.

He has been active in the Dunklin county extension service and served two years as chairman. He helped organize the Dunklin county soil conservation district and was on the board of supervisors four years.

Dunscombe is a native of Dunklin county, is married and has one daughter, Mrs. Dwight Turner Senath.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
PEACE AT ANY PRICE

Congressional "doves" are up in arms over a taped television interview and a 30-minute film made by the Republican National Committee involving a former Special Forces Major, James Rowe. Major Rowe was a prisoner of war, held captive by the Communist Viet Cong for over five years.

In his statements the Major declared that his cover story to his captors was "blown" when an unnamed U.S. "peace" group turned over his biography to his Red captors. The AP story failed to note if the doves ever questioned what "peace group" endangers our American soldiers now being held by the communists.

Major Rowe incurred the wrath of the "doves" by stating that the American POWs, to quote the AP release, "largely ignored Hanoi's propaganda until late 1967 when it began quoting U. S. senators by name and citing U. S. newspaper, magazine and news agency reports of antiwar demonstrations." Rowe specifically mentioned statements by Sens. Fulbright (D-Ark.), Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, George McGovern (D-S.D.) and Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) "The peace demonstrators and the disheartening words of these senators made our life most difficult," was Major Rowe's testimony before the House Armed Services Committee. "It helped to break the spirit of Americans and boost the morale of the Viet Cong."

We can well understand the reason for the uproar. It is one thing to have it said here that the tactics of the peace at any price advocates are prolonging the war and endangering the safety of our men in the field. It is another thing to have it said by one who has paid the price of defeatism.

SHAKEUP AT THE NLRB

President Nixon's corporate constituency is waiting hungrily for an announcement any day that liberal Republican Sam Zagoria will be replaced by a conservative on the National Labor Relations Board. Zagoria's term expires at midnight on Tuesday, Dec. 16, and the betting is that Nixon will both replace him and name the new appointee chairman.

Of all the regulatory agencies, the NLRB is the one the Republicans would like to see adopt new policies. Businessmen contend the board is pro-labor and that it has put the employer at a disadvantage in bargaining with unions. One trouble has been that the two Republican members – Howard Jenkins Jr. and Zagoria -- often side with the three-man Democratic majority. The U. S. Chamber of Commerce, among others, has led the cry that it is time for a change at 1717 Pennsylvania Ave.

Another replacement will come next August when the term of Democrat Frank W. McCulloch, the chairman, runs out. McCulloch can be downgraded to just another board member before then because NLRB chairmen serve at the pleasure of the President.

The NLRB's importance stems from its role as an adjudicator of charges of unfair labor practices on the part of employers or unions. It also enforces requirements for collective bargaining, supervises election of bargaining representatives, and decides jurisdictional disputes. Changes in direction of decisions are likely to be slow. All members must abide by the basic tenet of the National Labor Relations Act of 1935, which specifically encourages the practice of collective bargaining in order to eliminate obstructions to the free flow of commerce. Like the Supreme Court, however, nothing prevents NLRB members from reading or reflecting the election returns.

MERRY CHRISTMAS - RED STYLE

Once again - for the fourth consecutive year - the so-called German Democratic Republic (Communist) East Germany, is refusing to allow free access to West Berlin during the Christmas season. The "Wall of Shame" will remain closed and the million or more captive citizens will be denied the right to visit with their relatives, if any, in the free sector.

While it is true that the Berlin Wall represents a "defeat" for the Communist system, this is of little comfort to those who are forced to view the hideous structure from the inside. Fortunate are those who over the years have managed to escape despite the erection of the Wall, but we should all pause during this the happiest season of the year and pay humble respect to those who have given their lives trying to gain their freedom. It is difficult, for we in America who have known only freedom throughout our lives, to imagine having to risk one's life, leaving all possessions behind, just to cross a border. Yet, hundreds have done so and died in the attempt.

Our prayers should, also, be with those in the enslaved portion of Berlin, in fact all those behind the Iron and Bamboo Curtains, who lack the ingenuity or the means or, perhaps, the courage to attempt to reach the world beyond the walls and the barbed wire fences. For them there will be only the sounds of freedom wafting over the barriers. For them the gay season will be only a memory of what once was and may never be again. For them life will continue to be servitude for the State. For them Christmas will be a day to be carried only in the heart. The only open display will be that which is controlled by the State.

So we hang our stockings by the chimney with care. We decorate our Christmas trees. Shoppers will fill the streets. Cars, filled with loved ones, will travel the highways on their way to exchange visits and gifts. The office parties will be gay and free. Toasts will be offered, ... but not in the land east of the Wall. There you will see some window dressing - but just enough to arrange for the manufacture of Christmas ornaments for export to the capitalist countries. The profits from these pretty trinkets will help to enrich the slavers and strengthen the shackles of the enslaved. Here, baubles of happiness to adorn our trees. There, more bricks and barbed wire for the obscene Wall.

A VIEW OF CHICAGO'S ORDEAL BY FIRE

One of the Yippies was so dirty - he said he hadn't taken a bath for 14 months - the doctors would touch him only with rubber gloves. Such is one of the many facts revealed in these excerpts from a letter written by a Chicago woman to her Dallas relatives.

Too bad you weren't in Chicago last week. You could have got in on all the excitement. Still, if you're looking for kicks, come up now. You have never heard or seen the people of Chicago in such an uproar.

What you saw on TV wasn't even half the story of what went on. Of course, most was so obscene it couldn't be shown. They showed you the police attacking "innocent children," but they didn't show you the "youngsters" throwing bags of human excrement at the police or the balloons filled with urine or the golf balls with 10 - penny nails embedded in them. Naturally they also threw such mundane things as rocks, full beer cans, bricks, etc.

You also didn't see the "kids" walking around the Loop with a four-letter word written in lipstick on their foreheads. Best of all they didn't show you what went on in Grant Park - the nude bathing in the fountains, the men walking around with their pants open and the whole bunch using the park as an outdoor toilet.

You should see what they have done to the park. You wouldn't believe it. It's all brown and the grass and flowers are gone. There are burned spots all over where they lit their bonfires. The filth is unimaginable.

They also didn't tell you about the "children" that tore the snow fences apart in the park, drove nails through the pickets and used them as javelins. Or the sweet little things that embedded razor blades in the toes of their shoes and kicked the police. Or the darlings running around the cans of oven cleaner that they sprayed in the policemen's faces.

The delegates were moaning about the poor children. The newspapers here published their ages - 45, 39, 35, 33, 27, 29, etc.

I don't think I have ever seen Chicago so unified on anything in my life as it is over condemning these Yippies and praising the police. People have been calling the radio stations all week with stories of things that happened to them downtown and things they saw. Some of the stories are so filthy you can hardly believe them.

One girl I know was on duty at Mercy Hospital in the emergency room, and she said one of the Yippies they brought in for treatment was so dirty the doctors wouldn't touch him without rubber gloves. He admitted he hadn't had a bath in 14 months.

A policeman I know was down at the Hilton. He said the kids were trying to provoke the police lined up in front of the hotel. When they didn't get any response a wave of them came across the street with their pants open, attacked the line and ran back into the park. The police had orders to stand and take the stuff and not pursue them, but by that night they just couldn't take any more. That's when all the clubbing started, and that was all that anyone saw on TV.

In a way something good came out of the whole thing, though. I don't think anyone in Chicago will swallow whole hog anything they hear on TV anymore. It was rather frightening to see how the news was slanted.

Well, it's all over and done with for us, anyway, but some other cities are going to have to take it soon. Before leaving Chicago the leaders of the hippies stated their plans now were to tear apart the colleges the way they tore apart the convention. We'll see how other police departments handle it.

PENNSYLVANIANS DRIVE AGAINST COMPULSION . . . Reminded of their political loyalties by union bosses heading the AFL-CIO, Pennsylvania State Education Association (PSEA) and Pennsylvania Nurses Association, Pennsylvania House passed a bill (H.R. 1443) on July 29 that would expose state's public employees to compulsory unionism. Bill has been referred to Senate Labor Committee. Hard-hitting Pennsylvanians for Right to Work organization is mounting all-out drive to make sure bill is amended to provide Right to Work protection while pushing for passage of S. 355 - bill backed by Pennsylvania Governor Raymond Shafer that contains Right to Work protection for state's 446,000 state and local employees.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Christmas Eve is the night for the fathers of America to assemble.

They don't get together. They put together.

It happens every year, but somehow it always seems to come as a surprise.

This is because no father in his right mind walks into a toy store and asks for a box of spare parts to put under the tree for Junior or Juniorette. He asks for this bicycle or that tricycle or this toy sink or that doll house. He sees them, assembled and shiny.

But he walks out of the toy store with a box of spare parts, which he hides in the attic.

Then he burns the midnight oil into the wee hours of Christmas morning, trying to read the simple directions or—more likely—trying to put the toy together before he finally looks a the simple directions.

Except for the pictures, the directions don't seem to help much, because most of them read as if they were written by a Japanese who learned English in school—a Japanese school.

Somehow, though, he always manages to get things together in time to lie down, at least, before the youngsters awake gleefully to "see what Santa Claus brought me!"

It may well be this lack of credit where credit is due which leads some progressive types to teach their youngsters, from the time they are old enough to walk, the true facts of Christmas life.

On the other hand, it is the toymakers' dependence on the free labors of fathers which has helped make toys one of the biggest bargains around. They have to keep them simple.

The design of a coaster wagon, like that of the Volkswagen, hasn't changed much in 30 years. And 30 years ago, my father could have bought me the most expensive coaster wagon advertised for $14.95. Today, I can buy my son, Drew, the most expensive wagon offered by a nationwide department store chain for $19.99.

Like my father, I'd have o put it together—and gain a little appreciation for the old man in the process.

Or, take bicycles. Except for the complicated 3- and 5-gear models, which weren't around 30 years ago, the price rise is comparable to coaster wagons. The advertised range of Christmas bikes in 1939 was $23.95$42.95, while similar bikes sell today for $29-$59.95.

Bikes have another advantage over cars. I once put the handlebars on backwards. Before I discovered the mistake, Drew decided he liked them so much that way he wouldn't let me fix them.

Lucy was constantly losing boyfriends because of her grandmother's tendency to say the wrong things to them in her attempts to be modern.

One day her current beau arrived while Lucy was upstairs changing, and the old lady started to brag about her granddaughter.

"I think Lucy would rather foog than eat," Granny chatted cheerfully to the young man. "There's hardly a young man around she hasn't fooged with, and she even has a record to foog by."

The young man blushed, stammered, grabbed his hat and beat it out the door.

A moment later, Lucy came downstairs, noted his absence and said, "All right, Granny, what did you say this time?"

"Nothing," protested the old lady. "I was just telling him how much you liked to foog when he ran right out the door."

"Oh, my goodness, Granny, how many times must I tell you that the word is not foog, it's 'frug.' "

"Mama," asked little Jimmy one day, "Where do baby chicks come from?"

"Why, from eggs, of course," she replied.

"And where do eggs come from?"

"The mama hen lays them."

About a week later Jimmy happened to overhear his nineteen- year- old sister tell the mother that she was going to have a baby. Later that evening Jimmy sought out his sister, asking:

"Did you lay an egg, Sis?"

"No," came her sad reply. "Some egg laid me!"

GOOD REASONING

IT SEEMED THAT one time William Wrigley, the chewing gum king, was riding in an airliner when his seat companion said:

"I can't understand, Bill, why you keep pouring millions of dollars every year into advertising when everyone is already aware of your product."

Mr. Wrigley meditated for a minute, then seemed to change the subject.

"Tell me," he said, "how fast would you say this plane is going?" The other fellow answered, "About 600 miles per hour."

"In that case," said Mr. Wrigley, "why don't they just throw out the motors and let the plane continue on its own momentum?"

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- President Nixon wasn't bluffing when he threatened to veto "inflationary" legislation, such as the 15 per cent increase in Social Security benefits and the $200 boost in personal income tax exemptions.

He made this clear to Republican congressional leaders the other day at a White House political powwow. In language intended for GOP ears only, he warned: "I'm going to be awfully tough."

He appealed to his leaders on Capitol Hill to stand up for fiscal responsibility .

"I'd like you in Congress," he said, "to take as much heat as you can.

The President brought in his chief economic adviser, Paul McCracken, to lecture the congressional leaders about inflation.

"We are at an extremely critical stage in trying to get the economy on an orderly path," declared McCracken. "There is tangible evidence that the economy is slowly beginning to respond."

He ticked off some of the favorable signs but cautioned: "The key issue in whether we can continue this progress is unquestionably the budget outlook."

As he explained it, "Every dollar released into the economy produced about two dollars impact on the economy. A $5 billion deficit means $10 billion inflation. This would add excessive pressure, expressing itself in terms of higher price level."

He reported that business leaders had "deep skepticism about the ability of government to hold down inflationary pressures.

"But, if we can establish credibility in fiscal responsibility," he promised, "some of these problems will begin to clear up within the next 12 months. The President, turning to new Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns, asked: "Do you agree, Arthur?"

"I agree," said Burns. "This is a critical time. I urge you to veto legislation which overspends and to impound funds."

"I won't need any urging on budget cuts," the President replied.

"We've got to be a responsible administration. We Republicans want to be responsible. We must keep at it."

—CHRISTMAS PROBE--

Congress has a yuletide surprise for banks with Christmas Club accounts Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., has ordered an investigation into how they've been shortchanging their Christmas customers all these years.

He made spot checks of ten banking institutions in the Washington area, preliminary to a nationwide study of Christmas Club accounts. This confidential survey showed only two banks paid interest, while five actually penalized savers if they didn't make their full 48 or 50 weeks of payments.

Rosential can't understand why banks charging 10 per cent interest shouldn't show the Christmas clubbers just a little more holiday generosity. The Congressman has asked the Federal Reserve Board for figures on how many Americans have Christmas Club accounts.

Then he will either hold hearings or introduce legislation to force federally chartered banks to pay interest to the Christmas clubbers.

--BOBBY BAKER'S FRIEND

Like birds of a feather, wheeler-dealers apparently have an affinity for one another. This was discovered by a group of Rhodes scholars a year ago on their way to Oxford aboard the Europe-bound SS United States.

The students discovered that Bobby Baker, the ex-Senate aide whose backdoor deals made him a front-page figure, was on board. As a lark, they invited him to a birthday party. He showed up in a tuxedo, accompanied by a restless, voluble little man who identified himself as Dr. Martin Sweig.

This was the same Sweig who has now been suspended by Speaker John McCormack for using the Speaker's name -- and occasionally imitating his voice -- to fix contracts and cases before federal agencies.

After the party, five of the students were invited to the Baker suite for a nightcap. Sweig also was in attendance, attired in pajamas and bathrobe and chomping a cigar, McCormack-style. The students were fascinated by Sweig's outspoken opinions on almost everything.

"Dr. Sweig claimed he had absolute control over the Speaker's appointment schedule and implied that he also had a lot of control over the decision-making," remembers one student. "He said, in a number of different ways, that he was the most powerful man on the Hill."

Sweig sounded off at length against the civil rights movement and said that "Dr. Martin Luther King got what he deserved." Sweig's views were so extreme, indeed, that one student jokingly asked him whether the United States should bomb Peking.

"Peking, hell!" Sweig retorted. "We should be bombing Moscow."

He boasted that he had once fired a junior intern in the Speaker's office because the young man opposed the Vietnam War. Sweig just didn't want anybody around who thought that way, he said.

The following day, Sweig invited one of the Rhodes scholars to lunch. The student was dismayed to hear Sweig say "exactly the same things, sober, that he had been saying the night before between drinks."

An affair between a guy and a gal is always either easy or hard. The guy prefers it easy. The gal prefers it hard!

PRICELESS PRIVILEGES

The rights of U.S. citizenship include freedom of religion, speech and press, freedom of peaceable assembly, the right to own property and arms, and equality before the law. Only a tiny proportion of the people who ever lived on earth have enjoyed this state of personal independence and freedom from tyranny.

An article in Traffic Manager magazine points out that to pay for his rights every U.S. citizen is expected to be loyal to his country, obey its laws, vote in its elections, pay taxes for the support of government and serve in the armed forces if called. Some of our people seem to want the rights and privileges of U.S. citizenship but are unwilling to pay the price for them in return. We should remember that you never get something for nothing, least of all the priceless privilege of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

COMMUNISTS ON THE PUBLIC PAYROLL

Earlier this year the University of California, which has promoted, publicized, defended and given positions of authority to persons who openly proclaim their allegiance to movements committed to breaking the law, hired an admitted communist named Angela Davis to teach philosophy.

The people of the state of California, whose taxes pay the salary of University professors, had the right to expect that the regents of the University would fire Miss Davis and maintain their policy of refusing to employ professed communists.

Yet a Superior Court judge has ruled that the University of California regents may not discharge members of the communist party from the teaching faculty, thus forcing the employment at public expense of teachers who openly work for the violent overthrow of our government.

It is as though a man owned a house in a city where the courts ruled that he had to allow thieves and robbers to enter his house at will. Under such circumstances his title to the house and property would be meaningless.

By this decision, the courts have completely usurped the authority of the r ents of the State Legislature. It the ruling is upheld by the United States Supreme Court, tax-supported colleges and universities throughout the country will become open propaganda forums for the avowed enemies of freedom and of our Republic.

No right of free speech or association guarantees an individual a tax-paid job. Congress, which has the power to limit the jurisdiction of the courts, should act to protect the rights of the peoples' representatives to determine how public funds should be spent. HLH

SEEK NEUTRAL NEUTRALISM:

U.S. Longshoremen Paralyze First Swedish Ship As Warning Against $45 Million Aid To Hanoi

New York: — The quality of their mercy did not quite strain the Swedish diplomats who came to watch our picket line. The rains fell in sheets of raw sleet upon us as we tramped the edge of the West Side Pier. Idle before us was the Swedish-American luxury liner M.S. Gripsholm, paralyzed that morning of Dec. 8 by a boycott of chanting longshoremen and one newsman in dark glasses who proudly joined these workingmen in their dissent against Sweden's "loan" and gifts of $45 million to Hanoi.

I walked arm in arm with longshoremen's leader Johnny Bowers at the entrance of Pier 97. Above us hulked the Gripsholm. Behind us marched hundreds of dock- wallopers. They were not unloading the cruise ship. Their hands were filled. Their fists curled around sticks of placards reading – so all could see: "American Tourist Dollars Spent on M.S. Gripsholm Could End Up In Hanoi."

"M.S. Gripsholm Crew: — Swedish Money Used for Loans To Communist Hanoi. Tell Them to Stay Neutral... Don't let Hanoi Build Coffins for American GIs..."

"We Protest Swedish Kronor to Hanoi to Buy Bullets to Kill American GIs."

"Sweden Can Help in a Humanitarian Cause. Tell Hanoi to Free American POWs on a Fair Exchange Basis."

These were the words of working people. Theirs, too, is the right to dissent. Whether they are in the majority or not, they have resolved not to be silent. The Gripsholm came in early that morning. It was moored safely. But no baggage, no freight was trundled off by members of the International Longshoremen's Assn. Local 824, AFL— CIO. No one wanted anyone hurt. But no one wanted to help the Swedish government make a profit which will be shared with the forces of Hanoi. There were strong men on that line behind Johnny Bowers. Have you ever seen strong men weep? Well, some of them have lost sons under Vietcong fire. The rains came on the docks. But they did not hide the tears.

This picketing is the first warning in action. It brought out John Fraser, the Swedish American Line's Chief Executive officer for the U.S. and Canada.

He and "Johnny" talked quietly. Yes, said Mr. Fraser, he would communicate Mr. Bowers' message to the Swedish Ambassador in Washington. He would report that the longshoremen meant business. He understood – as did Stockholm's diplomats here-- that next would come to the boycotting of two big Swedish freighters carrying Volvos and Saabs, the small cars which bring so many American dollars into the Swedish economy– giving it the kind of surplus which makes possible a $45 million "aid" program for North Vietnam. Then would come to the full boycott of all Swedish vessels in Atlantic, Gulf and Great Lake ports– and finally economic war on Sweden itself.

This could hurt. The Volvos are made near Goteborg, Sweden. Some 600 subcontractors are kept busy all over the "neutral" nation, whose 42- year- old, jogging, tennis-playing sports fan premier, Olof Palme, has said publicity he prefers the Community dictatorship in Hanoi to the U.S. supported regime in Saigon.

The U.S. is closing our 172-year- old consulate in Gotesborg– and the protests from that port city are loud. But it is from that harbor that much of the rehabilitation cargos will go to Haiphong.

And when ILA executive Vice President John Bowers returned to his headquarters, he found Ivar Noren, the Swedish Embassy's labor attache. Mr. Noren talked for a long time. Don't pay attention to journalists, said he, referring to the newsmen in Sweden as well as this columnist. Point is, every time Swedish Prime Minister Palme, or his Foreign Minister Torsten Nilsson denounce the U.S. and pledge money in $15 million blocks to Hanoi, Sweden's foreign office, consuls, information centers and labor leaders phone, write and cable that they have been misquoted by the American wire service, by Reuters and "even the New York Times."

The Swedish labor attache said that the money now going to Hanoi was for "humanitarian needs, you know, medicine." Mr. Bowers, from the old Hell's Kitchen but softspoken, asked if any of the Swedish humanitarian money would be earmarked for American prisoners of war who were in the concentration camps "in the vicinity" of Hanoi. Mr. Noren replied, well, he could not say that. Mr. Bowers asked if any of the medicines would be given to the American prisoners, Mr. Noren, said he could not give such assurance.

And Johnny said, what about the list of U.S. prisoners of war? If Sweden is so neutral could they not get a reciprocal humanitarian gesturyin return for the $45 million and convince the recipient of "your generosity" to tell American women if they are widows or wives? Mr. Noren averred that he could do little about this. And Mr. Bowers asked how could your government prefer this dictatorship to friendship with America; how could Sweden's laborite prime minister make common cause with a dictatorship which crushes unions and kills off labor leaders and prohibits strikes? The labor attache could say little.

After 45 minutes Sweden's Socialist- labor diplomat left in anger. He went out into the rain. But it was not sleeting in Johnny Bowers' office. Those were tears "Johnny" saw on the cheeks of the longshoreman who had sat through he interview with him. The fellow dockwalloper had lost a son in the blood laden rice paddies.

He could see nothing humanitarian in the labor atache's swiftly retreating figure.

Ann Landers

Former Wife Adopted Parents of Ex-Spouse

Dear Ann Landers: What can I do about an ex-wife who invites herself to my parent's home and tries to get herself included in all the family affairs?

I would like to see my parents once in a while but I'm afraid to go over there because my former wife is always hanging around. I am uncomfortable in her presence and would travel fifty miles to avoid her. She still wears her wedding ring and acts as if she is married to me.

It isn't as if she is an orphan, Ann. This woman has parents in town but she rarely sees them. She prefers mine. It has made an orphan out of me, however, and I resent it. Any suggestions? --Fed Up

Dear Fed: Instead of dropping in on your parents, let them know in advance when you plan to see them, then call before you set out. If your former wife is visiting when you call they should tell her you are coming and suggest that she return another time. If they feel they cannot do this and she is present when you arrive say, "I'll see you another time, folks." --and leave.

Dear Ann Landers: My daughter is one of the brightest, most talented young women in this town, but she is no beauty. Cora is flat chested, broadbeamed and she walks like a duck. Eight years ago Cora married Lester. He is so handsome that heads turn when he enters a room. Lester was completely faithful to my daughter for about three months, then he started to disappear from his bed at 2:00 A.M. Sometimes he'd slip back at 6:00 Other times she'd meet him in the kitchen at 6:30 when she went to prepare breakfast. Last year two married women offered to leave their husbands for him. Yesterday a school teacher came to see my daughter and asked her to free Lester so they could find true happiness together. When Cora told Lester he could go if he wanted to, he replied, "That girl is nuts. I hardly know her."

My daughter is not concerned about any of this. She says he is a wonderful husband and a fine father to their three children. I knew Lester's father and two of his uncles. They were the same way. Lester also has a brother who is a chaser. Can it be an illness that runs in families? Please tell me what I can do about it.

Connecticut Woe

Dear Woe: Chasing isn't inherited, although it can run in families. No doubt Lester got his ideas fom the invironment he grew up in. As for what you can do about it, the answer is nothing. It is not your problem and apparently your daughter is coping with it. So keep your oar out of her water, Mother.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 14-year-old boy who acts dumb and feels like everybody is looking at him and thinking "What a knot-head!" I say stupid things and then I could kick myself. I do dumb things to get attention and when I get the attention I am embarrassed and wish they would look at somebody else. As you can see, I'm a nut. I feel awkward and ugly and my face has the beginning of acne and my hands and feet are too big for the rest of me. Please tell me what it takes to get over these faults. --Mr. Nothing

Dear Mr.: About four years --maybe less. But be patient, pal, you're more normal than you think.

Christmas can be a problem. What can you give the person who has everything? Ann Landers' new book, "Truth Is Stranger," is available in book stores. It can also be obtained by writing Prentice Hall, Englewood Cliffs, New Jersey. Price, $4.95.

CANDY CANES arranged by Mrs. Gene Collins, entwined with greenery over the fireplace mantel, one of many decorations to be found in the Collins home, 710 Mimosa. The home will be one of four to visited on the Women's Civic Club Christmas Home tour, Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. Other decorations, many of them handmade, will include Christmas tree with handmade ornaments, a two 12-inch ball made of boxwood foliage and trimmed in red, together with decorations in a recreation basement for teenagers, and a lighted trellis made of greenery.

Sikeston Little Theatre Opens Season With Christie's 'Mousetrap'

By LYNN COLLEY

Theatre - goers appeared to thoroughly enjoy the opening production of Little Theatre's 1969-70 season last evening. The local group presented Agatha Christie's murder - mystery, the MOUSETRAP to a crowd of approximately 150.

Ricky Venson, a newcomer to Little Theatre, certainly commanded the stage during his scenes. Venson did a remarkable job of his portrayal of Christopher Wren, the young man wo is trying to become an architect. The "Tamest" of the house guests, Wren falls in love with everything and anybody in sight, the four - poster bed, the kitchen, and proves that he is even man enough to accept the fact that he cannot have chintz roses on his bedspread. As the slightly effinimate Wren, young Venson will be remember for many seasons.

Equally convincing in his portrayal of the policeman is Mike Long. In the guest house to investigate a recent murder, Long disrupts the "normal" events. Although he appears rather young to be a policeman, his thorough yet casual manner more than compensate for his age. His inquisitive manner is excellently brought out in his cross examination of the guests.

Barbara Gentry, as Miss Caswell, interprets her role of a young lady with a mysterious past quite well. Miss Caswell, it appears knows more than she tells, and piece by piece she reveals her knowledge of the murder. Caustic to those she dislikes, cool to those she can tolerate, she delights in irritating the other guests.

Rev. Joe Black, no stranger to little Theatre goers, proves he can play almost any role. Quite a switch from Peter Marshall to the uninvited guest whose mysterious mannerisms confound everyone. Black is able to convince the audience that he might be a re-incarnated Don Juan, a smuggler, a conninsiour of fine foods, or even a murderer. Black changes character almost as the mood strikes him, much to the delight of the audience.

Lynn Shy, appearing on stage for the second time, does a very convincing job in his characterization of the guest house owner, suspicous that the guests plan to leave in the middle of the night with every sheet and piece of silver in the house. Shy appeared to be rather nervous at the beginning of the play but quickly overcame this as the other characters gave him something to "put his teeth into."

Allan Harris, another Little Theatre favorite, is very good as Major Medcalf, Harris' interpretation of his character as a cool reserved, and always completely "under control" man, makes Medcalf suspect immediately to the murder that has occurred. Harris makes Medcalf into the type of character that a family wouldn't mind having for a long visit.

Jo Anne Williamson handles the character of Molly Ralston quite well. Molly, like the other characters, knows more than she is telling and Jo Ann is able to string the audience along as she unfolds her true nature. A newcomer, Jo Ann has learned well the ways of the stage.

Elizabeth Nall plays Mrs. Boyle ... the murder victum. Liz does a convincing job of making the other characters as well as most of the audience dislike her hauty, demanding and aristocratic nature. Also a newcomer to little theatre, Liz will certainly be seen in future plays.

The sound and lighting crew are to be commended for a job well done. In a mystery both can be a valuable asset.

The state was well done and seemed to set the mood for the play. Myra DaVault and Joel Allen, co-directors, both saw their week of hard work repaid tonight as the audience sat quietly attempting to decide from every clue, who the murderer actually was and when he would strike again. I believe it can be safely said that very few people in the audience realized how the play would end, and that appears to be a good sign for a mystery.

The play will be presented again tonight and Saturday night at 8:00 p.m. in the Middle School Auditorium.

Lord Harlech, With Daughters, Marries Unconventional (?)

LONDON (AP) — Lord Harlech's long-haired, frilly-shirted sons and maxi-skirted, bead-festooned daughters virtually stole the show today at their father's wedding to American fashion editor Pamela Colin.

Ranging in age from 27 to 14, Francis, Alice, Victoria, Jane, and Julian Orsmby-Gore stood out amid the conventionally clad guests from the worlds of politics, diplomacy, society and show business. Princess Margaret, her husband, Lord Snowdown, and former Prime Minister Harold MacMillan headed the guest list.

The 33-year-old bride was among the conventionally dressed, wearing an anklelength white gown in Grecian style. Her father, New York lawyer Ralph D. Colin, gave her away.

It was the second marriage for Harlech, 51. His first wife died in an automobile accident in 1967.

The Gospel Visitor

By: REEDUS M. BAUGHER

We have been pointing out in this series of lessons, that the New Testament church is different from every other religion and system. Thus far, we have seen it is different from: (1) Paganism, because of its belief and service to one Supreme God. And, (2) Judaism, mainly because of its belief in Jesus Christ, as the Son of God. Today, we will notice that it is different from: (3) Catholicism, mainly because, of its belief in the all sufficiency of the Bible, as the word of God.

The Catholic church is the result of departure from the faith. The inspired apostle Paul wrote years before the Catholic church began, and said, "Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils; Speaking lies in hypocrisy; having their conscience seared with a hot iron; Forbidding to marry, and commanding to obstain from meats, which God hath created to be received with thanksgiving of them which believe and know the truth." (1 Tim. 4:1-3)

The Catholic church teaches, "That the scriptures alone cannot be a sufficient guide and rule of faith." (This statement taken from one of their own books, "Faith of our Fathers, pp. 89, 90) The claim is made by them, that the church has authority to decide truth, and make new revelations. To them the tradition of "fathers" is equal to the scriptures. Contrary to these ideas, the Bible teaches that God's word is not only sifficient, but also complete. "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be throughly furnished unto all good works." (2 Tim. 3:16 -17) We learn from Jude, that "the faith was once delivered," (Jude 3) And from Peter, that the "divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness." (2 Pet. 1:3) Paul said, he wrote by "revelation," and when we read we can understand. (Eph. 3:3-4) All human additions and changes are forbidden. (Gal. 1:6-9) All commandments and traditions of men is vain worship. (Matt. 15:90

The major conflict centers around the all sufficiency of the Bible as opposed to "authority" of the Catholic church; this authority being invested in the "pope" as the head and spokesman for that body. Jesus said, "all power (authority) is given unto me in heaven and in earth." (Matt. 28:19) No room here for authority to anyone before or after Christ.

Briggs, Metz On SEMO St. Varsity

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The Sikeston area youths, Larry Briggs of Charleston and Don Metz of Oran are member s of the varsity basketball squad at Southeast Missouri State College.

Briggs, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eunis Briggs of 508 Lincoln, Charleston, has been a starter in each of Southeast Missouri's games so far this season.

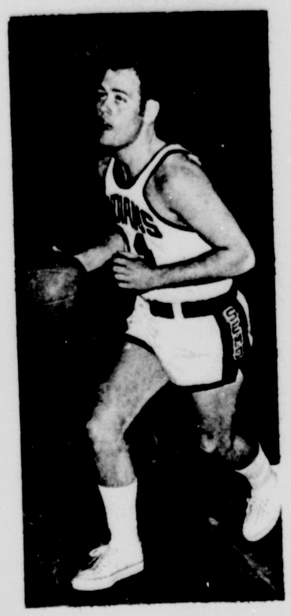

The 6-2 junior physical education major is currently the team's leading rebounder, averaging 8 caroms per game. He is also averaging 8 points per game, with his highest single output of the year 12 points in Southeast Missouri's 88-86 win over the University of Missouri -- St. Louis.

Briggs, who plays at either forward or center, appeared in 9 games for Southeast Missouri lat season, some of them as a starter. During the season he averaged 5.8 rebounds and 7.5 points per game.

Metz, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Metz of 320 Mulberry, Oran, is always one of the first players called upon when Indian coach Charles Parsley has to go to the bench for a guard. He has appeared in two games this year for the Indians.

Last season the 5-11 senior made 15 appearances, scoring 31 points. He is majoring in physical education and minoring in biology.

During the spring Metz is a regular on the Southeast Missouri baseball team while Briggs devotes his efforts to running track.

Senators Wager on Orange Bowl

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Orange Bowl game on New Year's Day may cost Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott (R-Penn) a Pennsylvania turkey if the Missouri Tigers beat Penn State.

Scott challenged Senator Stuart Symington (D-Mo) to match the turkey by wagering a Missouri product on the outcome of the game. Symington accepted the challenge and countered with a Missouri ham.

In his letter accepting Scott's challenge, Symington said: "In that Missouri is one of the top-ranked turkey producing states as well as the producer of world celebrated hams, we can't imagine a Pennsylvania turkey being the equivalent of a Missouri country ham."

"Nevertheless, with full confidence in the University of Missouri Tigers and recognizing that you have to support Penn State, I accept your challenge and we look forward to eating that Pennsylvania turkey with great pleasure."

Symington added, "It will indeed be an exciting engagement and may the best team, Missouri, win."

Scott, in making the challenge, said: "Pennsylvanians and a great many sportswriters believe Penn State to be the number one team in the Nation." Scott added that he is confident that Penn State will officially become the Nation's Number one team "after it defeats Missouri and if Notre Dame beats Texas in the Cotton Bowl."

But, Senator Symington, who saw Missouri beat Air Force, Nebraska and Oklahoma in Columbia, Missouri, this year, believes the Tigers will prove Senator Scott wrong.

McCovey, Top NL Slugger In '69

CINCINNATI (AP) — Willie McCovey of the jsan Francisco Giants and the Cincinnati Reds took slugging honors in the National League during the 1969 season.

Officials "miscellaneous records" released today showed McCovey, the league's most Valuable Player, won the individual title for the second straight year. His hits accounted for 322 total bases in 491 times at bat for a slugging average of .656. That was well ahead of Atlanta's Hank Aaron who had a .607 average on 332 total bases in 547 times at bat.

The Reds took the team slugging title with 2,379 total bases in 5,634 times at bat for a .422 average. The Pittsburgh Pirates, who nosed out the Reds for the team batting championship, were second in slugging with 2,238 total bases in 5,626 times at bat for a .398 average.

The Reds had four players among the top 15 individual sluggers and the Pirates had two.

Lee May of Cincinnati was sixth with .529; Tony Perez finished in a tie with Rusty Staub of Montreal for seventh with .526; Pete Rose was ninth with .512 and Johnny Bench was 12th with .487.

The Pirates grabbed off the fourth and fifth positions with Willie Stargell at .556 and Roberto Clemente at .544.

McCovey also entered his name into the major league record books by receiving 45 intentional walks.

Aron's 332 total bases led the league and it was the eighth time he has done that—a major league record.

Bobby Bonds of San Francisco set a major league record of striking out 187 times.

Another player who led the league in a category which he would just as soon forget was Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs. He grounded into 21 double plays. Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals was the top man among regulars in avoiding hitting into double plays. He did it only twice.

Jim Wynn of Houston drew 148 walks and that tied a National League record set by Eddie Stanky of 1945 Brooklyn Dodgers.

Ron Hunt of San Francisco was the favorite hit-by-pitcher target. He was hit by pitches 25 times.

In all, the National League set 25 League records and 38 Major League marks. Some, of course, were merely extensions of records previously set by the same player or team.

Wayne Granger, Cincinnati relief pitcher, set one by appearing in 90 games.

The .242 batting average compiled by the New York Mets was a record low for a National League pennant winner.

There also was a league record for home runs with the bases filled. National Leaguers did it 40 times during the season.

Wave, Lions In Title Bout

CAMPBELL — Malden and Senath - Hornersville pulled out victories in last nights semi-finals of the Campbell Junior Varsity Tournament and will battle for the little Saturday night. In the first game, it was Malden gliding over Campbell 78-56, and Senath-Hornersville over Holcomb 35-19, in the low scoring nightcap.

Holcomb and Campbell will battle it out Saturday night at 6:30 p.m. for third place honors.

The Malden JV's seemed to have everything going for them as they controlled the game from the beginning as they built up a 31-10 first quarter lead. The host Campbell squad just couldn't get anything rolling as the Jr. Wave controlled the boards and out shot the Campbell's from all over the court.

Malden, with five players reaching the double figures, dominated the scoring with Lea connecting for 18, Dortch 15, Sherrod 14, Bowman 13, and Halford 12.

For Campbell, Carter netted 16, and teammate Bradon 10, in Campbell's loosing effert.

Holcomb managed only 19 points to Senath- Hornersville's 35, as their championship hopes fell. Senath- Hornersville's fine shooting and control of the rebounds handed the JV Lions a chance for top honors in Saturday's matdh. The Holcomb squad quickly fell behind in the first half where they trailed 19-5, and were never able to overcome the deficit.

Scoring for Senath-Hornersville fell into the hands of Christionan with 13, and Moore following with 11.

Holcomb's honors went to Reeves with 8, as Haris aidded with 5.

Scoring:

SENATH-HORNERSVILLE (35)
Moore 11, Christian 13, Hardin 2, Lincoln 3, Layne 4, McNave 2, TEAM TOTALS: FG-16; FT-3; PF-5.

Sports Corner

By Ron Jaynes Sports Editor

We set out on our second attempt at predicting the winners on the hardwoods, going into tonight's round ith a .818 mark on 18 of 22 calls.

When we miss... we really do... ask the laughing fans at Cape Girardeau Central; Puxico; Clarkton; and Senath- Hornersville.

Enough for that...

Here goes tonight's calls.

BELL CITY AT BERNIE --The Mules seemingly have shed their early jinx and have been kicking high lately. Bell City could be tough... but we'll go with the host. Bernie 63, Bell City 49.

CAPE CENTRAL AT SIKESTON --- Experience, height and a big desire to topple the Bulldogs will go along way for the Bengals tonight... all the way to a victory. Cape 66, Sikeston 55.

ZALMA AT OAK RIDGE--- Chalk up another victory for Oak Ridge... number eight. Oak Ridge 72, Zalma 60.

SOUTH PEMISCOT AT COOTER -- The South will rise again after its upset of Tuesday evening. South P. 63, Cooter 49.

CHARLESTON AT PUXICO -- It might seem we have something against the Indians... but we'll go against them again tonight. Charleston 89, Puxico 84.

HOLCOMB AT NORTH PEMISCOT -- Another victory for the North... North Pemiscot 66, Holcomb 51.

EAST PRAIRIE AT DEXTER ---We might be wrong... but, Dexter 67, East Prairie 55.

NEELYVILLE AT TWIN RIVERS --- Its another victory for coach Charles Moffitt's Tigers... Neelyville 78, Twin Rivers 45.

KENNETT AT MALDEN --- Its hard to tell what will happen when these two Dunklin County rivals battle ... we'll say... Malden 71, Kennett 58.

CLARKTON AT SOUTHLAND ---The home court advantage will settle this battle... Southland 64, Clarkton 55.

ADVANCE AT NOTRE DAME--- This could be the first.. defeat for the Hornets... but we think not. Advance 70, Notre Dame 59.

DELTA AT ILLMO- SCOTT CITY --- It'll take some big guns to bring down the Bobcats this season... the Rams have none. Delta 91, I-SC 55.

GIDEON AT NEW MADRID --- After the scare Risco gave the Indians Tuesday night... the Indians will be ready for the Bulldogs. New Madrid 69, Gideon 50.

WOODLAND AT KELLY --- It takes some doing for the Cardinals to remain undefeated as the Hawks can pull the surprise... we see... Woodland 72, Kelly 55.

DELTA C-7 AT SENATH --- The Chargers will remain undefeated. It'll be hard for the Lions to post its second upset in one week... but watch out. Delta C-7 70, Senath 55.

HAYTI NORTH AT PARMA --- It takes some effort to defeat the Pirates at home... we think the Indians can generate that... but will they... NO Parma 66, Hayti N. 64.

POPLAR BLUFF AT SPRINGFIELD --- Glendale has been strong in recent years... Bluff is in one of its strongest... we'll go with... Poplar Bluff 73, Glendale 55.

PORTAGEVILLE AT MATTHEWS --- This loss tonight will equal the Pirates three year loss total... It'll be the fifth defeat for the Pirates, unless they can get going. Portageville 59, Matthews 54.

If anyone finds a schedule of the following teams... Please forward it to us... It must be the one's we've lost or failed to receive.

Here they are... Richland; Lilbourn; Poplar Bluff; Portageville; Steele; Matthews; and Lilbourn.

If someone would be so kind as to forward these to us... we'll be grateful.

AFL Rookie Honor To A-State's Bergey

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Bergey, Cincinnati's aggressive middle linebacker, was selected today as the American Football League's Defensive Rookie of the Year, giving the young Bengals a sweep of 1969 freshman honors.

Bergey, a 240- pound bruiser from little Arkansas State, beat out three other first- year standouts in a close balloting race, and followed teammate Greg Cook into The Associated Press awards circle. Cook, the Bengals' gifted quarterback, was named the league's top offensive rookie Thursday.

A panel of sports writers and sportscasters - three from each AFL city- gave Bergey 10 votes, to seven apiece for Kansas City cornerback Jim Marsalis and Miami end Bill Stanfill, and six for Denver cornerback Bill Thompson.

Oran, Charleston Win; Battle For Championship

EAST PRAIRIE — In the East Prairie junior varsity Tournament semi- finals held here last night, Oran and Charleston came up with victories and headed for the championship match this Saturday at 8:00. Charleston defeated the New Madrid squad in the early game 52-45. Two teams of Eagles clashed in the later game, with Oran outscoring East Prairie 44-43. The two loosers, New Madrid and East Prairie clash for consolation honors in the 6:30 game Saturday.

Both teams showed good defensive efferts in the contest, but edged East Prairie in points by field goals, 14-10. It was a close game all the way down to the last quarter where Oran increased its three point lead to 11 at the end of the game.

Taylor and LeGrand wery the top scorers for the Oran Eagles with 13 and 11 points respectively.

East Prairie's scoring honors went to J. Davis with 9, and A. Davis with 7, for the Eagles loosing effert.

The second contest, between Charleston and New Madrid also turned into a close match, as the Bluejays held a four point lead at half time. Charleston held the edge in field goals as they hit 24 to New Madrid's 14, but New Madrid held the edge from the charity line as they outscored Charleston 11-4.

Alvin Pierce was the big gun for Charleston with 18 points, with Callell following with 11, and Smith adding 10.

For New Madrid, Donald Tucker connected for an impressive 24 points with teammate Chuck Williams netting 11.

Devine Honored As Coach of Year

ST. LOUIS AP — Teammate Irv Good accepted the "Old Pro" award for guard Ken Gray as the St. Louis football Cardinals were honored Thursday night at the Quarterback Club's annual dinner.

Gray, an 11th - season Cardinal from Howard Payne University, underwent knee surgery at Barnes Hospital earlier in the day for repair of torn ligaments. He will be lost for the season's final two games.

Honored as the Cardinals' most valuable player by his teammates was linebacker Larry Stallings.

Defensive end Chuck Walker received the Quarterback Club's first Jimmy Conzelman award for "greatest effort," and cornerback Roger Wehrli was cited as Cardinal rookie of the year.

Other awards went to the University of Missouri's Dan Devine as college coach of the year and to Cid Edwards, a running back, as most improved Cardinal player.

About 650 attended the dinner. Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the National Football League, was the principal speaker.

Liberty Bowl---Sellout

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Colorado matches its awesome ground game, led by All-American tailback Bob Anderson, with Alabama's dangerous passing attach Saturday in the 11th annual Liberty Bowl football game.

The Buffaloes, 7-3, are onepoint favorites to hand Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant his third consecutive bowl defeat. The kickoff is set for 1:20 p.m. EST before a sellout crowd of 51,000 and a nationwide television audience.

The Crimson Tide posted a 6-4 regular season record, finishing in the second division of the Southeastern Conference. It was the worst season for Ala-ama since 1958, Bryant's first as head coach at his alma mater.

Saturday's date marks the 23rd bowl appearance for Alabama, most of any team in the nation. The Tide has a 12-8-2 bowl record after losing 20-16 to Texas A&M in the Cotton Bowl two years ago and 35-10 to Missouri in last year's Gator Bowl.

"We ordinarily think of a bowl game as a reward for a good job, but at Memphis there will be honor and pride at stake and we are going to try and do something about it," Bryant said. "These seniors fp,o)entitled to more than they got from me this year."

Anderson, a 208-pound senior, ran for 954 yards and scored 19 touchdowns for the Buffs, who handed Orange Bowl-bound Missouri its only defeat, 31-24. Colorado's losses came at the hands of Oklahoma, Nebraska and Penn State.

Alabama lost to Tennessee, Louisiana State, Auburn and Vanderbilt.

Junior quarterback Scott Hunter already holds most of Alabama's passing records established by such notable Crimson Tide performers as Joe Namath, Harry Gilmer and Steve Sloan.

Hunter completed 157 of 266 passes for 2,188 yards, lifting his two-year total to 3,659 yards in the air.

Alabama arrived in Memphis Thursday. Colorado got into town on Sunday. Both teams will hold final workouts this afternoon.

New Madrid Board Will Inspect School

NEW MADRID — New Madrid County R-1 enlarged school board will inspect the facility of the North County Technical School in St. Louis county, Monday.

The school has been in operation two years and has been recommended by the state department of education as one of the outstanding schools of its type.

Purpose of the visit by the board is to obtain ideas for the planning and construction of a proposed $3 million technical school near New Madrid.

Federal funds have already been approved by the Economic Development Administration for 60 per cent of the proposed cost of $2,800,000 for the school.

A site of approximately 90 acres, at a cost of $1,500 per acre, has been contracted for by the board.

The new school will be one-half mile west of the intersection of highway 61 and interstate 55 about three miles south of New Madrid.

Preliminary plans call for 20 classrooms and related shops with 92,000 square feet of floor space.

The law of gravitation is the force which controls the movement of heavenly bodies.

Eastern Star Officers Installed

BELL CITY--The installation of officers of Sapphire chapter of Bell City was held Wednesday evening after the opening and closing of the chapter.

The installation ceremony began with Mrs. Otto Lape, Victory Chapter, Marble Hill, presenting the Bible ceremony and Brady Henson and Phil Stephens, members of Boy Scout troop 178, paying tribute to the United States flag. The audience sang "God Bless America".

The welcome was given by Mrs. Frank Gilles and Cleatus Henson, retiring worthy matron and patron. They introduced these new officers:

Mrs. Morgan English, Matron; Otto Lape, Patron; Mrs.L. A. Perry, marshal; Mrs. Joe Redman, chaplain; Mrs. Wayne French, organist; and Mrs. R. H. Phelps, secretary.

After the installation, Mrs. Gilles presented the Star Points with their colors.

A 100 PERCENT CONTRIBUTION, amounting to $565 to the United Fund, by the Sikeston Regional Diagnostic Clinic, enabled the organization to reach the 80 per cent mark. Most of the employes were present. They include front row, from left, Joe Chandler, Ladelle Berkbigler, Alleyne Condray, Judith Lopp, Irene Pearson, Irene Nelson, Joy Ward, Irene Jordan, Teresa Evans, Olive Epperly, Mary Champion, Thelma Montgomery, Jerris Spicer, Mary Martin; back row, Bill Paylor, Carl Chaney, Lorene Allen, Naomi Beard, Dottie Wathen, Dave Ragan, director, Vickie Clark, Sylvia Wilkerson, Mattie Moring, Frances McCracken, Evelyn Boyer, Lola Nelson, Glenda Duke, Ida Lou Hill, Nell Bennett, Norma Wolf and Essie Denton.

FARM MANAGEMENT

By RICHARD F. McINTOSH
Area Farm Management Agent

BENTON - Several farmers have indicated that they plan to change from four-row to six or eight - row equipment next year. The major reasons given for changing are: the shortage of good labor, higher labor cost larger farming operations anc timeliness.

One of the questions they often ask is can I justify changing to larger equipment?

Since no two farming operations are exactly alike, there just aren't any stock answers that can be given to this question.

Although there are not any stock answers that can be applied to all farms, the same basic economic principles do apply.

If the only reason for changing to larger equipment is just to replace labor, the analysis is relatively simple.

Net profit will increase if the added machinery and equipment costs are less than the costs of the labor replaced.

For example, replacing one full - time worker who is presently earning $3,500 a year would be profitable as long as the added cost of owning and operating the larger machinery and equipment is less than $3,500 a year.

Although this type of analysis is rather straight forward, it does require some time and thought. On most farms a new piece of machinery and equipment will be used for four or eight years. Therefore, when comparing the cost of owning and operating machinery and equipment which has a four to eight year life to labor cost, you should not only consider what the present labor costs are but also, what the labor may cost during the next four to eight years.

For example you may be paying $3,500 for a full-time worker now but if you expect to be paying $4,500 four years from now this very definitely affects your analysis.

Every farmer knows that timeliness means money and that failure to get a crop planted on time or cultivated on time can greatly reduce yield and net profit.

If being more timely (doing the job at the right time) is the major reason for changing from four to six or eight - row equipment, then the value of the increased yields (output) must pay for the added machinery and equipment cost.

Perhaps this can best be illustrated by an example. If a farmer changes from four - row to six - row equipment and his machinery and equipment costs increases $1,200 a year, then the value of the increased production would have to be at least $1,200 each year.

If he was farming 600 acres of corn his yield would are to increase about two bushels per acre.

Everyone realizes that it is difficult to place a dollar figure on the value of timeliness. However, if you are contemplating changing the size of your equipment primarily for this reason, then you must consciously or unconsciously arrive at a dollar figure.

If the reason for changing to larger equipment is both to reduce labor costs and to improve timeliness, the analysis involves nothing more than comparing the added machinery and equipment costs to the reduced labor costs plus the value of the increased production made possible by being more timely.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

Some farmers can change from four-row to six or eight - row equipment without increasing their machinery and equipment investment significantly.

However, other farmers may have to invest a substantial amount of new capital. If this is borrowed capital, then the repayment schedule should be carefully considered. Although a piece of equipment may have a useful life of 8 years, it may be necessary to pay for it within 4 years.

You could have a situation where it would be profitable to change to larger machinery and equipment but you simply can't afford to because the repayment schedule exceeds your repayment capacity.

In final analysis each farmer must consider his own situation. He must determine what cost will be increased, what cost will be decreased, whether yields will increase, stay the same or decrease and last but not least his ability to pay for the added investment.

Painting of Bridge Halted Until Spring

W. H. Shaw, district engineer for the Missouri State highway department, announced today that painting on the route 74 Mississippi river bridge at Cape Girardeau has been suspended until next spring when weather conditions will be more favorable.

When work resumes, the state's contractor is again expected to provide clean- up stations at both ends of the bridge to remove fresh paint from passing vehicles.

Shaw estimated two weeks painting will be required to complete the project.

Heuiser, Eastern Missouri state farm management award honorees; Ken Williams, administrative assistant, Sikeston Production Credit association; and Milton Geary, representative, St. Louis National Stockyards Company.

Farm Awards Presented

BENTON--Mr. and Mrs. Arnold B. Heuiser, Sikeston area dairy and grain farm family, were one of 22 farm families in Missouri who received the state farm management award.

Two farm families from New Madrid county received awards. Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Scott, Jr., of Sikeston received state recognition and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bird of Sikeston received county recognition.

Sponsors of the program were the St. Louis National Stock Yards, and Production Credit Associations. Those recognized were selected by County Committees and were judged by a State Committee of Extension Personnel and Representatives of Production Credit Associations.

A recognition program was sponsored by the St. Louis National Stockyards Company Production Credit Associations of Eastern Missouri; with the University of Missouri extension division at Columbia cooperating.

Mr. and Mrs. Heuiser operate a 278-acre dairy and grain farm west of Sikeston. They have a 50-cow dairy herd which produced 12,200 pounds of milk per cow last year.

Efforts to continue to increase milk production per cow included the use of A1 sires exclusively, stricter culling, and higher quality summer forage production by irrigation.

The Heuisers have used sprinkler irrigation for forage crops for livestock and grain crops.

Land grading for drainage and irrigation was begun in 1966 in order to improve the drainage and to increase the acreage which could be irrigated. Since then, 150 acres have been graded. Plans are to continue the land grading program until the farm is graded.

Managing the dairy herd, producing the grain and forage crops, and grading land during slack work seasons requires the labor of Arnold Heuiser and his full-time employee, Roger Tippy.

Good crop yields have been obtained for the past several years by using good production practices, recommended crop varieties, and adequate soil fertility. Corn yields have been around 125 bu. per acre; wheat, 40 bu. per acre; soybeans, 36 bu. per acre; and cotton, between 1¼ and 1½ bales per acre.

The Heuiser's completed building a brick all-electric home in 1967.

The Heuiser's have three children: Kevin Dale, 11; Elizabeth Lynn, 8; and Patricia Anne, 6.

The family is active in church and community affairs. The children are 4-H club members and/or members of Boy Scouts or Brownies.

The Heuiser's are members of the Trinity Baptist church of Sikeston.

Cable TV Franchise Sought in Charleston

CHARLESTON — David Blanton and John Hux both of Sikeston met with the city council Tuesday night to request a franchise for See- More Cable Television company.

They stated that the city would receive pay pro- rated on the number of houses connected at $1 per house plus five per cent of the gross service charged paid by users.

The initial tap- in and connection charge would be $10 with a monthly rate of $5.

Stations to be received would be those on the ABC, CBS, and NBC networks, an educational station and a local outlet.

The request was taken under advisement.

The council approved a request from Leonard Braden for permission to remove the curb on Franklin Street in front of the Cindrella Dress Shop to allow diagonal parking, providing he make the parking area wide enough to allow cars to be pulled out of the street and put asphalt on the parking area.

City Manager Richard Martin informed the council of requests he has received to employ a full time dogcatcher. Action on the request was tabled.

A proposal from the city manager that the city adopt a more up- to- date gas and plumbing code was tabled. Council members said further study should be made.

A resolution thanking Joe Harvey for serving a term on the Housing Authority was adopted.

City Manager Martin informed the council that Sam Smith, engineer for a proposed airport, has agreed to complete work on the airport engineering report, if the city will enter into a contract with him and pay him $200. There will be no additional cost until after the bond issue and only then if it passes and he proceeds with the preliminary design plans. The council authorized Mayor Joe W. Layton to execute a contract between S. H. Smith and the city.

Action was tabled on the city managers' proposal that the council considered purchasing a lot east of Hequenbourg pond from Bob Marshall for $2,000 and a eight- acre site north of Reeves subdivision from J. L. Byrd for $500 per acre.

The council was agreeable that a final notice be sent out with water bills informing people, who still owe for the prior month, that their water will be shut off if not paid by 21 and a $3 fee will be charged for turning water back on when the bill is paid in full.

The council authorized Mayor Layton to execute a contract between the city and the state highway commission providing for installing, operation and maintenance of school crossings.

Individuals who have trailer permits that are due for renewal will be sent a letter notifying them that their permit has expired and must be renewed within a 30- day period. The site will be inspected to determine if a permit should be renewed and recommendation for or against renewal will be sent to the council.

Free parking from Saturday through Christmas on Charleston streets will be allowed providing merchants and their employes do not abuse the privilege.

Further study will be made on a request to extend sewer lines to the Dearmont Oliver and Sam Story residence. The city manager will make the study and present the figures at next meeting.

The city attorney is to prepare an easement from Wyman Beasley for access to the park south of Interstate 57 for next month's meeting.

The council approved payment of November bills, approved the preliminary plans for the proposed city hall and announced that bids will be taken on a plaque for the Dr. E. Charles Rowling park.

Interstate 55 North May Be Completed in 1971

JEFFERSON CITY — Progress on Interstate 55 between Fruitland and Festus is gradually falling into place. Final right-of- way plans have now been completed, according to a report issued by Chief Engineer M. J. Snider.

It is now believed that the 67.5 miles of the unpaved section, may be under construction in 1970, with a completion date possible in 1971.

The total mileage will be in seven contracts, with four sections now undergoing grading, right- of- way and bridge construction.

The first contracts awarded in 1969 were projects F with 4.5 miles, and G, with 4.6 miles, from Festus south to the Ste. Genevieve county line, awarded Feb. 20, with right- of- way clearing and grading well underway.

A contract for 13.1 miles in Cape Girardeau county, from the Fruitland intersection to the northern county line was let Sept. 25, with clearing and grading well underway, barring too much severe weather.

The fourth section, from Ste. Genevieve to the southern Ste. Genevieve county line, with the largest paving stretch of 14.6 miles, was let on Oct. 16, and it too is under construction.

Three projects still to be let for contract are, a 10.3 miles from Ste. Genevieve north to the Ste. Genevieve county line; and two sections in Perry county, the first from the south Perry county line, to Perryville for 11.1 miles and the second from Perryville north to north Perry county line, will in all probability be let in February or March, depending on the completion of right-of- way acquisition, and assuming that federal funds are released.

The 76.5- mile four- lane stretch will have but one slight curve, located between Pocahontas and Oak Ridge in Cape Girardeau county.

The new Interstate will cross old highway 61 at two points, at the Fruitland interchange and at a point a few miles north of Ste. Genevieve.

Interstate 55, when completed will be west of highway 61, except at the two crossings, and will vary from one mile at Fruitland, to between eight and ten miles at St. Marys, while at Brewer and Bloomsdale, the new road will skirt the edge of the city limits.

Appointments To Academies Announced

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Bill D. Burlison of the 10th congressional district, today announced his principal and alternate selections for the military academies:

Dean Martin's Wife Reports Marriage at End

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dean Martin's theme song is "Everybody Loves Somebody" and for him, his wife says, it's somebody new.

"It is painfully difficult for me to announce the apparent end of our marriage," the former cover girl Jeanne Bieggers, 47, announced Wednesday.

"My husband informed me several weeks ago that he had met and fallen in love with someone, and he asked me for a divorce. I have assured him I will comply with his wishes. Proceedings will begin immediately." She gave no name.

Martin, 52, a $5-million- a-year television and movie entertainer could not be reached for comment. A spokesman denied knowledge of the identity of the "someone." Even the gossip columnists gave no hint of her identity.

The Martins, married 20 years, with three children- Dean has four more by a previous marriage- separated in 1955. But reconciled.

Draft Board Secretaries to Meet in Bluff

BENTON — Mrs. Gladys Nebel, executive secretary of the selective service board, said today that there will be an area meeting of selective service secretaries Friday at Poplar Bluff. The purpose is to clear up questions concerning the new draft lottery system.

Mrs. Nebel also said that although there are no boys from Scott county who have birthdays on Sept. 14 that are registered for the draft, there are boys from the county who are eligible for the January draft lottery call.

She said that the selective service headquarters are in Jefferson City not in St. Louis as previously reported by the Sikeston Standard.

Brides and Brides-Elect

Mrs. Emmett Taylor Burke

Munson-Burke

EAST PRAIRIE — On Thursday, November 27 at 3:30 in the afternoon in the First Baptist Church of East Prairie, Miss Barbara Jo Munson became the bride of Emmett Taylor Burke.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mildred Munson and the late Joe Munson of East Prairie. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Emma Burke and the late Edmund Burke of Charleston.

Rev. Darrell Jauch, minister of the church, performed the double- ring ceremony before a romantic setting beneath an arch of white tapers in silver candelabras. Matching spiral tree candelabras placed behind the prie - dieu complimented four white columns of red roses and white mums. White tapers, entwined with greenery in single silver candelabras appointed the white carpeted aisle.

Mrs. Audley Brown of Charleston presented a program of pre- nutpail organ music and accompanied Mrs. Alan Shew, sister of the groom of St. Louis, who sang, "One Hand, One Heart", "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee," and as the benediction, "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt at the prie- dieu.

Preceding the bride down the aisle was the flower girl, Martha Jane Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jackson of Charleston, and Master Stephen Burke, son of Mr. nd Mrs. John Burke, the ring-bearer.

The bride entered the sanctuary on the arm of her uncle, Henry Munson, who, speaking for her mother, gave her in marriage. The bride wore an elegant Grecian inspired inspired formal gown of magnolia silk illusion with lavish appliques of re-embroidered Alencon lace. It was fashioned with a sculptured neckline traced with miniature pearls and irridescents and long tapered sleeves richly overlaid in lace, ending at the wrists and in calla lily points. The moulded boice of her gown was slightly lifted and was an elegant display of re-embroidered Alencon lace. Her A-silhouette skirt of all-over lace encrusted with irridescents fell gracefully from the empire bodice and was lavishly sprayed with pearls. Back interest was created by a voluminous chapel watteau train, secured at the shoulders by appliques of the repeated lace pattern. Her chapel veil of silk illusion was secured to a profile Grecian inspired headpiece of orange blossoms designed especially for her gown. Her bridal bouquet was mille fleur cascade of phalaenopsis orchids, sweethear roses baby's breath and long loops of pearls placed on a prayer book. The prayer book brought from Jerusalem is a family heirloom of the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Emmett Burke.

Attending the bride as her maid of honor was Miss Pam Bethay of Memphis, a sorority sister. Bridesmaids were Miss Glenda Houston, sorority sister from Milam, Tenn., Mrs. Sonny Gentry, sorority sister from Memphis and Miss Marsha Munson, sister of the bride.

Reginald Young of Charleston was best man. Groomsmen were Jim Burke, brother of the groom, Richard Dodson, Cape Girardeau, and James Hillhouse, Boulder, Colo. Ushers were Burke Dodson and Robert Jackson, both of Charleston and Jerry Munson, East Prairie.

Immediately following the wedding ceremony the reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the Church of God in East Prairie. A silver embossed ribbon inscribed, "B. J. and Emmett, Nov. 27, 1969" extended the length of the tables.

Serving during the reception were Miss Paula Waldman, Sikeston; Miss Vickie Blom, New Madrid; and Miss Sally Rorex, Memphis, Tenn. Each wore shoulder corsages of mille fleur.

The groom's cake was served by his sister, Mrs. James Hillhouse.

Miss Debra Woodard entertained at the reception with piano selections. Guest book attendant was Miss Linda Moxley. Rice bags were handed to each guest by Jacquelin and Sharon Mahar of Marston and Sandy McGee of Sikeston, cousins of the bride.

The couple traveled to St. Louis and returned to their apartment in Cape Girardeau.

Mrs. Burke is a 1967 graduate of East Prairie High School and attended Memphis State University two years and is completing her degree in elementary education at Southeast Missouri State College. Mr. Burke, a 1966 graduate of Charleston, attended the University of Arkansas three years and is now completing his degree at Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau.

Urhahn-Schott

ORAN - Twin arrangements of yellow chrysanthemums and gold candelabra with lighted tapers formed the setting Nov. 22 at the Guardian Angel Catholic Church here for the wedding of Miss Mary Catherine Urhahn and Philip J. Schott.

The Rev. Gervase W. Ingoldsby was celebrant at the Nuptial Mass. Mrs. Larence Seyer was organist, and vocal selections were provided by the Guardian Angel School choir.

The former Miss Urhahn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Urhahn of Oran, and the bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Philip Schott of Oran. He is also the grandson of Wm. Schott of Oran.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal empire gown of angel skin peau de soie, with a bateau neckline, long tapered sleeves and bands of galloon scalloped lace trimming the bodice and semi-controlled skirt.

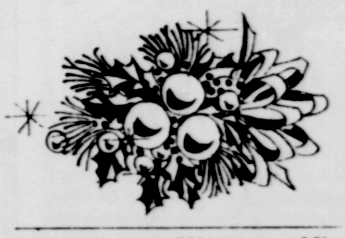

The bride chose her sister, Mrs. Paul Hess of Chaffee, as matron of honor, and bridesmaid was Miss Geraloyn Sue Felter of Benton. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Nancy Welter, a cousin of the bride.

The bridegroom chose Mervyn Joe Ashton of Houston, Tex., his cousin, as best man, and groomsman was Paul Urhahn, a brother of the bride. Another brother of the bride, Rick Urhahn, was junior groomsman. Guests were ushered by Cyril Glueck of New Hamburg and James Urhahn of Sikeston.

A dinner reception was held in the parish hall following the ceremony. Miss Janell Welter was guest book attendant.

Mrs. Schott is employed by the International Hat Co., St. Louis, and Schott is employed by the McDonnell - Douglas Aircraft Corp. there.

Following a wedding trip to Florida, the newlyweds will reside at Grandview Gardens, Florissant.

Mrs. Daniel J. Seyer

Mayfield-Seyer

On the evening of November 26, Miss Mary Austin Mayfield became the bride of Daniel J. Seyer in St. Francis Xavier church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loomis F. Mayfield Jr., and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Seyer of Cape Girardeau.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Amil Shilbey of Malden. Attendents for the couple were the bride's sister, Mrs. Phil Tidwell, and the groom's brother, Michael Seyer.

The bride wore a formal gown of Brussel lace over taffeta. The empress bodice was marked with tiny French cording. The scalloped sabrina neckline dipped to a low square back. Motifs of lace on the bodice were re-embroidered with seed pearls and centered with a crystal. The same trim continued onto the three-quarter length scalloped lace sleeves. The A-line skirt was also finished with a scalloped edge, which continued to the chapel length train, and finished with a point. Her head dress was an all over chantilly lace mantilla, softly shirred to a head band. The mantilla was sprinkled with crystal and pearl.

The bride's bouquet was a cascade of white American Beauty roses and snowdrift mums centered with a white orchid.

Ushers from the wedding were Phil Tidwell and John Holland. Servers were Loomis F. Mayfield III and Ralph Seyer, brothers of the couple.

Mrs. Elmer Seyer of Oran provided the nuptial music, and accompanied her husband as he sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "On this Day."

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the Sikeston Country Club. Miss Nettie Seyer and Misses Sandra and Suzanne Mayfield served at the punch table. Misses Joyce and Linda Seyer and Miss Barbara Mayfield presided at the guest book. Little Christina Mayfield presented rice bags to the guests.

The couple left for a short wedding trip to St. Louis, after which they will be at home at 13 N. Fountain Street in Cape Girardeau. The groom attends State College there, and is employed by Radonics, Inc. The bride teaches school in Oran.

Beatrice Kay Stauffer

Stauffer-Tolliver

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Stauffer of Route 2 announce the engagement of their daughter, Beatrice Kay, to Roger Tolliver, son of Mr. nd Mrs. Auvie Tollier, Union City, Tennessee.

Miss Stauffer is a 1969 graduate of Sikeston high, and is attending State College, Cape Girardeau, where she is majoring in elementary education.

The prospective groom is a 1967 graduate of Sikeston high and is employed by E. W. James and Sons Supermarket. He is a college junior, majoring in business administration.

An August wedding is planned.

Double-Duty Sleepwear Stars at Holiday Time

By AP NEWSFEATURES

Throw away the traditional lounging attire this holiday season and enjoy a potpourri of sleepwear and loungewear fashions that capture all the frivolity of the festive period.

The layer-on-layer concept, the season's hottest news, is based on garments that can lead double or triple lives. Mini shifts, tunics, jumpers and pants are all part of the excitement. Each piece can be teamed with others or go it alone ... and the trick is to put on or take off as many layers as you like.

Amid all the versatility and individuality, femininity reigns supreme. Filmy, body-shaping fabrics, sheers and see-throughs, flurries of pleats and touches of luxurious lace add a romanticism and ultra-feminine feeling to the twilight hours that is reminiscent of the luxury of past decades. In short the mood is soft, sexy and sensuous.

Double-duty interchangeable sleepwear — loungewear helps you make the most of the holiday mood. Long tunics or mini sleep shifts can top pants or go it alone for bedtime, lounging or parties. Add vests or jumpers to long, liquidy gowns. Add or subtract pants to suit your mood or occasion. Accessorize with chunky chains or layers of scarves. It's all part of the new go-anywhere, do-anything trend in holiday loungewear.

One of the best put-ons of the season are pants. Whether shown in culotte gowns, or teamed up with long tunics that also can be worn separately, pants are becoming a way of life. What's more, pants are taking on a dressed-up look that makes the fashion point in the most feminine manner.

Central to the holiday fashion versatility and feminine feeling are new super-soft fabrics. Supple fabrics such as Enkalure nylon, Encron polyester and Crepeset nylon drape, cling and swing to capture the body-shaping mood of today. And though they look as delicate and fragile as silk or crepe, they are completely machine-washable and dryable, wrinkle-resistant and won't stretch out of shape.

LAYER-ON-LAYER CONCEPT ... Garments that can lead double or triple lives, thanks to shifts, tunics and pants put-ons, capture the frivolity of the holiday period. (1) Flowing pants coordinated with matching mini-shift that also can go it alone designed by Raymodes. (2) One-piece culotte print by B. Cohen. (3) Two-tone black and red sleeveless gown with matching peignoir from Eye-ful gives just enough coverup to convert the sleep set into luxurious hostess outfit. Fashion Trends

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Ever since women stopped using handkerchiefs as a flirtatious device, they have been relegated to a utilitarian role and spend most of their time in the dark confines of pocket or handbag.

With today's accessory explosion, however, triggered by a headon meeting between the colorful gypsy and the image-intent flower child, handkerchiefs have come out into the open as colorful extensions of a highly personalized manner of dress.

There is no end to handkerchief possibilities within the new fashion format. They can be twined into a braid or attached at the end; tied around the "status" George Washington pull hairdo; worn in twos around the forehead Indian fashion. And that's just the beginning.

There's nothing more feminine than a lace-trimmed Irish linen handkerchief. It's a natural, furled into a frilly jabot to add a special touch to today's popular shirts or to turn even a classic blazer into something elegant and Edwardian. And speaking of jabots, it's a simple matter to thread solid tone or printed handkerchiefs into the linky necklaces now being worn for a cascade of color.

Moving even one step further, handkerchiefs are naturals for any number of cuff treatments. The dainty lace-edged or embroidered variety are perfect for sissy cuffs on an otherwise ordinary shirt. It's a simple matter to tuck them in and secure with a stud or tie tack. Fold a handkerchief diagonally, wrap twice around the wrist, and tie with the point extending over the hand for yet another cuff effect.

It's the waist that's getting a good share of the accessory attention currently as belts and chains and cords are worn in colorful masses. Add still another pattern by folding two handkerchiefs—matched or not—diagonally and knotting them together at either hip.

Then, of course, if you're given to going barefoot about the house, handkerchiefs make great ankle bracelets.

There seems to be no limit to how far handkerchiefs ideas can go. One enterprising gal sewed together 42 handkerchiefs of similar color but varied designs and came up with a truly unique gypsy dress for gala entertaining.

Santa and the DUMBBELL

By Lucrece Beale

Synopsis: The Ghost and Princess cannot free Booby Bobby from the trap. An elf in a red sleigh appears crying, "Ha! We've caught you at last!"

CHAPTER 10
SANTA LAND

"WE'LL smother you in ashes and whip you with switches and give you spiders to eat. You'll be sorry you ever came to Santa Land!" shouted the red-haired, crooked-legged dwarf.

"But-I-I haven't done anything!" stammered Booby Bobby, quaking in the trap.

"Ha! You can't fool me. You're the Troll who has been stealing candy and breaking toys and mixing up Christmas orders. You hate children and don't want them to have any Christmas."

The Ghost and the Puppet Princess popped out of the bushes. "He is not a Troll!" shouted the Ghost angrily. "And he never did any of those things!" declared the Princess.

"If he's not a Troll how come he's caught in my Troll Trap? And who are you anyway?"

"I'm a ghost as you should be able to see for yourself," said Stanley stiffly.

"I never heard of a ghost in underwear!" scoffed the elf.

"I lost my clothes in an avalanche," said Stanley. "That is how the Princess lost her nose and Booby Bobby got caught in your trap. We've come a long, long way to see Santa Claus and I must say we never expected such a reception as this."

"It all sounds very queer to me," said the elf. "But never mind. We'll let Santa settle the matter." He unlocked the Troll Trap and Booby Bobby, minus the seat of his trousers, was free. They climbed into the red sleigh and, with bells ringing, dashed away.

"Why do you ring the bells so loudly?" complained the Princess — putting her hands over her ears.

"I'm getting them ready for Christmas," explained the elf. He had to bellow to be heard. "They get rusty and out of tune between seasons." He shook the bells on the reindeer reins and went ding, dong, with the silver bell in each hand.

"There's plenty to be excited about!" cried Tweedleknees.

Clanging and chiming they arrived in Santa Land. The elf herded them into Santa's house where they all began to talk at once.

Santa sat in his chair by the fire smoking his pipe and rocking gently to and fro as he listened to their tale. When they had finished he shook his finger at the elf. "Don't you know what a Troll looks like?" he asked with amusement.

"A Troll can take many shapes as you know," retorted the elf. "And anyway the boy had no business in my trap."

Santa's eyes twinkled. "You must excuse Tweedleknees He has a low boiling point and gets very excited about things."

"There's plenty to be excited about," argued Tweedleknees. "Unless we catch the Troll, there'll be no toys left for Christmas."

"Things aren't quite that bad," said Santa soothingly. "Come now, we must do something for our visitors."

Mrs. Claus came in and set about patching Booby Bobby's britches. Tweedleknees, grumping all the time, went to the linen shop for new sheets for the Ghost. Santa, meanwhile, bent over his workbench and cut out and molded a brand new nose for the Princess.

After this, Santa asked why the three had come to Santa Land.

The Ghost said he hoped to find a better place to haunt. The Princess said she was looking for a new kingdom. Booby Bobby said, in a very small voice, "I would like a friend for Christmas so people will think I'm important and not call me dumbbell anymore."

"Hmmm," said Santa, thoughtfully. "Hmmm."

Dear Santa Claus:
My name is Leah Marie Byrd and I am three years old. I asked my mommy if I have been good this year and she gave me a very doubtful look yet she calls me her "Angel", sort of confusing isn't it. Anyway, she said I could write you a letter and tell you what I hope to get for Christmas. This won't take long as all I really want is a Dancerina doll. Of course, I take anything you want to give me. Don't forget all the other "good" children.
Love,
Leah Marie Byrd
P. S. Mommy says that she will leave you something to eat on the kitchen table, just in case you are hungry.

Dear Santa Claus,
My name is Dawn Chamberlain and I am 6 years old.
I have been a pretty good little girl. For Christmas I would like to have a Dancerinia doll, a Nov. birthstone ring, some P.J.'s and anything else you would like to bring me. Oh yes Santa please fill my stocking. I will leave you some chocolate cake and a 16 oz. Dr. Pepper on the table for you.
Love Dawn Your Pal

Q—How did the black widow spider receive its name?

A—The name, originally applied to the female, refers to her practice of eating the male; the young also devour one another.

Q—Which two North American conifers are not evergreen?

A—The bald cypress and the larch.

LUCKY THIRTEEN — The Golddiggers, 13 beautiful singing-dancers, will be with Bob Hope to entertain troops in Europe, the Middle East and Southeast Asia.

THUNDERING HERD is a new tactic used in India to break through a police cordon. Demonstrators cheer as stampeding water buffalo cause police to give way.

THE IRISH STEW simmering in Northern Ireland could erupt into a civil war if some compromise between Protestants and Roman Catholics is not reached shortly. British riot troops, top, move in to protect Catholic houses during an angry Protestant demonstration in Belfast. Militant Protestants, led by the Rev. Ian Paisley, in white coat at bottom left, protest government plans to disband the B-special police force, an organization feared and hated by Catholics. At bottom right, a Royal Ulster Constabulary policeman turns in his revolver and gun belt in compliance with a ruling which threatens a crisis for Premier James Chichester-Clark's government.

PUBLIC NOTICE

TRUSTEE'S SALE

WHEREAS, Walter G. Winfield and Allene Winfield, his wife, by a certain Deed of Trust dated the 10th day of March, 1969, and recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds for the County of Scott and the State of Missouri, in Book 164, Page 263, conveyed to the undersigned Trustee the following described real estate situated in the County of Scott and State of Missouri, to wit:

All of Lot Numbered Sixteen (16) and the West half (W 1/2) of Lot Numbered Seventeen (17) in Block numbered Eight (8) of McCoy and Tanner's Second (2nd) Addition to the City of Sikeston, Scott County, Missouri.

Which conveyance was made to the undersigned in trust to secure the payment of a certain Promissory Note in said Deed specified; and

WHEREAS, said note is now past due and remains unpaid default having been made in the payment of said note.

NOW, THEREFORE, at the request of the legal holder of said Note and in pursuance of the conditions of said Deed of Trust, the undersigned Trustee will sell the property above described at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash at the main front door of the Circuit Court House in the City of Benton, Scott County, Missouri, on December 16, 1969, between the hours of 9:00 A.M., and 5:00 P.M., for the purpose of satisfying said indebtedness and the cost of executing this trust.

Roberts T. Williams, Trustee

John A. Matthews' Land Sold for $170 Per Acre

50 years ago

December 12, 1919

It is reported that John A. Matthews this week sold 240 acres off the west end of his large farm southeast of Sikeston, to a Mr. Cummings of Iowa, for the sum of $170 per acre. The sale was made through Stacy & Goodpasture.

Uncle Joe Randol butchered his hogs last week and The Standard family can testify that the mess of spare ribs that he sent in were all right.

In honor of the 50th anniversary of Dr. O. E. Kendall's being made a Mason, the brethren of the Sikeston lodge assisted by the Eastern Star, will entertain with a banquet at the Methodist Church on the evening of December 17.

John Fisher went to Cairo Monday morning to see his brother, Will, who is a patient in St. Mary's Infirmary.

Morehouse--Dan Baker visited in Cape Girardeau Wednesday.

James Hitchell, seed dealer of Leroy, Ill., and a party of three other men from that section of the State, drove into Sikeston early Thursday morning in the interests of looking over farm sites near here. Mr. Hitchell expressed the belief that this is a splendid time to invest in Southeast Missouri lands.

A spectacular fire mushroomed from two bulk fuel tanks at the Ferrell Oil Co., on East Malone avenue Friday seriously burning Richard Barker and threatening nearby buildings. The towering flames shot into the sky quickly engulfing a railroad tank car directly behind the tanks and sent a huge column of black smoke boiling upwards.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Cloud are parents of a daughter, Susan Kathleen, born Friday at Delta Community Hospital. This is the third child and first daughter.

Mrs. E. H. Smith, 63, 411 Matthews, received a broken ankle and general cuts and abrasions when she was struck by a car in the 400 block of Greer street Friday.

Sikeston's Bulldog Cagers came home victorious from the Chaffee frays as the "A's" won their game, 64 to 29, and the "B's" walked away from the Chaffee "B" team, 38 to 18.

Meet Sikeston's Teachers. Mrs. Evelyn M. Barnett, now teaching her fourth term in the primary department of South Grade School, is a graduate of Southeast Missouri State College, from which she holds the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education. A resident of Sikeston since 1941, she lives at 236 William street.

An early morning blaze ravaged the four-room home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith, 312 Maude street, today. According to Mrs. Smith the fire probably started from a faulty flue.

Hospital notes. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eddy of New Madrid are parents of a boy.

Medina Admits Possibility Massacre Did Take Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Capt. Ernest L. Medina, commander of the army company involved in the alleged massacre of Vietnamese civilians at My Lai, says he did not order or see any massacre but that "it is possible that it could have taken place."

In an interview published in today's New York Times, Medina also said that if he were to run the operation over again he would do some things differently, including insuring that each soldier knew he could not shoot unarmed civilians.

The Army is investigating reports that between 100 and 600 civilians were killed in My Lai on March 16, 1968. Lt. William L. Calley Jr. is charged with murder of 109 civilians in the incident.

In Washington Wednesday, chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D.S.C., of the House Armed Services Committee, said the helicopter pilot who the Army says suggested Vietnamese civilians might have been unnecessarily killed at My Lai made no such report to a subcommittee.

Rivers said that neither Hugh Thompson Jr., the pilot, nor any other witness testifying before his investigations group presented information to convince it that American soldiers massacred civilians at My Lai.

Secretary of he Army Stanley R. Resor had told the subcommittee two weeks ago that a helicopter pilot, later identified by the Pentagon as Thompson, "suggested there might have been unnecessary killing of noncombatants at My Lai."

Capt. Medina, in the interview with the Times in Washington, said that he remained outside the village during most of the My Lai operation, keeping in touch with the three platoons under his command by radio.

Medina, who has not been charged with any crime, said that when he went through the village once to meet troops on the other side, his men "were burning the village ... shooting the livestock and closing the wells."

He said he saw some bodies, but added: "I did not ask how the people had been killed."

At one point, he said, "I got a radio transmission from higher command stating that there was a possibility that there were civilians in the village and that some of them might have been shot and I was to put out the transmission to all three platoons to try to make sure that none of our people shot any civilians."

Later, he asked his three platoon leaders, including Calley, if any civilians had been killed. "I received negative indications from all platoon leaders," he recalled.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

"Just as you, Father, live in me and I live in you, I am asking that they may live in us, that the world may believe that you did send me." (John 17:21, Phillips)

PRAYER: Father, I would dare to surrender myself with utter abandon to permit the Range Finder, Christ, to help me to live in You. Redeem my life and purify my heart. In Jesus' name. Amen.

New Madrid Will Be Served by New Doctor

NEW MADRID — The city will obtain the services of an additional medical doctor.

Dr. Ernie Sandidge, and his fiance, Miss Margaret Steinkirch, both of Memphis, were welcomed to the city Tuesday afternoon by Chamber of Commerce members and businessmen. Dr. Sandidge and Miss Steinkirch will be married Monday. They will move to New Madrid and the doctor will begin his practice Jan. 2.

Dr. Sandidge, 31, decided to come to New Madrid through the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce and will set up practice in the Femmer Building, 779 Main St., formerly occupied by Dr. Charles Reeder, who moved in 1967. He will be joined July 1 by Dr. David N. Jones of Arizona and Dr. Jon P. Downey of Alabama.

Dr. L. J. Smith has been the only doctor in the city of 3,000 since the departure of Dr. Reeder.

Dr. Sandidge graudated from the University of Tennessee medical school in December, 1968, and received his internship at St. Joseph Hospital, Memphis. He received his pre- Medical training at Memphis State and graduated in 1965. He was born in Lake Cormant, Miss. and attended high school in Tunica, Miss. He served in the Army from 1956 to 1959.

DR. ERNIE SANDIDGE, Memphis and his fiance, Miss Margaret Steinkirc. Doctor Sandidge will begin his practice in New Madrid Jan. 2.

Chamber of Commerce is making preliminary plans and surveys for its construction.

A new hospital is being planned for the city and the

Dear Editor:

Only a few editors asked, when Drew Pearson died, "Can Jack Anderson do it? Can he keep up the terrific pace of the Washington Merry-Go-Round? Can he keep on digging up expose after expose?"

Most editors, knowing Jack Anderson's part in the Dodd, Powell and other sensational stories, didn't ask. They were sure that Jack Anderson could.

The answer for the doubters is now in.

Jack Anderson is piling up more and more exclusive stories, he is laying bare more and more violations of public trust, he is puncturing more and more inflated phonies.

And the proof appears in the story "Jack Anderson breaks news, sometimes makes it."

As you review these citations, ask yourself, "Has any other reporter in America piled up such an amazing list of exclusive stories in such a short span?"

Sincerely,

ARMED FORCES

(25AN-81501) VIETNAM (FHTNC) - Marine Private First Class Larry Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Williams of Route 3, and husband of the former Miss Betty J. Reed of 113 Alabama St., all of Sikeston, Mo., is serving with the First Military Police Battalion, Force Logistic Command (FLC), in Vietnam.

The battalion provides security for the massive air base at Danang and the III Marine Amphibious Force Bridge. The bridge, a vital link between East Danang and road access to northern I Corps, spans the Han River.

FLC, headquartered at Camp Books near Danang, is the largest supply, service and maintenance support organization in the Marine Corps. Comprised of seven battalions and two major support groups, the command serves all Marine and Republic of South Korea units operating in the northernmost tactical zone of South Vietnam.

Individual missions of FLC and its subordinate units range from providing military police and scout sentry dog service, to complete communication support.

Bank Promotes President of Computer Centers

MEMPHIS — Joe H. Davis, Sr., has been designated by the board of directors of First National Bank of Memphis executive vice president in charge of correspondent bank and the Mid- South area development division of First National Bank of Memphis.

SPA May Be Reshaped or Eliminated

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The Southwestern Power Administration may be signficantly reshaped or possibly eliminated after current studies are completed.

Peter C. King, head of the SPA, made the statement Monday in an interview at Little Rock after arriving from Tulsa Okla. He is in Arkansas to attend the meeting of the Arkansas Electric Cooperative Corp., at Hot Springs.

King said the transactions being studied are those in which the SPA sells electricity generated the government - owned facilities such as hydroelectric plants at Corps of Engineers dams to private power companies and power cooperatives.

The SPA facilities may be sold to electric companies and cooperatives, King said, if studies indicated that would be the most businesslike thing to do.

The SPA, which has been selling power since 1945, oversees the government power facilities in Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Missouri. It has marketing coverage for those four states, plus Louisiana and Kansas.

If You Were the Judge

Chase Not Part of Collector's Job

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Mervin made his job as a bill collector more of a pursuit than an occupation. Amorously inclined, he cornered voluptuous Vera in her apartment and offered to forget about the money she owed in exchange for a romantic interlude.

Vera, however, wasn't that kind of a girl and flatly turned down the offer. Whereupon Mervin began to pursue Vera around her apartment with outstretched but unfulfilled arms. After a few minutes, the chase ended when Vera tripped and fell. Badly hurt, she sued Mervin's employer for her injuries.

"A bill collector is supposed to collect money," she told the judge, "and not kisses. As Mervin's employer, she should be held liable for his employee's improper conduct."

"Nonsense," was the employer's answer. "I didn't hire Mervin to be a delinquent with delinquent customers. When he started after Vera, he wasn't working for me. He was on his own."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Mervin's employer responsible for his romantic pursuit of Vera?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that while an employer can he held liable for the actions of an employee when performed during the course of their employment, or for the employer's benefit, Mervin's pursuit of Vera was definitely not within the scope of his employment, nor was it for the benefit his employer. Cosequently, his employer could not be held responsible for his amorous overtures.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Sunday at Mt. Olive Missionary Baptist Church.

Burial will be in Sand Hill Cemetery with Richards Funeral Home in charge.

Although nowadays a cheese and cracker course is often served on a wooden serving dish or a wooden tray, there's nothing against using a dish or tray of silver, glass or china for the cheese and crackers.

Hoelzer Draws 2 Life Sentences

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — Donald M. Hoelzer, who faces two murder charges in St. Louis, was handed two consecutive life sentences Wednesday for two holdup - slayings in North St. Louis County.

Hoelzer pleaded guilty to the killing of Anthony J. Spinelli, June 19, and of Henry L. Stewart, June 13. Spinelli was a customer in a food store, and Stewart was an employe of another store robbed.

Hoelzer was indicted by a St. Louis Circuit Court grand jury for the slaying of Mrs. DDoris Willman, a barmaid, and Charles Hill Jr., a customer, in the Lucky Club Tavern Jan. 14.

Hill, 28, was a contract hauler and son of the president of Rochester Junior College of Rochester, Minn.

Judge Robert J. Hoester of St. Loui County Circuit Court said he made Hoelzer's sentences consecutive to rule out any possibility of parole.

"The almost casual manner in which the defendant described the murders makes it imperative that society be protected from him for the rest of his life," Hoester said.

62 Aged Entertained At Christmas Party

By CHARLES BRADY

MOREHOUSE — Sixty- two elderly citizens were among 87 present for the annual Christmas party in their honor yesterday at the public school gymnasium.

Mrs. Paul Mosley, director, began the program with a greeting followed by the invocation and scripture by the Rev. Ernest Bragg, minister of the First Baptist church.

The sermon was given by the Rev. James Estep, minister of the Methodist church.

A school music program of Christmas carols was held under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Brownlee.

The oldest married couple was honored. Mr. and Mrs. W. B. McNew have been married 63 years.

Luther Black, 89, and Mrs. Anna Putman, 92, were honored as the oldest man and woman present.

Under the direction Harriet Jones, art supervisor of the Sikeston schools, a Christmas tree was decorated in lights that flashed on and off to recorded Christmas music. This process was reserved only to the motion picture industries until November of 1968.

The program closed with the Benediction by the Rev. Nathaniel Lewis, pastor of the Pentecostal Church.

Holcomb Man Faces Rape Charge

KENNETT — Charges of rape have been filed against a 20- year - old Holcomb man by Dunklin County Prosecuting Attorney Frank Holder for an act of rape committed about 9 p.m. Monday night against a 16- year-old Kennett girl. The assault took place on a country road about one mile west of Holcomb.

Arrested is Billy Wayne Doughten of Holcomb. He was arrested in Holcomb about 9:45 p.m. Monday night by Holcomb Chief of Police Bob Shipman and Dunklin County Deputy Sheriff Bob McDonald.

According to the arresting authorities, the girl and her boyfriend, a 17- year- old youth from Caruthersville, were parked on the country road when Doughten and two companions approached the parked car. Doughten is reported to have assaulted the girl while his two companions held her boyfriend on the road a short distance from the car from which they forced him. The Caruthersville youth is reported to have fled barefooted across a field to get help when he heard screams coming from his girlfriend in the car with Doughten. Charges have not been filed against the two companions, as they reportedly did not take part in the rape assault.

Randy Wallick, an offensive end from Dixon, Ill., will captain Dartmouth's football team next season. Wallick caught 13 passes in 1967.

If the competition had Impala's high resale value maybe they'd be No.1. Maybe.

The makers of Impala generously offer these tips to competitors to help improve their resale value.

They could try adding our side guard door beam structure, heavy steel rails inside the doors.

They could do something about the rocker panel problem, as we have done with flush-and-dry rocker panels, instead of being content to let rust accumulate.

They could put inner fenders in every model, just like Impala. Who knows? Come resale time their outer fenders might look almost as good as Impala's.

They could hush up the sounds of old age with something like Impala's long life exhaust system, aluminized at critical points for greater durability.

Impala's cargo-guard luggage compartment is a good bet, too. A steel bulkhead separates luggage from passenger compartment. Beats paper or plywood all hollow.

We suggest an acrylic lacquer finish, so their cars will keep their shine longer.

But if competition doesn't take these tips, you certainly should.

Buy an Impala.

It's such a rewarding car to get rid of.

Putting you first, keeps us first.

Public School Beauty Course Criticized by Private Operators

Sikeston public schools came under fire Thursday afternoon on charges of conducting a beauty culture course that interfers with private enterprise cosmotology schools operated by Lawrence Luber and Mrs. Avis Taylor.

Appearing before the school board on behalf of Luber and Mrs. Taylor was Robert Dempster, attorney, who said "we feel there has been a substantial encroachment on free enterprise."

There are now 20 school age girls participating in the school program, which comes under vocational training.

Dempster said since the program was initiated, last year both private schools have experienced a decline in students that has brought them to a point that merely two students could mean the difference between success and failure.

Supt. of Schools Lynn Twitty's rebuttal was the school is merely teaching high school students and not adults, who would come under the manpower development and training act. He said the students probably could or would not have undertaken such training if it had not been for the schools program.

Dempster pointed out that if Sikeston did not have two private cosmotology schools, there would be a need for training and added:

"I do not believe the school is meant to take business away from private enterprise."

In addition Dempster presented the board with a petition containing 38 names of private beauty operators in Sikeston in support of Luber and Mrs. Taylor.

Jean Casey, executive secretary of the state board of cosmotology, stated after Dempster and Luber left the room she does not feel the school is taking away from either Luber's or Mrs. Taylor's schools. She said she would prefer this would be left off the record. Mrs. Taylor was not at the meeting.

Before departing Dempster assured the board his clients do not feel the school is purposefully doing anything to "hurt the home folks," but requested the program be phased out.

A primary point in question was whether the school is actually teaching prospective students who would and could afford to enroll in the private schools. Luber stated he has never turned a student away because of finance. He said from 25 per cent to one-third of his students do not pay now.

"We make any type of financial arrangement that is satisfactory to the students," Luber said.

Twitty said the school is carefully not to enroll anyone who would or could otherwise take private training. It was pointed out that one student had been in contact with Mrs. Taylor for private schooling and later enrolled in the school program.

Twitty said the students enrolled in the course are not particularly academically inclined. High School Principal Roger Sherman cited examples of sub-stantial attendance improvement of students enrolled in the course.

Another point of interest is people allowed to receive beauty treatments at the public school. Dewavon Adams, who is in charge of teaching the program, said only low - income pupils and mothers of those students enrolled in the cosmotology school are permitted to receive hair dressings. Twitty also pointed out that students enrolled in the program are from low income families.

Another point brought out after Dempster and Luber departed, is that fees for services rendered to customers render more profit to the private schools than tuition fees.

Before leaving Dempster pointed out if the school's program was phased out it would save taxpayer's money and he emphasized it seems the state's financial situation does not appear so sound it could not afford to cut down on expenses, such as the cost of this school program.

Dempster referred to an election that could be held in April regarding a vote on state taxes. If the vote should be negative, school officials claim districts would suffer drastically money - wise. Dempster said this is a way to cut costs.

Luber pointed that before the school program was initiated there were night courses available, but this is now "completely out" for high school students. Harold Vogel, administrative assistant to Twitty, pointed out to Luber that legislation concerning minimum wages is the reason the night program was cut out.

Dempster then injected that if a grocery store was operated by the school, "you would have a complaint." He directed this statement to board member Phil Barkett, owner of Barkett's Super Market.

Charles Matthews, secretary to the board, said it should be stressed the public school's course does not provide services for the general public.

Following discussion, the board unanimously decided a committee should be formed to assist in ironing out the problems. There was no indication of further action.

$55,966 Apparently Stolen in Robbery

By DAN D. WHITTLE

BENTON — At the request of Scott county Sheriff John Dennis, examiners worked most of Thursday night to derive at a amount of money that could have been taken in the robbery of county collector Aubrey Michael's office Monday night.

Sheriff Dennis after conferring with members of the county court this morning estimated the amount missing to be $55,965.54. Whether this is the exact amount taken in the robbery has not been verified, but it is a close estimate.

Michael arrived in Benton before noon today and said Wednesday was the first he knew of the robbery. Michael had been in Florida. He was in Augusta, Ga., when he learned of the holdup from a daughter, the collector said.

Michael commented: "we are trying to do everything we can to determine the facts of the robbery and I have assured Sheriff Dennis he is at liberty to take anything he needs from my office in the investigation."

When asked if his absence from the state would have made any difference in the robbery, Michael commented: "I wouldn't see why it would."

J.W. "Dub" Shuffit, deputy collector, had charged earlier this week that Michael's presence could have made a difference in preventing the robbery.

Michael said he has sufficient bond to cover the loss, but he would have to make restitution to bonding companies for the sum. "I'm the one who will suffer financially," he said.

"I just hope we can find out who did it," Michael injected.

The Collector appeared to be distraught during the interview.

"The sheriff's office of Scott county assisted by the Missouri State Highway patrol, is continuing its investigation of the reported robbery of the collector's office on Dec. 8," Dennis said.

"Our investigation has revealed at this time an approximate shortage of $55,965.54 between the dates of Nov. 1 and the close of business on Dec. 8-- when comparing approximate receipt figures to approximate totals of funds on hand and disbursements.

"Our investigation is continuing as to how much of this shortage-- whether part or all relates to the reported robbery.

"At the present time, we have no suspects in custody."

Sheriff Dennis disclosed that Michael told him it was "perfectly all right" to take any form of record out of his office in order to derive at this morning's figure.

Sheriff John Dennis stated his office with assistance from highway patrol Sgt. F. A. Findley, are checking every aspect of the case. He praised Findley's work in the case.

The sheriff disclosed Michael was contacted Thursday afternoon in Augusta, Ga.

Scott county Prosecuting Attorney Tom Gilmore, who appeared before the county court this morning, said as far as he can determine by law the county does not stand to lose the amount taken in the robbery. He did not know, whether the collector's office has insurance to cover the loss.

Gilmore explained the county's position regarding the money:

"For instance, if you owed me $1,000 to be paid this afternoon, but was robbed this morning, you still would be required to pay me my money."

Sheriff Dennis verified this morning that Deputy Collector Shuffit deposited about $119,000 in collections Monday night prior to the robbery.

Shuffit reported he was the victim of a strong armed robbery Tuesday night. The robber stepped from behind a rest room door, he said, puiled a gun and forced him to go to the collector's office. Shuffit was reported to have been struck twice by the robber before he was tied up and the office robbed of currency and checks.

Domestic Priority to Defense Spending Urged After Viet War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Violence Commission, concluding an 18-month study of the menace of violence in America, said Friday U.S. spending for domestic problems should take precedence over defense spending as soon as the Vietnam war has ended.

"We solemnly declare our conviction," the commission said, "that this nation is entering a period in which our people need to be as concerned by the internal dangers to our free society as by any probable combination of external threats."

The commission chairman, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, presented the report to President Nixon Thursday—18 months after the panel had been formed by former President Lyndon B. Johnson following the assassinations of Robert F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King.

The commission's term expired Wednesday.

The bulk of the 338-page document was a recapitulation of the commission's nine previous reports on various aspects of violence along with a summary of the 81 recommendations it has made.

Its major new recommendation:

"That, when our participation in the Vietnam War is concluded, we recommend increasing annual general welfare expenditures by about 20 billion dollars (stated in 1968 dollars), partly by reducing military expenditures and partly by use of increased tax revenues resulting from the growth of the gross national product."

Then, the commission said, as the Gross National Product continues to rise, military spending should be kept level "while general welfare expenditures should continue to increase until essential social goals are achieved."

The reference to "general welfare expenditures" does not mean public welfare payments but is taken from the preamble to the Constitution, established "to promote the general welfare ..."

"We recognize," the commission said, "that substantial amounts of funds cannot be transferred from sterile war purposes to more productive ones until our participation in the Vietnam War is ended.

"We also recognize that to make our society essentially free of poverty and discrimination, and to make our sprawling urban areas fit to inhabit, will cost a great deal of money and will take a great length of time.

"We believe, however, that we can and should make a major decision now to reassess our national priorities by placing these objectives in the first rank of the nation's goals."

Conrad, Bean See No Moon Work Problem

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex (AP) — Man can do almost any work assigned him on the moon, the Apollo 12 lunar voyagers said today.

"We've proven that man can do just about any job you give him out there," said Apollo 12 commander Charles Conrad Jr.

Conrad and fellow moon walker Alan L. Bean said they worked hard hour after hour without getting tired and were doing jobs about twice as fast as they could do them on earth.

Conrad, Bean and the third Apollo 12 crewman, Richard F. Gordon Jr., discussed their 10day flight to the moon during a 90-minute news conference.

All said they were eager to go back into space and to revisit the moon.

Conrad said future moon crews may be able to work on the lunar surface for "a full work day," taking only occasional breaks to rest and eat. He visualized future moon crews staying on the lunar surface up to nine hours with only one break.

Bean and Conrad made two moonwalks of four hours each. The walks were separated, however, by a sleep period inside the lunar lander.

"You can work as hard as you can, but you just don't seem to get tired," said Bean. "We were able to move a lot farther than we imagined."

Conrad said the moon landing was hazardous but he said that with only slight changes in the automatic pilot the lunar module can make a pin-point landing completely on instruments with no help from the pilot.

"I do not feel that that's an amateur's game," he said, noting that "if I hadn't touched anything (flown in on automatic pilot), it would have landed me right on top of the Surveyor (an unmanned spacecraft which was already on the moon's surface)."

Conrad said he took over manually and flew to another landing site.

Conrad and Bean apologized for the loss of television of their moon walks.

Conrad showed a picture of what he called "that ding-a-ling TV camera" and Bean explained that it was apparently "sunburned."

Bean said he apparently pointed it at the sun or at a bright surface on the lunar lander as he was moving the camera.

Student Expulsion Approved, School Tax Increase Talked

The Sikeston R-6 school board Thursday approved permanent expulsion of an eighth grade student who attacked Junior High Principal Ernest Elledge.

Supt. of Schools Lynn Twitty explained the student is inconsistent in behavior and varies from passtive to violent actions.

"I don't know of any school person who works any harder than Ernest to try to get along with students," Twitty said.

He also disclosed to board members that attendance by pupils living in the Lincoln school area has not been good and is below the overall school attendance average, which he estimated at 95 per cent. He said it could come to the point where the school would need to employ an attendance worker and he mentioned possible parent prosecution when the parents continue to allow their children to miss school needlessly, which is against the law.

An election to vote on a 19-cent school tax increase was discussed for the second week in March. This would be added to the present the $4.19 level. Twitty said it should be pointed out this is lower than last year's $4.42 cent tax levy per $100 assessed valuation.

News Briefs

Pravda Denies Anti-Semitism

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda claimed today that anti-Semitism is impossible in the Soviet Union and praised Soviet Jews for taking an "active role in the construction of communism."

Apparently replying to recent charges in the West that Soviet Jews are being persecuted, Pravda said anti-Semitism is "alien to the Soviet people."

"We have no social conditions for this," Pravda added. "Any manifestation of anti-Semitism is punishable under Soviet law."

The article, signed by Ukranian Jewish writer Grigory Plotkin, said the Israeli Zionists and Soviet Jews have nothing in common. There is as much difference between them as between the "Greek resistance heroes and the black colonels," Plotkin wrote.

Many Slaying Suspects Quizzed

ST. CHARLES, Mo. (AP) — Police investigating the Monday night slayings of two young St. Charles women said today they have questioned more than 20 persons in their quest for leads.

Of that number, they said, about 10 are considered "possible suspects' in the slayings of Mrs. Donna Green, 21, and Martha Wampler, 20, whose bodies were found Tuesday noon in their home.

Police Capt. Robert Lowery of Florissant said lie detector tests had been taken by four men who had dated Miss Wampler, he said three passed the tests and the results for the other man were inconclusive.

Considered a prime suspect in the slayings, said police, is the man whom a neighbor of the young women saw being admitted to their home about 6:30 p.m. Monday.

Still being studied in laboratory tests were fingerprints found in a car rented by Miss Wampler. The car, reported missing after the slayings, was found in an apartment complex parking lot early Wednesday.

Ham, Turkey Ride on Bowl Duel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., has responded to a challenge by Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., putting up a Missouri ham against a Pennsylvania turkey on the outcome of the Orange Bowl game New Year's Day.

Symington said he couldn't "imagine a Pennsylvania turkey being the equivalent of a Missouri country ham" but added, "with full confidence in the University of Missouri Tigers and recognizing that you have to support Penn State, I accept your challenge and we look forward to eating that Pennsylvania turkey with great pleasure."

Scott, Senate minority leader, said he is confident that Penn State will "officially become the nation's No. 1 team after it defeats Missouri and if Notre Dame beats Texas in the Cotton Bowl."

Texas Football Star Suffers Loss of Leg

HOUSTON (AP) — Fred Steinmark, the starting safety on No.1-ranked Texas' Cotton Bowl bound football team, had his left leg amputated today at the M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute.

A hospital spokesman said the decision was made to amputate the leg at the hip when an examination of the left thigh bone found a malignant tumor.

Steinmark, 20, was admitted to the hospital this week to undergo tests.

The Denver athlete played in the Arkansas-Texas football game last Saturday.

State Farm Position to Clarkton Man

JEFFERSON CITY — The appointment of James C. (Jim) Dunscombe of Clarkton, as director of the grain, feed and seed division of the state department of agriculture, was announced today by Commissioner Dexter D. Davis.

The department of agriculture, according to Commissioner Davis, has combined two divisions – grain warehouse and feed and seed– into one division. Dunscombe succeeds Dale Stanton as director.

A Southeast Missouri farmer and businessman, Dunscombe served 13 years as a fieldman for the Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service working in 20 counties. He also spent two years in the operation of a grain elevator and six years as assistant production and sales manager of Gideon- Anderson Lumber Company box division.

He has been active in the Dunklin county extension service and served two years as chairman. He helped organize the Dunklin county soil conservation district and was on the board of supervisors four years.

Dunscombe is a native of Dunklin county, is married and has one daughter, Mrs. Dwight Turner Senath.

Scarbrough Booked on Two Charges

Clarence David Scarbrough, 34, 331 North Handy, was booked this morning on charges of improper registration and supplying and contributing to the delinquency of a minor, police said.

Delmar Roscoe Barks, 40, Morley, was booked on a charge of careless and improper driving and speeding.

Essex Man Fined for Three Offenses

William Timothy Kirk, route two, Essex, was fined a total of $400 on three counts last night in city court with Judge James Sickal presiding.

Kirk was fined $200 for driving while intoxicated, $150 for carrying a concealed weapon, and $50 for careless and improper driving.

Other charges and dispositions:

Claudean Hamra, 807 Greer, careless and improper driving, $31 fine; Kenneth Dale Wren, 319 Smith, careless and improper driving, $16 fine; Leo Dunnigan Jr., 1408 Osage, Interfering firefighters, $7 fine; Charles Thomas Franklin, 716 Ruth St., public intoxication, $12 fine and indecent exposure, $15 fine;

William Dinzik, Chicago, public intoxication, $12 fine; Albert Ray, route four, public intoxication, $12 fine; and James Alfred Danvenport, 320 Edmondson, public intoxication, $12 fine.

Two Collisions

Yesterday at 4:35 p.m. on East Malone at the Malco Twin Theater, a 1966 Ford driven by Deborah Ann Hadley, 18, 2120 Betty St., and a 1959 Ford driven by Roy Samuel Frost, 69, 835 Matthews, came together.

Mary Frost, 62, a passenger in the Frost auto and Paul Thomas Romine, 2, were injured. Both were treated at the Missouri Delta Community hospital, police reported.

The Hadley car was damaged on the right rear. The Frost vehicle was damaged on the left rear.

At 8:35 p.m. yesterday on West Malone and New Madrid, a 1966 Mustang driven by Carolyn Frances Green, 17, Memphis, was hit by a 1968 Chevrolet driven by Larry Gene Hickson, 29, Malden, police said.

The Mustang was damaged on the right rear fender. The Chevrolet was damaged on the hood.

Two Railroads Pay Taxes Under Protest

Two railroads have paid portions of their county taxes under protest, ccording to Tom Gilmore, Scott County prosecuting attorney, and J. W. Shuffit, deputy tax collector.

The railroads are the Missouri Pacific and the Cotton Belt. Utilities might follow their leads.

The two railroads charge their taxes are too high because the Sikeston and Illmo- Scott City school districts failed to lower their tax levies sufficiently following this year's $7 million increase in county real estate valuation.

Missouri law says that all taxing units must lower their levies in propertions to the valuation increase. Scott City did not lower its levy, but Sikeston did. A legal point is involved on Sikeston. The Sikeston district lowered its levy from $4.42 to $4.19, and the lower rate brings in about the same amount of money as the higher levy did, but that is over the entire district, which includes part of New Madrid county.

The railroads maintain the levy and valuation increase applied to the Scott County district portion alone and is producing more money than is legal. The amount under protest is rather small, Shuffit said, and the amount under dispute will be placed into an escrow account.

It creates a new legal point prompting Gilmore to say "I think it is going to some hard thought on the part of a judge to solve it."

The railroads have given checks which stipulates a certain portion of this is paid under protest, which Shuffit estimates is around $3,500.

School and City May Swap Buildings

It appears likely the Sikeston R-6 school district and the city of Sikeston will in essence make a swap regarding two properties, the old post office building owned by the school and the old airport school buildings owned by the city.

Terms of the conditions have not been made public.

Tentative plans call for the city, to convert the old post office into a city administration building and possibly as police headquarters.

It has not been disclosed what the airport buildings would be used for. The old post office building has been used for storage.

Five Treated

Five were treated in Missouri Delta Community hospital Thursday:

Treated for injury in car accidents were Brenda K. Burch, Matthews, Mary Frost and Ray S. Frost, both of Sikeston; Johnny L. Williams, cut forehead in fall; and Roger D. Morrett, Oran, face cut.

Liquor Reported Passed to Two Juveniles in Jail

It has been reported whisky was slipped to two juvenile boys late last night in the Sikeston jail.

Fred Glover, Scott County juvenile officer, said he had a call but did not have all the information. He would not elaborate.

A source said the whisky is believed to have been sneaked to two step- brothers who were picked up Nov. 28 for investigation of an offense considered to be a felony if committed by an adult. This was the day following the shotgun slaying of Charles "Chuck" Lenderman at his home.

It was reported the liquor was supplied by a person whom the police released on bond yesterday.

Two Fined $130 On Driving Charge

DEXTER — Lloyd Jones and Harold W. Zimmerman, both of Dexter, were arrested last night on a charge of driving while intoxicated. Police said they were both fined $130 this morning.

Wayne Goode of Dexter was arrested on a charge of public intoxication last night, police reported.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
PEACE AT ANY PRICE

Congressional "doves" are up in arms over a taped television interview and a 30-minute film made by the Republican National Committee involving a former Special Forces Major, James Rowe. Major Rowe was a prisoner of war, held captive by the Communist Viet Cong for over five years.

In his statements the Major declared that his cover story to his captors was "blown" when an unnamed U.S. "peace" group turned over his biography to his Red captors. The AP story failed to note if the doves ever questioned what "peace group" endangers our American soldiers now being held by the communists.

Major Rowe incurred the wrath of the "doves" by stating that the American POWs, to quote the AP release, "largely ignored Hanoi's propaganda until late 1967 when it began quoting U. S. senators by name and citing U. S. newspaper, magazine and news agency reports of antiwar demonstrations." Rowe specifically mentioned statements by Sens. Fulbright (D-Ark.), Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, George McGovern (D-S.D.) and Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) "The peace demonstrators and the disheartening words of these senators made our life most difficult," was Major Rowe's testimony before the House Armed Services Committee. "It helped to break the spirit of Americans and boost the morale of the Viet Cong."

We can well understand the reason for the uproar. It is one thing to have it said here that the tactics of the peace at any price advocates are prolonging the war and endangering the safety of our men in the field. It is another thing to have it said by one who has paid the price of defeatism.

SHAKEUP AT THE NLRB

President Nixon's corporate constituency is waiting hungrily for an announcement any day that liberal Republican Sam Zagoria will be replaced by a conservative on the National Labor Relations Board. Zagoria's term expires at midnight on Tuesday, Dec. 16, and the betting is that Nixon will both replace him and name the new appointee chairman.

Of all the regulatory agencies, the NLRB is the one the Republicans would like to see adopt new policies. Businessmen contend the board is pro-labor and that it has put the employer at a disadvantage in bargaining with unions. One trouble has been that the two Republican members – Howard Jenkins Jr. and Zagoria -- often side with the three-man Democratic majority. The U. S. Chamber of Commerce, among others, has led the cry that it is time for a change at 1717 Pennsylvania Ave.

Another replacement will come next August when the term of Democrat Frank W. McCulloch, the chairman, runs out. McCulloch can be downgraded to just another board member before then because NLRB chairmen serve at the pleasure of the President.

The NLRB's importance stems from its role as an adjudicator of charges of unfair labor practices on the part of employers or unions. It also enforces requirements for collective bargaining, supervises election of bargaining representatives, and decides jurisdictional disputes. Changes in direction of decisions are likely to be slow. All members must abide by the basic tenet of the National Labor Relations Act of 1935, which specifically encourages the practice of collective bargaining in order to eliminate obstructions to the free flow of commerce. Like the Supreme Court, however, nothing prevents NLRB members from reading or reflecting the election returns.

MERRY CHRISTMAS - RED STYLE

Once again - for the fourth consecutive year - the so-called German Democratic Republic (Communist) East Germany, is refusing to allow free access to West Berlin during the Christmas season. The "Wall of Shame" will remain closed and the million or more captive citizens will be denied the right to visit with their relatives, if any, in the free sector.

While it is true that the Berlin Wall represents a "defeat" for the Communist system, this is of little comfort to those who are forced to view the hideous structure from the inside. Fortunate are those who over the years have managed to escape despite the erection of the Wall, but we should all pause during this the happiest season of the year and pay humble respect to those who have given their lives trying to gain their freedom. It is difficult, for we in America who have known only freedom throughout our lives, to imagine having to risk one's life, leaving all possessions behind, just to cross a border. Yet, hundreds have done so and died in the attempt.

Our prayers should, also, be with those in the enslaved portion of Berlin, in fact all those behind the Iron and Bamboo Curtains, who lack the ingenuity or the means or, perhaps, the courage to attempt to reach the world beyond the walls and the barbed wire fences. For them there will be only the sounds of freedom wafting over the barriers. For them the gay season will be only a memory of what once was and may never be again. For them life will continue to be servitude for the State. For them Christmas will be a day to be carried only in the heart. The only open display will be that which is controlled by the State.

So we hang our stockings by the chimney with care. We decorate our Christmas trees. Shoppers will fill the streets. Cars, filled with loved ones, will travel the highways on their way to exchange visits and gifts. The office parties will be gay and free. Toasts will be offered, ... but not in the land east of the Wall. There you will see some window dressing - but just enough to arrange for the manufacture of Christmas ornaments for export to the capitalist countries. The profits from these pretty trinkets will help to enrich the slavers and strengthen the shackles of the enslaved. Here, baubles of happiness to adorn our trees. There, more bricks and barbed wire for the obscene Wall.

A VIEW OF CHICAGO'S ORDEAL BY FIRE

One of the Yippies was so dirty - he said he hadn't taken a bath for 14 months - the doctors would touch him only with rubber gloves. Such is one of the many facts revealed in these excerpts from a letter written by a Chicago woman to her Dallas relatives.

Too bad you weren't in Chicago last week. You could have got in on all the excitement. Still, if you're looking for kicks, come up now. You have never heard or seen the people of Chicago in such an uproar.

What you saw on TV wasn't even half the story of what went on. Of course, most was so obscene it couldn't be shown. They showed you the police attacking "innocent children," but they didn't show you the "youngsters" throwing bags of human excrement at the police or the balloons filled with urine or the golf balls with 10 - penny nails embedded in them. Naturally they also threw such mundane things as rocks, full beer cans, bricks, etc.

You also didn't see the "kids" walking around the Loop with a four-letter word written in lipstick on their foreheads. Best of all they didn't show you what went on in Grant Park - the nude bathing in the fountains, the men walking around with their pants open and the whole bunch using the park as an outdoor toilet.

You should see what they have done to the park. You wouldn't believe it. It's all brown and the grass and flowers are gone. There are burned spots all over where they lit their bonfires. The filth is unimaginable.

They also didn't tell you about the "children" that tore the snow fences apart in the park, drove nails through the pickets and used them as javelins. Or the sweet little things that embedded razor blades in the toes of their shoes and kicked the police. Or the darlings running around the cans of oven cleaner that they sprayed in the policemen's faces.

The delegates were moaning about the poor children. The newspapers here published their ages - 45, 39, 35, 33, 27, 29, etc.

I don't think I have ever seen Chicago so unified on anything in my life as it is over condemning these Yippies and praising the police. People have been calling the radio stations all week with stories of things that happened to them downtown and things they saw. Some of the stories are so filthy you can hardly believe them.

One girl I know was on duty at Mercy Hospital in the emergency room, and she said one of the Yippies they brought in for treatment was so dirty the doctors wouldn't touch him without rubber gloves. He admitted he hadn't had a bath in 14 months.

A policeman I know was down at the Hilton. He said the kids were trying to provoke the police lined up in front of the hotel. When they didn't get any response a wave of them came across the street with their pants open, attacked the line and ran back into the park. The police had orders to stand and take the stuff and not pursue them, but by that night they just couldn't take any more. That's when all the clubbing started, and that was all that anyone saw on TV.

In a way something good came out of the whole thing, though. I don't think anyone in Chicago will swallow whole hog anything they hear on TV anymore. It was rather frightening to see how the news was slanted.

Well, it's all over and done with for us, anyway, but some other cities are going to have to take it soon. Before leaving Chicago the leaders of the hippies stated their plans now were to tear apart the colleges the way they tore apart the convention. We'll see how other police departments handle it.

PENNSYLVANIANS DRIVE AGAINST COMPULSION . . . Reminded of their political loyalties by union bosses heading the AFL-CIO, Pennsylvania State Education Association (PSEA) and Pennsylvania Nurses Association, Pennsylvania House passed a bill (H.R. 1443) on July 29 that would expose state's public employees to compulsory unionism. Bill has been referred to Senate Labor Committee. Hard-hitting Pennsylvanians for Right to Work organization is mounting all-out drive to make sure bill is amended to provide Right to Work protection while pushing for passage of S. 355 - bill backed by Pennsylvania Governor Raymond Shafer that contains Right to Work protection for state's 446,000 state and local employees.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Christmas Eve is the night for the fathers of America to assemble.

They don't get together. They put together.

It happens every year, but somehow it always seems to come as a surprise.

This is because no father in his right mind walks into a toy store and asks for a box of spare parts to put under the tree for Junior or Juniorette. He asks for this bicycle or that tricycle or this toy sink or that doll house. He sees them, assembled and shiny.

But he walks out of the toy store with a box of spare parts, which he hides in the attic.

Then he burns the midnight oil into the wee hours of Christmas morning, trying to read the simple directions or—more likely—trying to put the toy together before he finally looks a the simple directions.

Except for the pictures, the directions don't seem to help much, because most of them read as if they were written by a Japanese who learned English in school—a Japanese school.

Somehow, though, he always manages to get things together in time to lie down, at least, before the youngsters awake gleefully to "see what Santa Claus brought me!"

It may well be this lack of credit where credit is due which leads some progressive types to teach their youngsters, from the time they are old enough to walk, the true facts of Christmas life.

On the other hand, it is the toymakers' dependence on the free labors of fathers which has helped make toys one of the biggest bargains around. They have to keep them simple.

The design of a coaster wagon, like that of the Volkswagen, hasn't changed much in 30 years. And 30 years ago, my father could have bought me the most expensive coaster wagon advertised for $14.95. Today, I can buy my son, Drew, the most expensive wagon offered by a nationwide department store chain for $19.99.

Like my father, I'd have o put it together—and gain a little appreciation for the old man in the process.

Or, take bicycles. Except for the complicated 3- and 5-gear models, which weren't around 30 years ago, the price rise is comparable to coaster wagons. The advertised range of Christmas bikes in 1939 was $23.95$42.95, while similar bikes sell today for $29-$59.95.

Bikes have another advantage over cars. I once put the handlebars on backwards. Before I discovered the mistake, Drew decided he liked them so much that way he wouldn't let me fix them.

Lucy was constantly losing boyfriends because of her grandmother's tendency to say the wrong things to them in her attempts to be modern.

One day her current beau arrived while Lucy was upstairs changing, and the old lady started to brag about her granddaughter.

"I think Lucy would rather foog than eat," Granny chatted cheerfully to the young man. "There's hardly a young man around she hasn't fooged with, and she even has a record to foog by."

The young man blushed, stammered, grabbed his hat and beat it out the door.

A moment later, Lucy came downstairs, noted his absence and said, "All right, Granny, what did you say this time?"

"Nothing," protested the old lady. "I was just telling him how much you liked to foog when he ran right out the door."

"Oh, my goodness, Granny, how many times must I tell you that the word is not foog, it's 'frug.' "

"Mama," asked little Jimmy one day, "Where do baby chicks come from?"

"Why, from eggs, of course," she replied.

"And where do eggs come from?"

"The mama hen lays them."

About a week later Jimmy happened to overhear his nineteen- year- old sister tell the mother that she was going to have a baby. Later that evening Jimmy sought out his sister, asking:

"Did you lay an egg, Sis?"

"No," came her sad reply. "Some egg laid me!"

GOOD REASONING

IT SEEMED THAT one time William Wrigley, the chewing gum king, was riding in an airliner when his seat companion said:

"I can't understand, Bill, why you keep pouring millions of dollars every year into advertising when everyone is already aware of your product."

Mr. Wrigley meditated for a minute, then seemed to change the subject.

"Tell me," he said, "how fast would you say this plane is going?" The other fellow answered, "About 600 miles per hour."

"In that case," said Mr. Wrigley, "why don't they just throw out the motors and let the plane continue on its own momentum?"

PRICELESS PRIVILEGES

The rights of U.S. citizenship include freedom of religion, speech and press, freedom of peaceable assembly, the right to own property and arms, and equality before the law. Only a tiny proportion of the people who ever lived on earth have enjoyed this state of personal independence and freedom from tyranny.

An article in Traffic Manager magazine points out that to pay for his rights every U.S. citizen is expected to be loyal to his country, obey its laws, vote in its elections, pay taxes for the support of government and serve in the armed forces if called. Some of our people seem to want the rights and privileges of U.S. citizenship but are unwilling to pay the price for them in return. We should remember that you never get something for nothing, least of all the priceless privilege of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

COMMUNISTS ON THE PUBLIC PAYROLL

Earlier this year the University of California, which has promoted, publicized, defended and given positions of authority to persons who openly proclaim their allegiance to movements committed to breaking the law, hired an admitted communist named Angela Davis to teach philosophy.

The people of the state of California, whose taxes pay the salary of University professors, had the right to expect that the regents of the University would fire Miss Davis and maintain their policy of refusing to employ professed communists.

Yet a Superior Court judge has ruled that the University of California regents may not discharge members of the communist party from the teaching faculty, thus forcing the employment at public expense of teachers who openly work for the violent overthrow of our government.

It is as though a man owned a house in a city where the courts ruled that he had to allow thieves and robbers to enter his house at will. Under such circumstances his title to the house and property would be meaningless.

By this decision, the courts have completely usurped the authority of the r ents of the State Legislature. If the ruling is upheld by the United States Supreme Court, tax-supported colleges and universities throughout the country will become open propaganda forums for the avowed enemies of freedom and of our Republic.

No right of free speech or association guarantees an individual a tax-paid job. Congress, which has the power to limit the jurisdiction of the courts, should act to protect the rights of the peoples' representatives to determine how public funds should be spent. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- President Nixon wasn't bluffing when he threatened to veto "inflationary" legislation, such as the 15 per cent increase in Social Security benefits and the $200 boost in personal income tax exemptions.

He made this clear to Republican congressional leaders the other day at a White House political powwow. In language intended for GOP ears only, he warned: "I'm going to be awfully tough."

He appealed to his leaders on Capitol Hill to stand up for fiscal responsibility .

"I'd like you in Congress," he said, "to take as much heat as you can.

The President brought in his chief economic adviser, Paul McCracken, to lecture the congressional leaders about inflation.

"We are at an extremely critical stage in trying to get the economy on an orderly path," declared McCracken. "There is tangible evidence that the economy is slowly beginning to respond."

He ticked off some of the favorable signs but cautioned: "The key issue in whether we can continue this progress is unquestionably the budget outlook."

As he explained it, "Every dollar released into the economy produced about two dollars impact on the economy. A $5 billion deficit means $10 billion inflation. This would add excessive pressure, expressing itself in terms of higher price level."

He reported that business leaders had "deep skepticism about the ability of government to hold down inflationary pressures.

"But, if we can establish credibility in fiscal responsibility," he promised, "some of these problems will begin to clear up within the next 12 months. The President, turning to new Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns, asked: "Do you agree, Arthur?"

"I agree," said Burns. "This is a critical time. I urge you to veto legislation which overspends and to impound funds."

"I won't need any urging on budget cuts," the President replied.

"We've got to be a responsible administration. We Republicans want to be responsible. We must keep at it."

--CHRISTMAS PROBE--

Congress has a yuletide surprise for banks with Christmas Club accounts Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., has ordered an investigation into how they've been shortchanging their Christmas customers all these years.

He made spot checks of ten banking institutions in the Washington area, preliminary to a nationwide study of Christmas Club accounts. This confidential survey showed only two banks paid interest, while five actually penalized savers if they didn't make their full 48 or 50 weeks of payments.

Rosential can't understand why banks charging 10 per cent interest shouldn't show the Christmas clubbers just a little more holiday generosity. The Congressman has asked the Federal Reserve Board for figures on how many Americans have Christmas Club accounts.

Then he will either hold hearings or introduce legislation to force federally chartered banks to pay interest to the Christmas clubbers.

--BOBBY BAKER'S FRIEND

Like birds of a feather, wheeler-dealers apparently have an affinity for one another. This was discovered by a group of Rhodes scholars a year ago on their way to Oxford aboard the Europe-bound SS United States.

The students discovered that Bobby Baker, the ex-Senate aide whose backdoor deals made him a front-page figure, was on board. As a lark, they invited him to a birthday party. He showed up in a tuxedo, accompanied by a restless, voluble little man who identified himself as Dr. Martin Sweig.

This was the same Sweig who has now been suspended by Speaker John McCormack for using the Speaker's name -- and occasionally imitating his voice -- to fix contracts and cases before federal agencies.

After the party, five of the students were invited to the Baker suite for a nightcap. Sweig also was in attendance, attired in pajamas and bathrobe and chomping a cigar, McCormack-style. The students were fascinated by Sweig's outspoken opinions on almost everything.

"Dr. Sweig claimed he had absolute control over the Speaker's appointment schedule and implied that he also had a lot of control over the decision-making," remembers one student. "He said, in a number of different ways, that he was the most powerful man on the Hill."

Sweig sounded off at length against the civil rights movement and said that "Dr. Martin Luther King got what he deserved." Sweig's views were so extreme, indeed, that one student jokingly asked him whether the United States should bomb Peking.

"Peking, hell!" Sweig retorted. "We should be bombing Moscow."

He boasted that he had once fired a junior intern in the Speaker's office because the young man opposed the Vietnam War. Sweig just didn't want anybody around who thought that way, he said.

The following day, Sweig invited one of the Rhodes scholars to lunch. The student was dismayed to hear Sweig say "exactly the same things, sober, that he had been saying the night before between drinks."

SEEK NEUTRAL NEUTRALISM:

U.S. Longshoremen Paralyze First Swedish Ship As Warning Against $45 Million Aid To Hanoi

New York: — The quality of their mercy did not quite strain. the Swedish diplomats who came to watch our picket line. The rains fell in sheets of raw sleet upon us as we tramped the edge of the West Side Pier. Idle before us was the Swedish-American luxury liner M.S. Gripsholm, paralyzed that morning of Dec. 8 by a boycott of chanting longshoremen and one newsman in dark glasses who proudly joined these workingmen in their dissent against Sweden's "loan" and gifts of $45 million to Hanoi.

I walked arm in arm with longshoremen's leader Johnny Bowers at the entrance of Pier 97. Above us hulked the Gripsholm. Behind us marched hundreds of dock- wallopers. They were not unloading the cruise ship. Their hands were filled. Their fists curled around sticks of placards reading – so all could see: "American Tourist Dollars Spent on M.S. Gripsholm Could End Up In Hanoi."

"M.S. Gripsholm Crew: — Swedish Money Used for Loans To Communist Hanoi. Tell Them to Stay Neutral... Don't let Hanoi Build Coffins for American GIs..."

"We Protest Swedish Kronor to Hanoi to Buy Bullets to Kill American GIs."

"Sweden Can Help in a Humanitarian Cause. Tell Hanoi to Free American POWs on a Fair Exchange Basis."

These were the words of working people. Theirs, too, is the right to dissent. Whether they are in the majority or not, they have resolved not to be silent. The Gripsholm came in early that morning. It was moored safely. But no baggage, no freight was trundled off by members of the International Longshoremen's Assn. Local 824, AFL— CIO. No one wanted anyone hurt. But no one wanted to help the Swedish government make a profit which will be shared with the forces of Hanoi. There were strong men on that line behind Johnny Bowers. Have you ever seen strong men weep? Well, some of them have lost sons under Vietcong fire. The rains came on the docks. But they did not hide the tears.

This picketing is the first warning in action. It brought out John Fraser, the Swedish American Line's Chief Executive officer for the U.S. and Canada.

He and "Johnny" talked quietly. Yes, said Mr. Fraser, he would communicate Mr. Bowers' message to the Swedish Ambassador in Washington. He would report that the longshoremen meant business. He understood – as did Stockholm's diplomats here-- that next would come to the boycotting of two big Swedish freighters carrying Volvos and Saabs, the small cars which bring so many American dollars into the Swedish economy– giving it the kind of surplus which makes possible a $45 million "aid" program for North Vietnam. Then would come to the full boycott of all Swedish vessels in Atlantic, Gulf and Great Lake ports– and finally economic war on Sweden itself.

This could hurt. The Volvos are made near Goteborg, Sweden. Some 600 sub-contractors are kept busy all over the "neutral" nation, whose 42- year- old, jogging, tennis-playing sports fan premier, Olof Palme, has said publicity he prefers the Community dictatorship in Hanoi to the U.S. supported regime in Saigon.

The U.S. is closing our 172-year- old consulate in Gotesborg– and the protests from that port city are loud. But it is from that harbor that much of the rehabilitation cargos will go to Haiphong.

And when ILA executive Vice President John Bowers returned to his headquarters, he found Ivar Noren, the Swedish Embassy's labor attache. Mr. Noren talked for a long time. Don't pay attention to journalists, said he, referring to the newsmen in Sweden as well as this columnist. Point is, every time Swedish Prime Minister Palme, or his Foreign Minister Torsten Nilsson denounce the U.S. and pledge money in $15 million blocks to Hanoi, Sweden's foreign office, consuls, information centers and labor leaders phone, write and cable that they have been misquoted by the American wire service, by Reuters and "even the New York Times."

The Swedish labor attache said that the money now going to Hanoi was for "humanitarian needs, you know, medicine." Mr. Bowers, from the old Hell's Kitchen but softspoken, asked if any of the Swedish humanitarian money would be earmarked for American prisoners of war who were in the concentration camps "in the vicinity" of Hanoi. Mr. Noren replied, well, he could not say that. Mr. Bowers asked if any of the medicines would be given to the American prisoners. Mr. Noren, said he could not give such assurance.

And Johnny said, what about the list of U.S. prisoners of war? If Sweden is so neutral could they not get a reciprocal humanitarian gesturyin return for the $45 million and convince the recipient of "your generosity" to tell American women if they are widows or wives? Mr. Noren averred that he could do little about this. And Mr. Bowers asked how could your government prefer this dictatorship to friendship with America; how could Sweden's laborite prime minister make common cause with a dictatorship which crushes unions and kills off labor leaders and prohibits strikes? The labor attache could say little.

After 45 minutes Sweden's Socialist- labor diplomat left in anger. He went out into the rain. But it was not sleeting in Johnny Bowers' office. Those were tears "Johnny" saw on the cheeks of the longshoreman who had sat through he interview with him. The fellow dockwalloper had lost a son in the blood laden rice paddies.

He could see nothing humanitarian in the labor atache's swiftly retreating figure.

Ann Landers

Former Wife Adopted Parents of Ex-Spouse

Dear Ann Landers: What can I do about an ex-wife who invites herself to my parent's home and tries to get herself included in all the family affairs?

I would like to see my parents once in a while but I'm afraid to go over there because my former wife is always hanging around. I am uncomfortable in her presence and would travel fifty miles to avoid her. She still wears her wedding ring and acts as if she is married to me.

It isn't as if she is an orphan, Ann. This woman has parents in town but she rarely sees them. She prefers mine. It has made an orphan out of me, however, and I resent it. Any suggestions? --Fed Up

Dear Fed: Instead of dropping in on your parents, let them know in advance when you plan to see them, then call before you set out. If your former wife is visiting when you call they should tell her you are coming and suggest that she return another time. If they feel they cannot do this and she is present when you arrive say, "I'll see you another time, folks." --and leave.

Dear Ann Landers: My daughter is one of the brightest, most talented young women in this town, but she is no beauty. Cora is flat chested, broadbeamed and she walks like a duck. Eight years ago Cora married Lester. He is so handsome that heads turn when he enters a room. Lester was completely faithful to my daughter for about three months, then he started to disappear from his bed at 2:00 A.M. Sometimes he'd slip back at 6:00 Other times she'd meet him in the kitchen at 6:30 when she went to prepare breakfast. Last year two married women offered to leave their husbands for him. Yesterday a school teacher came to see my daughter and asked her to free Lester so they could find true happiness together. When Cora told Lester he could go if he wanted to, he replied, "That girl is nuts. I hardly know her."

My daughter is not concerned about any of this. She says he is a wonderful husband and a fine father to their three children. I knew Lester's father and two of his uncles. They were the same way. Lester also has a brother who is a chaser. Can it be an illness that runs in families? Please tell me what I can do about it.

Connecticut Woe

Dear Woe: Chasing isn't inherited, although it can run in families. No doubt Lester got his ideas fom the invironment he grew up in. As for what you can do about it, the answer is nothing. It is not your problem and apparently your daughter is coping with it. So keep your oar out of her water, Mother.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 14-year-old boy who acts dumb and feels like everybody is looking at him and thinking "What a knot-head!" I say stupid things and then I could kick myself. I do dumb things to get attention and when I get the attention I am embarrassed and wish they would look at somebody else. As you can see, I'm a nut. I feel awkward and ugly and my face has the beginning of acne and my hands and feet are too big for the rest of me. Please tell me what it takes to get over these faults. --Mr. Nothing

Dear Mr.: About four years --maybe less. But be patient, pal, you're more normal than you think.

Christmas can be a problem. What can you give the person who has everything? Ann Landers' new book, "Truth Is Stranger," is available in book stores. It can also be obtained by writing Prentice Hall, Englewood Cliffs, New Jersey. Price, $4.95.

CANDY CANES arranged by Mrs. Gene Collins, entwined with greenery over the fireplace mantel, one of many decorations to be found in the Collins home, 710 Mimosa. The home will be one of four to visited on the Women's Civic Club Christmas Home tour, Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. Other decorations, many of them handmade, will include Christmas tree with handmade ornaments, a two 12-inch ball made of boxwood foliage and trimmed in red, together with decorations in a recreation basement for teenagers, and a lighted trellis made of greenery.

Sikeston Little Theatre Opens Season With Christie's 'Mousetrap'

By LYNN COLLEY

Theatre - goers appeared to thoroughly enjoy the opening production of Little Theatre's 1969-70 season last evening. The local group presented Agatha Christie's murder - mystery, the MOUSETRAP to a crowd of approximately 150.

Ricky Venson, a newcomer to Little Theatre, certainly commanded the stage during his scenes. Venson did a remarkable job of his portrayal of Christopher Wren, the young man wo is trying to become an architect. The "Tamest" of the house guests, Wren falls in love with everything and anybody in sight, the four - poster bed, the kitchen, and proves that he is even man enough to accept the fact that he cannot have chintz roses on his bedspread. As the slightly effinimate Wren, young Venson will be remember for many seasons.

Equally convincing in his portrayal of the policeman is Mike Long. In the guest house to investigate a recent murder, Long disrupts the "normal" events. Although he appears rather young to be a policeman, his thorough yet casual manner more than compensate for his age. His inquisitive manner is excellently brought out in his cross examination of the guests.

Barbara Gentry, as Miss Caswell, interprets her role of a young lady with a mysterious past quite well. Miss Caswell, it appears knows more than she tells, and piece by piece she reveals her knowledge of the murder. Caustic to those she dislikes, cool to those she can tolerate, she delights in irritating the other guests.

Rev. Joe Black, no stranger to little Theatre goers, proves he can play almost any role. Quite a switch from Peter Marshall to the uninvited guest whose mysterious mannerisms confound everyone. Black is able to convince the audience that he might be a re-incarnated Don Juan, a smuggler, a conninsiour of fine foods, or even a murderer. Black changes character almost as the mood strikes him, much to the delight of the audience.

Lynn Shy, appearing on stage for the second time, does a very convincing job in his characterization of the guest house owner, suspicous that the guests plan to leave in the middle of the night with every sheet and piece of silver in the house. Shy appeared to be rather nervous at the beginning of the play but quickly overcame this as the other characters gave him something to "put his teeth into."

Allan Harris, another Little Theatre favorite, is very good as Major Medcalf, Harris' interpretation of his character as a cool reserved, and always completely "under control" man, makes Medcalf suspect immediately to the murder that has occurred. Harris makes Medcalf into the type of character that a family wouldn't mind having for a long visit.

Jo Anne Williamson handles the character of Molly Ralston quite well. Molly, like the other characters, knows more than she is telling and Jo Ann is able to string the audience along as she unfolds her true nature. A newcomer, Jo Ann has learned well the ways of the stage.

Elizabeth Nall plays Mrs. Boyle ... the murder victum. Liz does a convincing job of making the other characters as well as most of the audience dislike her hauty, demanding and aristocratic nature. Also a newcomer to little theatre, Liz will certainly be seen in future plays.

The sound and lighting crew are to be commended for a job well done. In a mystery both can be a valuable asset.

The state was well done and seemed to set the mood for the play. Myra DaVault and Joel Allen, co-directors, both saw their week of hard work repaid tonight as the audience sat quietly attempting to decide from every clue, who the murderer actually was and when he would strike again. I believe it can be safely said that very few people in the audience realized how the play would end, and that appears to be a good sign for a mystery.

The play will be presented again tonight and Saturday night at 8:00 p.m. in the Middle School Auditorium.

Lord Harlech, With Daughters, Marries Unconventional (?)

LONDON (AP) — Lord Harlech's long-haired, frilly-shirted sons and maxi-skirted, bead-festooned daughters virtually stole the show today at their father's wedding to American fashion editor Pamela Colin.

Ranging in age from 27 to 14, Francis, Alice, Victoria, Jane, and Julian Orsmby-Gore stood out amid the conventionally clad guests from the worlds of politics, diplomacy, society and show business. Princess Margaret, her husband, Lord Snowdown, and former Prime Minister Harold MacMillan headed the guest list.

The 33-year-old bride was among the conventionally dressed, wearing an anklelength white gown in Grecian style. Her father, New York lawyer Ralph D. Colin, gave her away.

It was the second marriage for Harlech, 51. His first wife died in an automobile accident in 1967.

The Gospel Visitor

By: REEDUS M. BAUGHER

We have been pointing out in this series of lessons, that the New Testament church is different from every other religion and system. Thus far, we have seen it is different from: (1) Paganism, because of its belief and service to one Supreme God. And, (2) Judaism, mainly because of its belief in Jesus Christ, as the Son of God. Today, we will notice that it is different from: (3) Catholicism, mainly because, of its belief in the all sufficiency of the Bible, as the word of God.

The Catholic church is the result of departure from the faith. The inspired apostle Paul wrote years before the Catholic church began, and said, "Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils; Speaking lies in hypocrisy; having their conscience seared with a hot iron; Forbidding to marry, and commanding to obstain from meats, which God hath created to be received with thanksgiving of them which believe and know the truth." (1 Tim. 4:1-3)

The Catholic church teaches, "That the scriptures alone cannot be a sufficient guide and rule of faith." (This statement taken from one of their own books, "Faith of our Fathers, pp. 89, 90) The claim is made by them, that the church has authority to decide truth, and make new revelations. To them the tradition of "fathers" is equal to the scriptures. Contrary to these ideas, the Bible teaches that God's word is not only sifficient, but also complete. "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be throughly furnished unto all good works." (2 Tim. 3:16 -17) We learn from Jude, that "the faith was once delivered," (Jude 3) And from Peter, that the "divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness." (2 Pet. 1:3) Paul said, he wrote by "revelation," and when we read we can understand. (Eph. 3:3-4) All human additions and changes are forbidden. (Gal. 1:6-9) All commandments and traditions of men is vain worship. (Matt. 15:90

The major conflict centers around the all sufficiency of the Bible as opposed to "authority" of the Catholic church; this authority being invested in the "pope" as the head and spokesman for that body. Jesus said, "all power (authority) is given unto me in heaven and in earth." (Matt. 28:19) No room here for authority to anyone before or after Christ.

Briggs, Metz On SEMO St. Varsity

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The Sikeston area youths, Larry Briggs of Charleston and Don Metz of Oran are member s of the varsity basketball squad at Southeast Missouri State College.

Briggs, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eunis Briggs of 508 Lincoln, Charleston, has been a starter in each of Southeast Missouri's games so far this season.

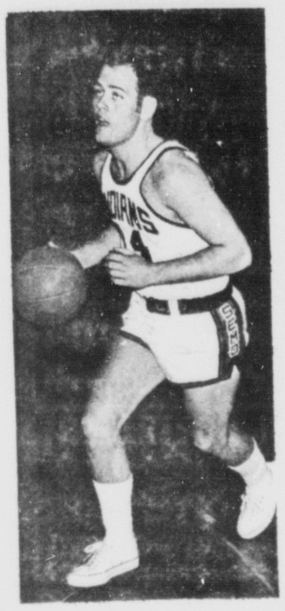

The 6-2 junior physical education major is currently the team's leading rebounder, averaging 8 caroms per game. He is also averaging 8 points per game, with his highest single output of the year 12 points in Southeast Missouri's 88-86 win over the University of Missouri -- St. Louis.

Briggs, who plays at either forward or center, appeared in 9 games for Southeast Missouri lat season, some of them as a starter. During the season he averaged 5.8 rebounds and 7.5 points per game.

Metz, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Metz of 320 Mulberry, Oran, is always one of the first players called upon when Indian coach Charles Parsley has to go to the bench for a guard. He has appeared in two games this year for the Indians.

Last season the 5-11 senior made 15 appearances, scoring 31 points. He is majoring in physical education and minoring in biology.

During the spring Metz is a regular on the Southeast Missouri baseball team while Briggs devotes his efforts to running track.

Senators Wager on Orange Bowl

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Orange Bowl game on New Year's Day may cost Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott (R-Penn) a Pennsylvania turkey if the Missouri Tigers beat Penn State.

Scott challenged Senator Stuart Symington (D-Mo) to match the turkey by wagering a Missouri product on the outcome of the game. Symington accepted the challenge and countered with a Missouri ham.

In his letter accepting Scott's challenge, Symington said: "In that Missouri is one of the top-ranked turkey producing states as well as the producer of world celebrated hams, we can't imagine a Pennsylvania turkey being the equivalent of a Missouri country ham."

"Nevertheless, with full confidence in the University of Missouri Tigers and recognizing that you have to support Penn State, I accept your challenge and we look forward to eating that Pennsylvania turkey with great pleasure."

Symington added, "It will indeed be an exciting engagement and may the best team, Missouri, win."

Scott, in making the challenge, said: "Pennsylvanians and a great many sportswriters believe Penn State to be the number one team in the Nation." Scott added that he is confident that Penn State will officially become the Nation's Number one team "after it defeats Missouri and if Notre Dame beats Texas in the Cotton Bowl."

But, Senator Symington, who saw Missouri beat Air Force, Nebraska and Oklahoma in Columbia, Missouri, this year, believes the Tigers will prove Senator Scott wrong.

McCovey, Top NL Slugger In '69

CINCINNATI (AP) — Willie McCovey of the jsan Francisco Giants and the Cincinnati Reds took slugging honors in the National League during the 1969 season.

Officials "miscellaneous records" released today showed McCovey, the league's most Valuable Player, won the individual title for the second straight year. His hits accounted for 322 total bases in 491 times at bat for a slugging average of .656. That was well ahead of Atlanta's Hank Aaron who had a .607 average on 332 total bases in 547 times at bat.

The Reds took the team slugging title with 2,379 total bases in 5,634 times at bat for a .422 average. The Pittsburgh Pirates, who nosed out the Reds for the team batting championship, were second in slugging with 2,238 total bases in 5,626 times at bat for a .398 average.

The Reds had four players among the top 15 individual sluggers and the Pirates had two.

Lee May of Cincinnati was sixth with .529; Tony Perez finished in a tie with Rusty Staub of Montreal for seventh with .526; Pete Rose was ninth with .512 and Johnny Bench was 12th with .487.

The Pirates grabbed off the fourth and fifth positions with Willie Stargell at .556 and Roberto Clemente at .544.

McCovey also entered his name into the major league record books by receiving 45 intentional walks.

Aron's 332 total bases led the league and it was the eighth time he has done that——a major league record.

Bobby Bonds of San Francisco set a major league record of striking out 187 times.

Another player who led the league in a category which he would just as soon forget was Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs. He grounded into 21 double plays. Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals was the top man among regulars in avoiding hitting into double plays. He did it only twice.

Jim Wynn of Houston drew 148 walks and that tied a National League record set by Eddie Stanky of 1945 Brooklyn Dodgers.

Ron Hunt of San Francisco was the favorite hit-by-pitcher target. He was hit by pitches 25 times.

In all, the National League set 25 League records and 38 Major League marks. Some, of course, were merely extensions of records previously set by the same player or team.

Wayne Granger, Cincinnati relief pitcher, set one by appearing in 90 games.

The .242 batting average compiled by the New York Mets was a record low for a National League pennant winner.

There also was a league record for home runs with the bases filled. National Leaguers did it 40 times during the season.

Wave, Lions In Title Bout

CAMPBELL — Malden and Senath - Hornersville pulled out victories in last nights semi-finals of the Campbell Junior Varsity Tournament and will battle for the little Saturday night. In the first game, it was Malden gliding over Campbell 78-56, and Senath-Hornersville over Holcomb 35-19, in the low scoring nightcap.

Holcomb and Campbell will battle it out Saturday night at 6:30 p.m. for third place honors.

The Malden JV's seemed to have everything going for them as they controlled the game from the beginning as they built up a 31-10 first quarter lead. The host Campbell squad just couldn't get anything rolling as the Jr. Wave controlled the boards and out shot the Campbell's from all over the court.

Malden, with five players reaching the double figures, dominated the scoring with Lea connecting for 18, Dortch 15, Sherrod 14, Bowman 13, and Halford 12.

For Campbell, Carter netted 16, and teammate Bradon 10, in Campbell's loosing effert.

Holcomb managed only 19 points to Senath- Hornersville's 35, as their championship hopes fell. Senath- Hornersville's fine shooting and control of the rebounds handed the JV Lions a chance for top honors in Saturday's matdh. The Holcomb squad quickly fell behind in the first half where they trailed 19-5, and were never able to overcome the deficit.

Scoring for Senath-Hornersville fell into the hands of Christionan with 13, and Moore following with 11.

Holcomb's honors went to Reeves with 8, as Haris aidded with 5.

Scoring:

SENATH-HORNERSVILLE (35)
Moore 11, Christian 13, Hardin 2, Lincoln 3, Layne 4, McNave 2, TEAM TOTALS: FG-16; FT-3; PF-5.

Sports Corner

By Ron Jaynes Sports Editor

We set out on our second attempt at predicting the winners on the hardwoods, going into tonight's round ith a .818 mark on 18 of 22 calls.

When we miss... we really do... ask the laughing fans at Cape Girardeau Central; Puxico; Clarkton; and Senath- Hornersville.

Enough for that...

Here goes tonight's calls.

BELL CITY AT BERNIE ---The Mules seemingly have shed their early jinx and have been kicking high lately. Bell City could be tough... but we'll go with the host. Bernie 63, Bell City 49.

CAPE CENTRAL AT SIKESTON --- Experience, height and a big desire to tople the Bulldogs will go along way for the Bengals tonight... all the way to a victory. Cape 66, Sikeston 55.

ZALMA AT OAK RIDGE--- Chalk up another victory for Oak Ridge... number eight. Oak Ridge 72, Zalma 60.

SOUTH PEMISCOT AT COOTER --- The South will rise again after its upset of Tuesday evening. South P. 63, Cooter 49.

CHARLESTON AT PUXICO --- It might seem we have something against the Indians... but we'll go against them again tonight. Charleston 89, Puxico 84.

HOLCOMB AT NORTH PEMISCOT --- Another victory for the North... North Pemiscot 66, Holcomb 51.

EAST PRAIRIE AT DEXTER ---We might be wrong... but, Dexter 67, East Prairie 55.

NEELYVILLE AT TWIN RIVERS --- Its another victory for coach Charles Moffitt's Tigers... Neelyville 78, Twin Rivers 45.

KENNETT AT MALDEN --- Its hard to tell what will happen when these two Dunklin County rivals battle ... we'll say... Malden 71, Kennett 58.

CLARKTON AT SOUTHLAND ---The home court advantage will settle this battle... Southland 64, Clarkton 55.

ADVANCE AT NOTRE DAME--- This could be the first.. defeat for the Hornets... but we think not. Advance 70, Notre Dame 59.

DELTA AT ILLMO- SCOTT CITY --- It'll take some big guns to bring down the Bobcats this season... the Rams have none. Delta 91, I-SC 55.

GIDEON AT NEW MADRID --- After the scare Risco gave the Indians Tuesday night... the Indians will be ready for the Bulldogs. New Madrid 69, Gideon 50.

WOODLAND AT KELLY --- It takes some doing for the Cardinals to remain undefeated as the Hawks can pull the surprise... we see... Woodland 72, Kelly 55.

DELTA C-7 AT SENATH --- The Chargers will remain undefeated. It'll be hard for the Lions to post its second upset in one week... but watch out. Delta C-7 70, Senath 55.

HAYTI NORTH AT PARMA --- It takes some effort to defeat the Pirates at home... we think the Indians can generate that... but will they... NO Parma 66, Hayti N. 64.

POPLAR BLUFF AT SPRINGFIELD --- Glendale has been strong in recent years... Bluff is in one of its strongest... we'll go with... Poplar Bluff 73, Glendale 55.

PORTAGEVILLE AT MATTHEWS --- This loss tonight will equal the Pirates three year loss total... It'll be the fifth defeat for the Pirates, unless they can get going. Portageville 59, Matthews 54.

If anyone finds a schedule of the following teams... Please forward it to us... It must be the one's we've lost or failed to receive.

Here they are... Richland; Lilbourn; Poplar Bluff; Portageville; Steele; Matthews; and Lilbourn.

If someone would be so kind as to forward these to us... we'll be grateful.

AFL Rookie Honor To A-State's Bergey

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Bergey, Cincinnati's aggressive middle linebacker, was selected today as the American Football League's Defensive Rookie of the Year, giving the young Bengals a sweep of 1969 freshman honors.

Bergey, a 240- pound bruiser from little Arkansas State, beat out three other first- year standouts in a close balloting race, and followed teammate Greg Cook into The Associated Press awards circle. Cook, the Bengals' gifted quarterback, was named the league's top offensive rookie Thursday.

A panel of sports writers and sportscasters - three from each AFL city- gave Bergey 10 votes, to seven apiece for Kansas City cornerback Jim Marsalis and Miami end Bill Stanfill, and six for Denver cornerback Bill Thompson.

Oran, Charleston Win; Battle For Championship

EAST PRAIRIE — In the East Prairie junior varsity Tournament semi- finals held here last night, Oran and Charleston came up with victories and headed for the championship match this Saturday at 8:00. Charleston defeated the New Madrid squad in the early game 52-45. Two teams of Eagles clashed in the later game, with Oran outscoring East Prairie 44-43. The two loosers, New Madrid and East Prairie clash for consolation honors in the 6:30 game Saturday.

Both teams showed good defensive efferts in the contest, but edged East Prairie in points by field goals, 14-10. It was a close game all the way down to the last quarter where Oran increased its three point lead to 11 at the end of the game.

Taylor and LeGrand wery the top scorers for the Oran Eagles with 13 and 11 points respectively.

East Prairie's scoring honors went to J. Davis with 9, and A. Davis with 7, for the Eagles loosing effert.

The second contest, between Charleston and New Madrid also turned into a close match, as the Bluejays held a four point lead at half time. Charleston held the edge in field goals as they hit 24 to New Madrid's 14, but New Madrid held the edge from the charity line as they outscored Charleston 11-4.

Alvin Pierce was the big gun for Charleston with 18 points, with Callell following with 11, and Smith adding 10.

For New Madrid, Donald Tucker connected for an impressive 24 points with teammate Chuck Williams netting 11.

Scoring:

CHARLESTON (52)

Devine Honored As Coach of Year

ST. LOUIS AP — Teammate Irv Good accepted the "Old Pro" award for guard Ken Gray as the St. Louis football Cardinals were honored Thursday night at the Quarterback Club's annual dinner.

Gray, an 11th - season Cardinal from Howard Payne University, underwent knee surgery at Barnes Hospital earlier in the day for repair of torn ligaments. He will be lost for the season's final two games.

Honored as the Cardinals' most valuable player by his teammates was linebacker Larry Stallings.

Defensive end Chuck Walker received the Quarterback Club's first Jimmy Conzelman award for "greatest effort," and cornerback Roger Wehrli was cited as Cardinal rookie of the year.

Other awards went to the University of Missouri's Dan Devine as college coach of the year and to Cid Edwards, a running back, as most improved Cardinal player.

About 650 attended the dinner. Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the National Football League, was the principal speaker.

Liberty Bowl---Sellout

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Colorado matches its awesome ground game, led by All-American tailback Bob Anderson, with Alabama's dangerous passing attach Saturday in the 11th annual Liberty Bowl football game.

The Buffaloes, 7-3, are onepoint favorites to hand Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant his third consecutive bowl defeat. The kickoff is set for 1:20 p.m. EST before a sellout crowd of 51,000 and a nationwide television audience.

The Crimson Tide posted a 6-4 regular season record, finishing in the second division of the Southeastern Conference. It was the worst season for Ala-ama since 1958, Bryant's first as head coach at his alma mater.

Saturday's date marks the 23rd bowl appearance for Alabama, most of any team in the nation. The Tide has a 12-8-2 bowl record after losing 20-16 to Texas A&M in the Cotton Bowl two years ago and 35-10 to Missouri in last year's Gator Bowl.

"We ordinarily think of a bowl game as a reward for a good job, but at Memphis there will be honor and pride at stake and we are going to try and do something about it," Bryant said. "These seniors fp,o)entitled to more than they got from me this year."

Anderson, a 208-pound senior, ran for 954 yards and scored 19 touchdowns for the Buffs, who handed Orange Bowl-bound Missouri its only defeat, 31-24. Colorado's losses came at the hands of Oklahoma, Nebraska and Penn State.

Alabama lost to Tennessee, Louisiana State, Auburn and Vanderbilt.

Junior quarterback Scott Hunter already holds most of Alabama's passing records established by such notable Crimson Tide performers as Joe Namath, Harry Gilmer and Steve Sloan.

Hunter completed 157 of 266 passes for 2,188 yards, lifting his two-year total to 3,659 yards in the air.

Alabama arrived in Memphis Thursday. Colorado got into town on Sunday. Both teams will hold final workouts this afternoon.

New Madrid Board Will Inspect School

NEW MADRID — New Madrid County R-1 enlarged school board will inspect the facility of the North County Technical School in St. Louis county, Monday.

The school has been in operation two years and has been recommended by the state department of education as one of the outstanding schools of its type.

Purpose of the visit by the board is to obtain ideas for the planning and construction of a proposed $3 million technical school near New Madrid.

Federal funds have already been approved by the Economic Development Administration for 60 per cent of the proposed cost of $2,800,000 for the school.

A site of approximately 90 acres, at a cost of $1,500 per acre, has been contracted for by the board.

The new school will be one-half mile west of the intersection of highway 61 and interstate 55 about three miles south of New Madrid.

Preliminary plans call for 20 classrooms and related shops with 92,000 square feet of floor space.

Eastern Star Officers Installed

BELL CITY--The installation of officers of Sapphire chapter of Bell City was held Wednesday evening after the opening and closing of the chapter.

The installation ceremony began with Mrs. Otto Lape, Victory Chapter, Marble Hill, presenting the Bible ceremony and Brady Henson and Phil Stephens, members of Boy Scout troop 178, paying tribute to the United States flag. The audience sang "God Bless America".

The welcome was given by Mrs. Frank Gilles and Cleatus Henson, retiring worthy matron and patron. They introduced these new officers:

Mrs. Morgan English, Matron; Otto Lape, Patron; Mrs.L. A. Perry, marshal; Mrs. Joe Redman, chaplain; Mrs. Wayne French, organist; and Mrs. R. H. Phelps, secretary.

After the installation, Mrs. Gilles presented the Star Points with their colors.

A 100 PERCENT CONTRIBUTION, amounting to $565 to the United Fund, by the Sikeston Regional Diagnostic Clinic, enabled the organization to reach the 80 per cent mark. Most of the employes were present. They include front row, from left, Joe Chandler, Ladelle Berkbigler, Alleyne Condray, Judith Lopp, Irene Pearson, Irene Nelson, Joy Ward, Irene Jordan, Teresa Evans, Olive Epperly, Mary Champion, Thelma Montgomery, Jerris Spicer, Mary Martin; back row, Bill Paylor, Carl Chaney, Lorene Allen, Naomi Beard, Dottie Wathen, Dave Ragan, director, Vickie Clark, Sylvia Wilkerson, Mattie Moring, Frances McCracken, Evelyn Boyer, Lola Nelson, Glenda Duke, Ida Lou Hill, Nell Bennett, Norma Wolf and Essie Denton.

FARM MANAGEMENT

By RICHARD F. McINTOSH
Area Farm Management Agent

BENTON - Several farmers have indicated that they plan to change from four-row to six or eight - row equipment next year. The major reasons given for changing are: the shortage of good labor, higher labor cost larger farming operations and timeliness.

One of the questions they often ask is can I justify changing to larger equipment?

Since no two farming operations are exactly alike, there just aren't any stock answers that can be given to this question.

Although there are not any stock answers that can be applied to all farms, the same basic economic principles do apply.

If the only reason for changing to larger equipment is just to replace labor, the analysis is relatively simple.

Net profit will increase if the added machinery and equipment costs are less than the costs of the labor replaced.

For example, replacing one full - time worker who is presently earning $3,500 a year would be profitable as long as the added cost of owning and operating the larger machinery and equipment is less than $3,500 a year.

Although this type of analysis is rather straight forward, it does require some time and thought. On most farms a new piece of machinery and equipment will be used for four or eight years. Therefore, when comparing the cost of owning and operating machinery and equipment which has a four to eight year life to labor cost, you should not only consider what the present labor costs are but also, what the labor may cost during the next four to eight years.

For example you may be paying $3,500 for a full-time worker now but if you expect to be paying $4,500 four years from now this very definitely affects your analysis.

Every farmer knows that timeliness means money and that failure to get a crop planted on time or cultivated on time can greatly reduce yield and net profit.

If being more timely (doing the job at the right time) is the major reason for changing from four to six or eight - row equipment, then the value of the increased yields (output) must pay for the added machinery and equipment cost.

Perhaps this can best be illustrated by an example. If a farmer changes from four - row to six - row equipment and his machinery and equipment costs increases $1,200 a year, then the value of the increased production would have to be at least $1,200 each year.

If he was farming 600 acres of corn his yield would are to increase about two bushels per acre.

Everyone realizes that it is difficult to place a dollar figure on the value of timeliness. However, if you are contemplating changing the size of your equipment primarily for this reason, then you must consciously or unconsciously arrive at a dollar figure.

If the reason for changing to larger equipment is both to reduce labor costs and to improve timeliness, the analysis involves nothing more than comparing the added machinery and equipment costs to the reduced labor costs plus the value of the increased production made possible by being more timely.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

Some farmers can change from four-row to six or eight - row equipment without increasing their machinery and equipment investment significantly.

However, other farmers may have to invest a substantial amount of new capital. If this is borrowed capital, then the repayment schedule should be carefully considered. Although a piece of equipment may have a useful life of 8 years, it may be necessary to pay for it within 4 years.

You could have a situation where it would be profitable to change to larger machinery and equipment but you simply can't afford to because the repayment schedule exceeds your repayment capacity.

In final analysis each farmer must consider his own situation. He must determine what cost will be increased, what cost will be decreased, whether yields will increase, stay the same or decrease and last but not least his ability to pay for the added investment.

Painting of Bridge Halted Until Spring

W. H. Shaw, district engineer for the Missouri State highway department, announced today that painting on the route 74 Mississippi river bridge at Cape Girardeau has been suspended until next spring when weather conditions will be more favorable.

When work resumes, the state's contractor is again expected to provide clean- up stations at both ends of the bridge to remove fresh paint from passing vehicles.

Shaw estimated two weeks painting will be required to complete the project.

Heuiser, Eastern Missouri state farm management award honorees; Ken Williams, administrative assistant, Sikeston Production Credit association; and Milton Geary, representative, St. Louis National Stockyards Company.

Farm Awards Presented

BENTON--Mr. and Mrs. Arnold B. Heuiser, Sikeston area dairy and grain farm family, were one of 22 farm families in Missouri who received the state farm management award.

Two farm families from New Madrid county received awards. Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Scott, Jr., of Sikeston received state recognition and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bird of Sikeston received county recognition.

Sponsors of the program were the St. Louis National Stock Yards, and Production Credit Associations. Those recognized were selected by County Committees and were judged by a State Committee of Extension Personnel and Representatives of Production Credit Associations.

A recognition program was sponsored by the St. Louis National Stockyards Company Production Credit Associations of Eastern Missouri; with the University of Missouri extension division at Columbia cooperating.

Mr. and Mrs. Heuiser operate a 278-acre dairy and grain farm west of Sikeston. They have a 50-cow dairy herd which produced 12,200 pounds of milk per cow last year.

Efforts to continue to increase milk production per cow included the use of A1 sires exclusively, stricter culling, and higher quality summer forage production by irrigation.

The Heuisers have used sprinkler irrigation for forage crops for livestock and grain crops.

Land grading for drainage and irrigation was begun in 1966 in order to improve the drainage and to increase the acreage which could be irrigated. Since then, 150 acres have been graded. Plans are to continue the land grading program until the farm is graded.

Managing the dairy herd, producing the grain and forage crops, and grading land during slack work seasons requires the labor of Arnold Heuiser and his full-time employee, Roger Tippy.

Good crop yields have been obtained for the past several years by using good production practices, recommended crop varieties, and adequate soil fertility. Corn yields have been around 125 bu. per acre; wheat. 40 bu. per acre; soybeans, 36 bu. per acre; and cotton, between 1¼ and 1½ bales per acre.

The Heuiser's completed building a brick all-electric home in 1967.

The Heuiser's have three children: Kevin Dale, 11; Elizabeth Lynn, 8; and Patricia Anne, 6.

The family is active in church and community affairs. The children are 4-H club members and/or members of Boy Scouts or Brownies.

The Heuiser's are members of the Trinity Baptist church of Sikeston.

Interstate 55 North May Be Completed in 1971

JEFFERSON CITY — Progress on Interstate 55 between Fruitland and Festus is gradually falling into place. Final right-of- way plans have now been completed, according to a report issued by Chief Engineer M. J. Snider.

It is now believed that the 67.5 miles of the unpaved section, may be under construction in 1970, with a completion date possible in 1971.

The total mileage will be in seven contracts, with four sections now undergoing grading, right- of- way and bridge construction.

The first contracts awarded in 1969 were projects F with 4.5 miles, and G, with 4.6 miles, from Festus south to the Ste. Genevieve county line, awarded Feb. 20, with right- of- way clearing and grading well underway.

A contract for 13.1 miles in Cape Girardeau county, from the Fruitland intersection to the northern county line was let Sept. 25, with clearing and grading well underway, barring too much severe weather.

The fourth section, from Ste. Genevieve to the southern Ste. Genevieve county line, with the largest paving stretch of 14.6 miles, was let on Oct. 16, and it too is under construction.

Three projects still to be let for contract are, a 10.3 miles from Ste. Genevieve north to the Ste. Genevieve county line; and two sections in Perry county, the first from the south Perry county line, to Perryville for 11.1 miles and the second from Perryville north to north Perry county line, will in all probability be let in February or March, depending on the completion of right-of- way acquisition, and assuming that federal funds are released.

The 76.5- mile four- lane stretch will have but one slight curve, located between Pocahontas and Oak Ridge in Cape Girardeau county.

The new Interstate will cross old highway 61 at two points, at the Fruitland interchange and at a point a few miles north of Ste. Genevieve.

Interstate 55, when completed will be west of highway 61, except at the two crossings, and will vary from one mile at Fruitland, to between eight and ten miles at St. Marys, while at Brewer and Bloomsdale, the new road will skirt the edge of the city limits.

Appointments To Academies Announced

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Bill D. Burlison of the 10th congressional district, today announced his principal and alternate selections for the military academies:

Air Force academy - Principal appointment, Linus Robert Dirnberger, New Hamburg; 1st alternate, Thomas L. Danner, Clubb; 2nd alternate, Thomas Eugene Miles, Jr., Kennett; 3rd alternate, Donald Jean Ray, Portageville and 4th alternate- Dennis Allyn McCaslin, Cape Girardeau.

Military Academy, West Point - James Franklin Grim, Cape Girardeau; 1st alternate, Kerry Dale Alexander, Poplar Bluff and 2nd alternate, John Jokerst, Ste. Genevieve.

Naval Academy - Principal appointment, Jerry Lynn Mothershead, Farmington; 1st alternate, Joseph Lee Whitener, Flat River; 2nd alternate, Wayne Barry Rogers, Kennett and 3rd alternate, Chesley Kevin Smith, Elvins.

Merchant Marine Academy - Principal appointment Henri W. Naeger, Jr., Ste. Genevieve; 1st alternate, Stanley M. Harmon, Wardell and 2nd alternate, Clifford Eugene Ferguson, Flat River.

The Congressman stated that the selections were made after receiving recommendations from the 10th district academy advisory committee which interviewed the candidates at a meeting in Poplar Bluff attended by Burlison. Included among the selection criteria were civil service examination scores and past scholastic achievements. The members of the committee are: Lonnie Kinchen, chairman, Kennett; the Rev. Robert Burke, East Prairie; Harold Henry, West Plains; Ray Campbell, Hayti and Richard Dugal of Farmington.

Other weekend activities of the congressman included his appearance at Caruthersville Friday night as speaker at the annual meeting of the Pemiscot-Dunklin counties Federal Land Bank Association. He discussed pending farm legislation. It was pointed out by Burlison that officials of the department of agriculture would testify this week before the house committee on agriculture would testify this week before the house committee on agriculture at which time the department is expected to unveil more specific farm legislation proposals to become effective Jan. 1, 1971.

Cable TV Franchise Sought in Charleston

CHARLESTON — David Blanton and John Hux both of Sikeston met with the city council Tuesday night to request a franchise for See- More Cable Television company.

They stated that the city would receive pay pro- rated on the number of houses connected at $1 per house plus five per cent of the gross service charged paid by users.

The initial tap- in and connection charge would be $10 with a monthly rate of $5.

Stations to be received would be those on the ABC, CBS, and NBC networks, an educational station and a local outlet.

The request was taken under advisement.

The council approved a request from Leonard Braden for permission to remove the curb on Franklin Street in front of the Cindrella Dress Shop to allow diagonal parking, providing he make the parking area wide enough to allow cars to be pulled out of the street and put asphalt on the parking area.

City Manager Richard Martin informed the council of requests he has received to employ a full time dogcatcher. Action on the request was tabled.

A proposal from the city manager that the city adopt a more up- to- date gas and plumbing code was tabled. Council members said further study should be made.

A resolution thanking Joe Harvey for serving a term on the Housing Authority was adopted.

City Manager Martin informed the council that Sam Smith, engineer for a proposed airport, has agreed to complete work on the airport engineering report, if the city will enter into a contract with him and pay him $200. There will be no additional cost until after the bond issue and only then if it passes and he proceeds with the preliminary design plans. The council authorized Mayor Joe W. Layton to execute a contract between S. H. Smith and the city.

Action was tabled on the city managers' proposal that the council considered purchasing a lot east of Hequenbourg pond from Bob Marshall for $2,000 and a eight- acre site north of Reeves subdivision from J. L. Byrd for $500 per acre.

The council was agreeable that a final notice be sent out with water bills informing people, who still owe for the prior month, that their water will be shut off if not paid by 21 and a $3 fee will be charged for turning water back on when the bill is paid in full.

The council authorized Mayor Layton to execute a contract between the city and the state highway commission providing for installing, operation and maintenance of school crossings.

Individuals who have trailer permits that are due for renewal will be sent a letter notifying them that their permit has expired and must be renewed within a 30- day period. The site will be inspected to determine if a permit should be renewed and recommendation for or against renewal will be sent to the council.

Free parking from Saturday through Christmas on Charleston streets will be allowed providing merchants and their employes do not abuse the privilege.

Further study will be made on a request to extend sewer lines to the Dearmont Oliver and Sam Story residence. The city manager will make the study and present the figures at next meeting.

The city attorney is to prepare an easement from Wyman Beasley for access to the park south of Interstate 57 for next month's meeting.

The council approved payment of November bills, approved the preliminary plans for the proposed city hall and announced that bids will be taken on a plaque for the Dr. E. Charles Rowling park.

Dean Martin's Wife Reports Marriage at End

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dean Martin's theme song is "Everybody Loves Somebody" and for him, his wife says, it's somebody new.

"It is painfully difficult for me to announce the apparent end of our marriage," the former cover girl Jeanne Bieggers, 47, announced Wednesday.

"My husband informed me several weeks ago that he had met and fallen in love with someone, and he asked me for a divorce. I have assured him I will comply with his wishes. Proceedings will begin immediately." She gave no name.

Martin, 52, a $5-million- a-year television and movie entertainer could not be reached for comment. A spokesman denied knowledge of the identity of the "someone." Even the gossip columnists gave no hint of her identity.

The Martins, married 20 years, with three children- Dean has four more by a previous marriage- separated in 1955. But reconciled.

Draft Board Secretaries to Meet in Bluff

BENTON — Mrs. Gladys Nebel, executive secretary of the selective service board, said today that there will be an area meeting of selective service secretaries Friday at Poplar Bluff. The purpose is to clear up questions concerning the new draft lottery system.

Mrs. Nebel also said that although there are no boys from Scott county who have birthdays on Sept. 14 that are registered for the draft, there are boys from the county who are eligible for the January draft lottery call.

She said that the selective service headquarters are in Jefferson City not in St. Louis as previously reported by the Sikeston Standard.

Brides and Brides-Elect

Urhahn-Schott

ORAN - Twin arrangements of yellow chrysanthemums and gold candelabra with lighted tapers formed the setting Nov. 22 at the Guardian Angel Catholic Church here for the wedding of Miss Mary Catherine Urhahn and Philip J. Schott.

The Rev. Gervase W. Ingoldsby was celebrant at the Nuptial Mass. Mrs. Larence Seyer was organist, and vocal selections were provided by the Guardian Angel School choir.

The former Miss Urhahn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Urhahn of Oran, and the bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Philip Schott of Oran. He is also the grandson of Wm. Schott of Oran.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal empire gown of angel skin peau de soie, with a bateau neckline, long tapered sleeves and bands of galloon scalloped lace trimming the bodice and semi-controlled skirt.

The bride chose her sister, Mrs. Paul Hess of Chaffee, as matron of honor, and bridesmaid was Miss Geraloyn Sue Felter of Benton. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Nancy Welter, a cousin of the bride.

The bridegroom chose Mervyn Joe Ashton of Houston, Tex., his cousin, as best man, and groomsman was Paul Urhahn, a brother of the bride. Another brother of the bride, Rick Urhahn, was junior groomsman. Guests were ushered by Cyril Glueck of New Hamburg and James Urhahn of Sikeston.

A dinner reception was held in the parish hall following the ceremony. Miss Janell Welter was guest book attendant.

Mrs. Schott is employed by the International Hat Co., St. Louis, and Schott is employed by the McDonnell - Douglas Aircraft Corp. there.

Following a wedding trip to Florida, the newlyweds will reside at Grandview Gardens, Florissant.

Mrs. Daniel J. Seyer

Mayfield-Seyer

On the evening of November 26, Miss Mary Austin Mayfield became the bride of Daniel J. Seyer in St. Francis Xavier church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loomis F. Mayfield Jr., and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Seyer of Cape Girardeau.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Amil Shilbey of Malden. Attendents for the couple were the bride's sister, Mrs. Phil Tidwell, and the groom's brother, Michael Seyer.

The bride wore a formal gown of Brussel lace over taffeta. The empress bodice was marked with tiny French cording. The scalloped sabrina neckline dipped to a low square back. Motifs of lace on the bodice were re-embroidered with seed pearls and centered with a crystal. The same trim continued onto the three-quarter length scalloped lace sleeves. The A-line skirt was also finished with a scalloped edge, which continued to the chapel length train, and finished with a point. Her head dress was an all over chantilly lace mantilla, softly shirred to a head band. The mantilla was sprinkled with crystal and pearl.

The bride's bouquet was a cascade of white American Beauty roses and snowdrift mums centered with a white orchid.

Ushers from the wedding were Phil Tidwell and John Holland. Servers were Loomis F. Mayfield III and Ralph Seyer, brothers of the couple.

Mrs. Elmer Seyer of Oran provided the nuptial music, and accompanied her husband as he sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "On this Day."

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the Sikeston Country Club. Miss Nettie Seyer and Misses Sandra and Suzanne Mayfield served at the punch table. Misses Joyce and Linda Seyer and Miss Barbara Mayfield presided at the guest book. Little Christina Mayfield presented rice bags to the guests.

The couple left for a short wedding trip to St. Louis, after which they will be at home at 13 N. Fountain Street in Cape Girardeau. The groom attends State College there, and is employed by Radonics, Inc. The bride teaches school in Oran.

Mrs. Emmett Taylor Burke

Munson-Burke

EAST PRAIRIE — On Thursday, November 27 at 3:30 in the afternoon in the First Baptist Church of East Prairie, Miss Barbara Jo Munson became the bride of Emmett Taylor Burke.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mildred Munson and the late Joe Munson of East Prairie. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Emma Burke and the late Edmund Burke of Charleston.

Rev. Darrell Jauch, minister of the church, performed the double- ring ceremony before a romantic setting beneath an arch of white tapers in silver candelabras. Matching spiral tree candelabras placed behind the prie - dieu complimented four white columns of red roses and white mums. White tapers, entwined with greenery in single silver candelabras appointed the white carpeted aisle.

Mrs. Audley Brown of Charleston presented a program of pre- nutpail organ music and accompanied Mrs. Alan Shew, sister of the groom of St. Louis, who sang, "One Hand, One Heart", "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee," and as the benediction, "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt at the prie- dieu.

Preceding the bride down the aisle was the flower girl, Martha Jane Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jackson of Charleston, and Master Stephen Burke, son of Mr. nd Mrs. John Burke, the ring-bearer.

The bride entered the sanctuary on the arm of her uncle, Henry Munson, who, speaking for her mother, gave her in marriage. The bride wore an elegant Grecian inspired inspired formal gown of magnolia silk illusion with lavish appliques of re-embroidered Alencon lace. It was fashioned with a sculptured neckline traced with miniature pearls and irridescents and long tapered sleeves richly overlaid in lace, ending at the wrists and in calla lily points. The moulded boice of her gown was slightly lifted and was an elegant display of re-embroidered Alencon lace. Her A-silhouette skirt of all-over lace encrusted with irridescents fell gracefully from the empire bodice and was lavishly sprayed with pearls. Back interest was created by a voluminous chapel watteau train, secured at the shoulders by appliques of the repeated lace pattern. Her chapel veil of silk illusion was secured to a profile Grecian inspired headpiece of orange blossoms designed especially for her gown. Her bridal bouquet was mille fleur cascade of phalaenopsis orchids, sweethear roses baby's breath and long loops of pearls placed on a prayer book. The prayer book brought from Jerusalem is a family heirloom of the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Emmett Burke.

Attending the bride as her maid of honor was Miss Pam Bethay of Memphis, a sorority sister. Bridesmaids were Miss Glenda Houston, sorority sister from Milam, Tenn., Mrs. Sonny Gentry, sorority sister from Memphis and Miss Marsha Munson, sister of the bride.

Reginald Young of Charleston was best man. Groomsmen were Jim Burke, brother of the groom, Richard Dodson, Cape Girardeau, and James Hillhouse, Boulder, Colo. Ushers were Burke Dodson and Robert Jackson, both of Charleston and Jerry Munson, East Prairie.

Immediately following the wedding ceremony the reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the Church of God in East Prairie. A silver embossed ribbon inscribed, "B. J. and Emmett, Nov. 27, 1969" extended the length of the tables.

Serving during the reception were Miss Paula Waldman, Sikeston; Miss Vickie Blom, New Madrid; and Miss Sally Rorex, Memphis, Tenn. Each wore shoulder corsages of mille fleur.

The groom's cake was served by his sister, Mrs. James Hillhouse.

Miss Debra Woodard entertained at the reception with piano selections. Guest book attendant was Miss Linda Moxley. Rice bags were handed to each guest by Jacquelin and Sharon Mahar of Marston and Sandy McGee of Sikeston, cousins of the bride.

The couple traveled to St. Louis and returned to their apartment in Cape Girardeau.

Mrs. Burke is a 1967 graduate of East Prairie High School and attended Memphis State University two years and is completing her degree in elementary education at Southeast Missouri State College. Mr. Burke, a 1966 graduate of Charleston, attended the University of Arkansas three years and is now completing his degree at Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau.

Double-Duty Sleepwear Stars at Holiday Time

By AP NEWSFEATURES

Throw away the traditional lounging attire this holiday season and enjoy a potpourri of sleepwear and loungewear fashions that capture all the frivolity of the festive period.

The layer-on-layer concept, the season's hottest news, is based on garments that can lead double or triple lives. Mini shifts, tunics, jumpers and pants are all part of the excitement. Each piece can be teamed with others or go it alone ... and the trick is to put on or take off as many layers as you like.

Amid all the versatility and individuality, femininity reigns supreme. Filmy, body-shaping fabrics, sheers and see-throughs, flurries of pleats and touches of luxurious lace add a romanticism and ultra-feminine feeling to the twilight hours that is reminiscent of the luxury of past decades. In short the mood is soft, sexy and sensuous.

Double-duty interchangeable sleepwear — loungewear helps you make the most of the holiday mood. Long tunics or mini sleep shifts can top pants or go it alone for bedtime, lounging or parties. Add vests or jumpers to long, liquidy gowns. Add or subtract pants to suit your mood or occasion. Accessorize with chunky chains or layers of scarves. It's all part of the new go-anywhere, do-anything trend in holiday loungewear.

One of the best put-ons of the season are pants. Whether shown in culotte gowns, or teamed up with long tunics that also can be worn separately, pants are becoming a way of life. What's more, pants are taking on a dressed-up look that makes the fashion point in the most feminine manner.

Central to the holiday fashion versatility and feminine feeling are new super-soft fabrics. Supple fabrics such as Enkalure nylon, Encron polyester and Crepeset nylon drape, cling and swing to capture the body-shaping mood of today. And though they look as delicate and fragile as silk or crepe, they are completely machine-washable and dryable, wrinkle-resistant and won't stretch out of shape.

LAYER-ON-LAYER CONCEPT ... Garments that can lead double or triple lives, thanks to shifts, tunics and pants put-ons, capture the frivolity of the holiday period. (1) Flowing pants coordinated with matching mini-shift that also can go it alone designed by Raymodes. (2) One-piece culotte print by B. Cohen. (3) Two-tone black and red sleeveless gown with matching peignoir from Eye-ful gives just enough coverup to convert the sleep set into luxurious hostess outfit. (4) Classic shirt can be worn alone or with sleek pajama pants by Maidenform. All fashions from American Enka collection.

Fashion Trends

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Ever since women stopped using handkerchiefs as a flirtatious device, they have been relegated to a utilitarian role and spend most of their time in the dark confines of pocket or handbag.

With today's accessory explosion, however, triggered by a headon meeting between the colorful gypsy and the image-intent flower child, handkerchiefs have come out into the open as colorful extensions of a highly personalized manner of dress.

There is no end to handkerchief possibilities within the new fashion format. They can be twined into a braid or attached at the end; tied around the "status" George Washington pull hairdo; worn in twos around the forehead Indian fashion. And that's just the beginning.

There's nothing more feminine than a lace-trimmed Irish linen handkerchief. It's a natural, furled into a frilly jabot to add a special touch to today's popular shirts or to turn even a classic blazer into something elegant and Edwardian. And speaking of jabots, it's a simple matter to thread solid tone or printed handkerchiefs into the linky necklaces now being worn for a cascade of color.

Moving even one step further, handkerchiefs are naturals for any number of cuff treatments. The dainty lace-edged or embroidered variety are perfect for sissy cuffs on an otherwise ordinary shirt. It's a simple matter to tuck them in and secure with a stud or tie tack. Fold a handkerchief diagonally, wrap twice around the wrist, and tie with the point extending over the hand for yet another cuff effect.

It's the waist that's getting a good share of the accessory attention currently as belts and chains and cords are worn in colorful masses. Add still another pattern by folding two handkerchiefs—matched or not—diagonally and knotting them together at either hip.

Then, of course, if you're given to going barefoot about the house, handkerchiefs make great ankle bracelets.

There seems to be no limit to how far handkerchiefs ideas can go. One enterprising gal sewed together 42 handkerchiefs of similar color but varied designs and came up with a truly unique gypsy dress for gala entertaining.

Santa and the DUMBBELL

By Lucrece Beale

Synopsis: The Ghost and Princess cannot free Booby Bobby from the trap. An elf in a red sleigh appears crying, "Ha! We've caught you at last!"

CHAPTER 10
SANTA LAND

"WE'LL smother you in ashes and whip you with switches and give you spiders to eat. You'll be sorry you ever came to Santa Land!" shouted the red-haired, crooked-legged dwarf.

"But-I-I haven't done anything!" stammered Booby Bobby, quaking in the trap.

"Ha! You can't fool me. You're the Troll who has been stealing candy and breaking toys and mixing up Christmas orders. You hate children and don't want them to have any Christmas."

The Ghost and the Puppet Princess popped out of the bushes. "He is not a Troll!" shouted the Ghost angrily. "And he never did any of those things!" declared the Princess.

"If he's not a Troll how come he's caught in my Troll Trap? And who are you anyway?"

"I'm a ghost as you should be able to see for yourself," said Stanley stiffly.

"I never heard of a ghost in underwear!" scoffed the elf.

"I lost my clothes in an avalanche," said Stanley. "That is how the Princess lost her nose and Booby Bobby got caught in your trap. We've come a long, long way to see Santa Claus and I must say we never expected such a reception as this."

"It all sounds very queer to me," said the elf. "But never mind. We'll let Santa settle the matter." He unlocked the Troll Trap and Booby Bobby, minus the seat of his trousers, was free. They climbed into the red sleigh and, with bells ringing, dashed away.

"Why do you ring the bells so loudly?" complained the Princess — putting her hands over her ears.

"I'm getting them ready for Christmas," explained the elf. He had to bellow to be heard. "They get rusty and out of tune between seasons." He shook the bells on the reindeer reins and went ding, dong, with the silver bell in each hand.

"There's plenty to be excited about!" cried Tweedleknees.

Clanging and chiming they arrived in Santa Land. The elf herded them into Santa's house where they all began to talk at once.

Santa sat in his chair by the fire smoking his pipe and rocking gently to and fro as he listened to their tale. When they had finished he shook his finger at the elf. "Don't you know what a Troll looks like?" he asked with amusement.

"A Troll can take many shapes as you know," retorted the elf. "And anyway the boy had no business in my trap."

Santa's eyes twinkled. "You must excuse Tweedleknees. He has a low boiling point and gets very excited about things."

"There's plenty to be excited about," argued Tweedleknees. "Unless we catch the Troll, there'll be no toys left for Christmas."

"Things aren't quite that bad," said Santa soothingly. "Come now, we must do something for our visitors."

Mrs. Claus came in and set about patching Booby Bobby's britches. Tweedleknees, grumping all the time, went to the linen shop for new sheets for the Ghost. Santa, meanwhile, bent over his workbench and cut out and molded a brand new nose for the Princess.

After this, Santa asked why the three had come to Santa Land.

The Ghost said he hoped to find a better place to haunt. The Princess said she was looking for a new kingdom. Booby Bobby said, in a very small voice, "I would like a friend for Christmas so people will think I'm important and not call me dumbbell anymore."

"Hmmm," said Santa, thoughtfully. "Hmmm."

Before he could say more, Tweedleknees burst in shouting, "Come quick! Something terrible has happened!"

Dear Santa

Dear Santa,
I am seven years old. Please bring me a crackfire rifle, a football suit and a basket ball and goal set. My brother is four. He wants a rifle and a football helmet. We will be in Texas for Christmas.
Thank you,
Ronald Scott and John Scott
916 Alexander St.
Sikeston, Mo.

Dear Santa,
I want a Dancerina, Table & Chairs, some clothes for Barbie. I have been a good girl.
Love
Susan Dollar
428 Daniel
Sikeston, Mo.

Dear Santa Claus:
My name is Leah Marie Byrd and I am three years old. I asked my mommy if I have been good this year and she gave me a very doubtful look yet she calls me her "Angel", sort of confusing isn't it. Anyway, she said I could write you a letter and tell you what I hope to get for Christmas. This won't take long as all I really want is a Dancerina doll. Of course, I take anything you want to give me. Don't forget all the other "good" children.
Love,
Leah Marie Byrd
P. S. Mommy says that she will leave you something to eat on the kitchen table, just in case you are hungry.

Dear Santa Claus,
My name is Dawn Chamberlain and I am 6 years old.
I have been a pretty good little girl. For Christmas I would like to have a Dancerinia doll, a Nov. birthstone ring, some P.J.'s and anything else you would like to bring me. Oh yes Santa please fill my stocking. I will leave you some chocolate cake and a 16 oz. Dr. Pepper on the table for you.
Love Dawn Your Pal

Dear Santa,
My name is Lisa Nimmo and I am six years old.
For Christmas I want a Popeye Puncho, a cowgirl suit, a doll and doll bed, and a reindeer.
My brother name is Eddie and he is ten years old.
He wants a football, Leaping Letters game, Hat Wheels and some real heavy socks.
Remember all our other little friends.
Thank You Santa,
Lisa & Eddie Nimmo
Route 4
Sikeston, Mo.

Dear Santa,
For Christmas I would like a Bible, a football, a football game, a football helmet. Merry Christmas Santa!
Your Pal.
John Floyd Skaggs
213 East Main Street
East Prairie, Missouri
P.S. Milk and a cookie will be waiting for you.

Dear Santa,
For Christmas I would like a View Master Set, a Bible, a baton, and a portable record player. Oh, I forgot to tell you to remember my brother Vernon, my Aunt Joyce, and my Uncle Robin. Don't forget all the poor children. Merry Christmas Santa.
Love,
Dixie Lee Skaggs
213 East Main Street
East Prairie, Missouri

Dear Santa,
My name is Bobby. Last year you gave me everything I really wanted, but this year I don't really want very much.
I would like to have a pink bicycle, a Billy Blastoff, a Monopoly game, a bowl for my warped head, and a pair of steel pants for my bowed legs. Don't forget the other little boys and girls. Thanks.
Love You Always,
Bob Kelso
Portageville

Dear Santa Claus,
I am in the 6th grade. I go to school at Matthews Elementary School. For Christmas, I would like to have a Swingy doll, radio phono, a set of China dishes and a picture album or scrap book. This is one thing I especially want, I want a trip to Wilmington, Calif. I would also like to have a Merry Merry Christmas.
Sincerely Yours
Debra Harbison

Dear Santa,
My name is Chris Burton. I will soon be a year old. I was born 3 days before Christmas last year that is why my name is Chris. Please bring me a hobby horse, and a teddy bear. Also bring my brothers and sisters Joey, Shelby, Susan, Junior Lee a bag of switches because they have been bad. But bring Junior Lee a pair of cowboy boots and some guns cause he's been pretty good.
Love Chris

Dear Santa Claus,
My name is Michael Wayne Keasler and I am 2½ years old. I have been a pretty good boy his year.
For Christmas please bring me a Train Set, a horse and a car. I'll be looking for you Christmas Eve!!
And, please Santa, don't forget all the other little boys and girls.
Your Friend,
Mikie Keasler
Gray Ridge, Mo.

Dear Santa,
My name is Cheri Flanigan. I am 2 years old. My brother Danny and I have been pretty good. We would like anything you bring us.
My daddy would like a new car, a new house, to be good-looking and rich. Mommie just wants Daddy.
Love
Cheri & Danny Flanigan
109 5th Street
Sikeston, Mo.

Dear Santa,
Hi!
I have been a good girl this year, even if Mother doesn't agree. I would like a doll and a pocket book for my money I don't have and any thing else you want to bring me. Oh yes I want a record player, bring my brothers something too.
Your good girl
Penny Duke
110 Robert Ave.
Sikeston, Mo.
P.S. I will be 9 years old in 6 days.

Dear Santa,
I am 6 years old. I want guns, cowboy hat and some game sets please, remember Bob and Candy Wallace of Vanduser.
Thank You,
Timothy Ingram

Goldberg Says He Will Not Run for Governor or Senate

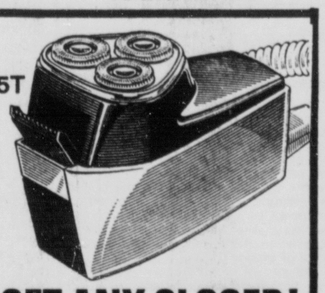

NEW YORK (AP) — Calling his decision "final and not subject to change," former U.S. Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg says he will not be a candidate for governor or U.S. senator in the 1970 New York elections.

Goldberg, who faced a primary fight if he sought the Democratic party nomination for either post, announced his decision in a brief statement.

Q—How did the black widow spider receive its name?

A—The name, originally applied to the female, refers to her practice of eating the male; the young also devour one another.

Q—Which two North American conifers are not evergreen?

A—The bald cypress and the larch.

LUCKY THIRTEEN — The Golddiggers, 13 beautiful singing-dancers, will be with Bob Hope to entertain troops in Europe, the Middle East and Southeast Asia.

THUNDERING HERD is a new tactic used in India to break through a police cordon. Demonstrators cheer as stampeding water buffalo cause police to give way.

THE IRISH STEW simmering in Northern Ireland could erupt into a civil war if some compromise between Protestants and Roman Catholics is not reached shortly. British riot troops, top, move in to protect Catholic houses during an angry Protestant demonstration in Belfast. Militant Protestants, led by the Rev. Ian Paisley, in white coat at bottom left, protest government plans to disband the B-special police force, an organization feared and hated by Catholics. At bottom right, a Royal Ulster Constabulary policeman turns in his revolver and gun belt in compliance with a ruling which threatens a crisis for Premier James Chichester-Clark's government.

PUBLIC NOTICE

TRUSTEE'S SALE

WHEREAS, Walter G. Winfield and Allene Winfield, his wife, by a certain Deed of Trust dated the 10th day of March, 1969, and recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds for the County of Scott and the State of Missouri, in Book 164, Page 263, conveyed to the undersigned Trustee the following described real estate situated in the County of Scott and State of Missouri, to wit:

All of Lot Numbered Sixteen (16) and the West half (W 1/2) of Lot Numbered Seventeen (17) in Block numbered Eight (8) of McCoy and Tanner's Second (2nd) Addition to the City of Sikeston, Scott County, Missouri.

Which conveyance was made to the undersigned in trust to secure the payment of a certain Promissory Note in said Deed specified; and

WHEREAS, said note is now past due and remains unpaid default having been made in the payment of said note.

NOW, THEREFORE, at the request of the legal holder of said Note and in pursuance of the conditions of said Deed of Trust, the undersigned Trustee will sell the property above described at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash at the main front door of the Circuit Court House in the City of Benton, Scott County, Missouri, on December 16, 1969, between the hours of 9:00 A.M., and 5:00 P.M., for the purpose of satisfying said indebtedness and the cost of executing this trust.

John A. Matthews' Land Sold for $170 Per Acre

50 years ago

December 12, 1919

It is reported that John A. Matthews this week sold 240 acres off the west end of his large farm southeast of Sikeston, to a Mr. Cummings of Iowa, for the sum of $170 per acre. The sale was made through Stacy & Goodpasture.

Uncle Joe Randol butchered his hogs last week and The Standard family can testify that the mess of spare ribs that he sent in were all right.

In honor of the 50th anniversary of Dr. O. E. Kendall's being made a Mason, the brethren of the Sikeston lodge assisted by the Eastern Star, will entertain with a banquet at the Methodist Church on the evening of December 17.

John Fisher went to Cairo Monday morning to see his brother, Will, who is a patient in St. Mary's Infirmary.

Morehouse--Dan Baker visited in Cape Girardeau Wednesday.

James Hitchell, seed dealer of Leroy, Ill., and a party of three other men from that section of the State, drove into Sikeston early Thursday morning in the interests of looking over farm sites near here. Mr. Hitchell expressed the belief that this is a splendid time to invest in Southeast Missouri lands.

A spectacular fire mushroomed from two bulk fuel tanks at the Ferrell Oil Co., on East Malone avenue Friday seriously burning Richard Barker and threatening nearby buildings. The towering flames shot into the sky quickly engulfing a railroad tank car directly behind the tanks and sent a huge column of black smoke boiling upwards.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Cloud are parents of a daughter, Susan Kathleen, born Friday at Delta Community Hospital. This is the third child and first daughter.

Mrs. E. H. Smith, 63, 411 Matthews, received a broken ankle and general cuts and abrasions when she was struck by a car in the 400 block of Greer street Friday.

Sikeston's Bulldog Cagers came home victorious from the Chaffee frays as the "A's" won their game, 64 to 29, and the "B's" walked away from the Chaffee "B" team, 38 to 18.

Meet Sikeston's Teachers. Mrs. Evelyn M. Barnett, now teaching her fourth term in the primary department of South Grade School, is a graduate of Southeast Missouri State College, from which she holds the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education. A resident of Sikeston since 1941, she lives at 236 William street.

An early morning blaze ravaged the four-room home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith, 312 Maude street, today. According to Mrs. Smith the fire probably started from a faulty flue.

Hospital notes. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eddy of New Madrid are parents of a boy.

Medina Admits Possibility Massacre Did Take Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Capt. Ernest L. Medina, commander of the army company involved in the alleged massacre of Vietnamese civilians at My Lai, says he did not order or see any massacre but that "it is possible that it could have taken place."

In an interview published in today's New York Times, Medina also said that if he were to run the operation over again he would do some things differently, including insuring that each soldier knew he could not shoot unarmed civilians.

The Army is investigating reports that between 100 and 600 civilians were killed in My Lai on March 16, 1968. Lt. William L. Calley Jr. is charged with murder of 109 civilians in the incident.

In Washington Wednesday, chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D.S.C., of the House Armed Services Committee, said the helicopter pilot who the Army says suggested Vietnamese civilians might have been unnecessarily killed at My Lai made no such report to a subcommittee.

Rivers said that neither Hugh Thompson Jr., the pilot, nor any other witness testifying before his investigations group presented information to convince it that American soldiers massacred civilians at My Lai.

Secretary of he Army Stanley R. Resor had told the subcommittee two weeks ago that a helicopter pilot, later identified by the Pentagon as Thompson, "suggested there might have been unnecessary killing of noncombatants at My Lai."

Capt. Medina, in the interview with the Times in Washington, said that he remained outside the village during most of the My Lai operation, keeping in touch with the three platoons under his command by radio.

Medina, who has not been charged with any crime, said that when he went through the village once to meet troops on the other side, his men "were burning the village ... shooting the livestock and closing the wells."

He said he saw some bodies, but added: "I did not ask how the people had been killed."

At one point, he said, "I got a radio transmission from higher command stating that there was a possibility that there were civilians in the village and that some of them might have been shot and I was to put out the transmission to all three platoons to try to make sure that none of our people shot any civilians."

Later, he asked his three platoon leaders, including Calley, if any civilians had been killed. "I received negative indications from all platoon leaders," he recalled.

The Prayer
from The Upper Room

"Just as you, Father, live in me and I live in you, I am asking that they may live in us, that the world may believe that you did send me." (John 17:21, Phillips)

PRAYER: Father, I would dare to surrender myself with utter abandon to permit the Range Finder, Christ, to help me to live in You. Redeem my life and purify my heart. In Jesus' name. Amen.

ARMED FORCES

(25AN-81501) VIETNAM (FHTNC) - Marine Private First Class Larry Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Williams of Route 3, and husband of the former Miss Betty J. Reed of 113 Alabama St., all of Sikeston, Mo., is serving with the First Military Police Battalion, Force Logistic Command (FLC), in Vietnam.

The battalion provides security for the massive air base at Danang and the III Marine Amphibious Force Bridge. The bridge, a vital link between East Danang and road access to northern I Corps, spans the Han River.

FLC, headquartered at Camp Books near Danang, is the largest supply, service and maintenance support organization in the Marine Corps. Comprised of seven battalions and two major support groups, the command serves all Marine and Republic of South Korea units operating in the northernmost tactical zone of South Vietnam.

Individual missions of FLC and its subordinate units range from providing military police and scout sentry dog service, to complete communication support.

New Madrid Will Be Served by New Doctor

NEW MADRID — The city will obtain the services of an additional medical doctor.

Dr. Ernie Sandidge, and his fiance, Miss Margaret Steinkirch, both of Memphis, were welcomed to the city Tuesday afternoon by Chamber of Commerce members and businessmen. Dr. Sandidge and Miss Steinkirch will be married Monday. They will move to New Madrid and the doctor will begin his practice Jan. 2.

Dr. Sandidge, 31, decided to come to New Madrid through the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce and will set up practice in the Femmer Building, 779 Main St., formerly occupied by Dr. Charles Reeder, who moved in 1967. He will be joined July 1 by Dr. David N. Jones of Arizona and Dr. Jon P. Downey of Alabama.

Dr. L. J. Smith has been the only doctor in the city of 3,000 since the departure of Dr. Reeder.

Dr. Sandidge graudated from the University of Tennessee medical school in December, 1968, and received his internship at St. Joseph Hospital, Memphis. He received his pre- Medical training at Memphis State and graduated in 1965. He was born in Lake Cormant, Miss. and attended high school in Tunica, Miss. He served in the Army from 1956 to 1959.

DR. ERNIE SANDIDGE, Memphis and his fiance, Miss Margaret Steinkirc. Doctor Sandidge will begin his practice in New Madrid Jan. 2.

A new hospital is being planned for the city and the Chamber of Commerce is making preliminary plans and surveys for its construction.

Dear Editor:

Only a few editors asked, when Drew Pearson died, "Can Jack Anderson do it? Can he keep up the terrific pace of the Washington Merry-Go-Round? Can he keep on digging up expose after expose?"

Most editors, knowing Jack Anderson's part in the Dodd, Powell and other sensational stories, didn't ask. They were sure that Jack Anderson could.

The answer for the doubters is now in.

Jack Anderson is piling up more and more exclusive stories, he is laying bare more and more violations of public trust, he is puncturing more and more inflated phonies.

And the proof appears in the story "Jack Anderson breaks news, sometimes makes it."

As you review these citations, ask yourself, "Has any other reporter in America piled up such an amazing list of exclusive stories in such a short span?"

Sincerely,
John Osenenko,

SPA May Be Reshaped or Eliminated

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The Southwestern Power Administration may be signficantly reshaped or possibly eliminated after current studies are completed.

Peter C. King, head of the SPA, made the statement Monday in an interview at Little Rock after arriving from Tulsa Okla. He is in Arkansas to attend the meeting of the Arkansas Electric Cooperative Corp., at Hot Springs.

King said the transactions being studied are those in which the SPA sells electricity generated the government - owned facilities such as hydroelectric plants at Corps of Engineers dams to private power companies and power cooperatives.

The SPA facilities may be sold to electric companies and cooperatives, King said, if studies indicated that would be the most businesslike thing to do.

The SPA, which has been selling power since 1945, oversees the government power facilities in Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Missouri. It has marketing coverage for those four states, plus Louisiana and Kansas.

If You Were the Judge

Chase Not Part of Collector's Job

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Mervin made his job as a bill collector more of a pursuit than an occupation. Amorously inclined, he cornered voluptuous Vera in her apartment and offered to forget about the money she owed in exchange for a romantic interlude.

Vera, however, wasn't that kind of a girl and flatly turned down the offer. Whereupon Mervin began to pursue Vera around her apartment with outstretched but unfulfilled arms. After a few minutes, the chase ended when Vera tripped and fell. Badly hurt, she sued Mervin's employer for her injuries.

"A bill collector is supposed to collect money," she told the judge, "and not kisses. As Mervin's employer, she should be held liable for his employee's improper conduct."

"Nonsense," was the employer's answer. "I didn't hire Mervin to be a delinquent with delinquent customers. When he started after Vera, he wasn't working for me. He was on his own."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Mervin's employer responsible for his romantic pursuit of Vera?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that while an employer can he held liable for the actions of an employee when performed during the course of their employment, or for the employer's benefit, Mervin's pursuit of Vera was definitely not within the scope of his employment, nor was it for the benefit his employer. Cosequently, his employer could not be held responsible for his amorous overtures.

(Based upon a 1935 Missouri, St. Louis Court of Appeals Decision)

It's remarkable with what fortitude a person can bear trouble when it isn't being experienced by himself.

P.S. Don't forget my old faithful dog. He wants a bone with a red ribbon on it. Thanks again Santa!

Dear Santa:

My name is Scott. I am 7 years old and in the 2nd grade.

I have been pretty good this year, but I could sure use some more "Be Good Pills."

Please bring me a Los Angeles Rams Football Uniform, a Hot Wheels loop, and some clothes. Don't forget my sister, Becky, she wants a Dancerina Doll.

Remember all the other boys and girls and Moms and Dads.

We will leave some cookies and soda on the bar for you.

Dear Santa,

My name is Judy Crismon. I am 8½ years old. I go to Southwest school. For Christmas I would like a record player, a Ken doll, (with clothes) a pretty ring, and a pretty necklace.

Love you,
Judy Crismon
314 Benton St.
Sikeston, Mo.

P.S. Don't forget my brother Rusty and all the people of the world. P.S. We will leave something on the snack bar.

There's nothing like an onion-on-rye sandwich for breakfast to guarantee you a seat to yourself on the bus.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Sunday at Mt. Olive Missionary Baptist Church.

Burial will be in Sand Hill Cemetery with Richards Funeral Home in charge.

Although nowadays a cheese and cracker course is often served on a wooden serving dish or a wooden tray, there's nothing against using a dish or tray of silver, glass or china for the cheese and crackers.

Hoelzer Draws 2 Life Sentences

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — Donald M. Hoelzer, who faces two murder charges in St. Louis, was handed two consecutive life sentences Wednesday for two holdup - slayings in North St. Louis County.

Hoelzer pleaded guilty to the killing of Anthony J. Spinelli, June 19, and of Henry L. Stewart, June 13. Spinelli was a customer in a food store, and Stewart was an employe of another store robbed.

Hoelzer was indicted by a St. Louis Circuit Court grand jury for the slaying of Mrs. DDoris Willman, a barmaid, and Charles Hill Jr., a customer, in the Lucky Club Tavern Jan. 14.

Hill, 28, was a contract hauler and son of the president of Rochester Junior College of Rochester, Minn.

Judge Robert J. Hoester of St. Loui County Circuit Court said he made Hoelzer's sentences consecutive to rule out any possibility of parole.

"The almost casual manner in which the defendant described the murders makes it imperative that society be protected from him for the rest of his life," Hoester said.

62 Aged Entertained At Christmas Party

By CHARLES BRADY

MOREHOUSE — Sixty- two elderly citizens were among 87 present for the annual Christmas party in their honor yesterday at the public school gymnasium.

Mrs. Paul Mosley, director, began the program with a greeting followed by the invocation and scripture by the Rev. Ernest Bragg, minister of the First Baptist church.

The sermon was given by the Rev. James Estep, minister of the Methodist church.

A school music program of Christmas carols was held under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Brownlee.

The oldest married couple was honored. Mr. and Mrs. W. B. McNew have been married 63 years.

Luther Black, 89, and Mrs. Anna Putman, 92, were honored as the oldest man and woman present.

Under the direction Harriet Jones, art supervisor of the Sikeston schools, a Christmas tree was decorated in lights that flashed on and off to recorded Christmas music. This process was reserved only to the motion picture industries until November of 1968.

The program closed with the Benediction by the Rev. Nathaniel Lewis, pastor of the Pentecostal Church.

Holcomb Man Faces Rape Charge

KENNETT — Charges of rape have been filed against a 20- year - old Holcomb man by Dunklin County Prosecuting Attorney Frank Holder for an act of rape committed about 9 p.m. Monday night against a 16- year-old Kennett girl. The assault took place on a country road about one mile west of Holcomb.

Arrested is Billy Wayne Doughten of Holcomb. He was arrested in Holcomb about 9:45 p.m. Monday night by Holcomb Chief of Police Bob Shipman and Dunklin County Deputy Sheriff Bob McDonald.

According to the arresting authorities, the girl and her boyfriend, a 17- year- old youth from Caruthersville, were parked on the country road when Doughten and two companions approached the parked car. Doughten is reported to have assaulted the girl while his two companions held her boyfriend on the road a short distance from the car from which they forced him. The Caruthersville youth is reported to have fled barefooted across a field to get help when he heard screams coming from his girlfriend in the car with Doughten. Charges have not been filed against the two companions, as they reportedly did not take part in the rape assault.

Randy Wallick, an offensive end from Dixon, Ill., will captain Dartmouth's football team next season. Wallick caught 13 passes in 1967.

If the competition had Impala's high resale value maybe they'd be No.1.
Maybe.

The makers of Impala generously offer these tips to competitors to help improve their resale value.

They could try adding our side guard door beam structure, heavy steel rails inside the doors.

They could do something about the rocker panel problem, as we have done with flush-and-dry rocker panels, instead of being content to let rust accumulate.

They could put inner fenders in every model, just like Impala. Who knows? Come resale time their outer fenders might look almost as good as Impala's.

They could hush up the sounds of old age with something like Impala's long life exhaust system, aluminized at critical points for greater durability.

Impala's cargo-guard luggage compartment is a good bet, too. A steel bulkhead separates luggage from passenger compartment. Beats paper or plywood all hollow.

We suggest an acrylic lacquer finish, so their cars will keep their shine longer.

But if competition doesn't take these tips, you certainly should.

Buy an Impala.

It's such a rewarding car to get rid of.

Putting you first, keeps us first.
